ENEMY GAINS AT ALBERT

LONDON, May 9.—Hard fighting continued lat night and this morning in the area north of Kemmel on the Lys salient, where the Germans yesterday, by a strong thrust, entered the British trenches between La Clytte and Voormezeele.

The forces of General Haig took the offensive in this struggle, and today, according to announcement from the Field Marshal's headquarters, they re-established their line completely in the old positions.

Most of their recovery of ground was made during the night, but the Germans, by another hard push, took some of the contested ground again, only to lose it finally.

About 25,000 Germans took part in this attack, according to the day bulletin of the War Office, and they suffered heavy casualties, it is stated.

After great artillery activity the Germans made two attacks today in the Albert sector. At Bouzincourt, two miles northwest of Albert, the enemy was unable to reach the British trenches because of the heavy fire.

At Albert, however, the Germans, pressing ahead despite large losses, occupied the British advanced position on a front of about 150 yards.

More progress has been made by the British troops in the region between the Somme and the Ancre, where the Australians have been gaining ground for two days.

The bulletin from General Haig's headquarters tonight says:

> At the close of the fighting this morning in the La Clytte-Voormezeele sector, the French and British positions on this front were completely re-established.
> Following upon hostile artillery activity already reported, the enemy launched two local attacks early this morning in the neighborhood of Albert and Bouzincourt. In the latter locality the enemy's attack was broken up by our rifle and machine gun fire and failed to reach our trenches.
> At Albert, after suffering heavy casualties from our fire, his troops succeeded in effecting a lodgment in our advanced position on a front of about 150 yards.
>
> On the remainder of the British front there is nothing to report beyond artillery activity on both sides in the different sectors.

> Successful counterattacks launched by British and French troops yesterday, in the La Clytte-Voormezeele sector, drove the enemy from the portions of the allied front line in which he had gained a footing during the morning, and re-established the positions originally held by us. We captured several prisoners.
>
> This morning the enemy again attacked north of Kemmel, and succeeded in pressing back our line slightly at one point, where the fighting continues.
>
> Troops of two German divisions took part in the enemy's attack yesterday morning. Heavy casualties were inflicted on them by our artillery fire, as well as in infantry fighting, both during the attack and in the subsequent counterattack.
>
> Local fighting took place also yesterday at Bucquoy, in the course of which we captured thirty prisoners.
>
> During the night further progress was made by us between the Somme and the Ancre. Our new positions in this sector were improved. Several prisoners were taken by us.
>
> Hostile raids were repulsed in the neighborhood of Lens and Merris. The enemy's artillery developed considerable activity during the night in the Albert sector.

The official statement on aerial operations issued tonight reads:

> The weather was fine on Wednesday, but little work in the air was possible south of Arras, owing to a heavy mist. On the northern portion of the front our airplanes were active all day, ten tons of bombs being dropped on Le Cateau, Cambrai, Ba-

Seize in Ireland Man Landed by U-Boat; Prisoner in Tower to be Court-Martialed

LONDON, May 9.—A German submarine recently landed a man on the Irish coast, where he was arrested by Government officials. James Macpherson, Parliamentary Secretary to the War Office, announced in the House of Commons today that this man was in the Tower of London and would be court-martialed.

The collapsible boat in which the Germans landed the man has been inspected by officials. It is made of canvas, with a bottom of twenty-three wooden slats, each four inches wide, making the boat about eight feet long and two feet wide. The canvas sides, about twenty inches high, have an inner lining of rubber fabric, which is blown up from a valve at the rear to give the boat buoyancy. There are loops along the sides in which short wooden braces or struts keep the boat from collapsing.

The whole craft when rolled up weighs less than forty pounds and can be easily carried under a man's arm. When the buoyancy chambers are pumped full of air the boat will easily support three men, although only one is thus far reported to have been arrested. In the side of the boat is a hole about three inches in diameter, which presumably was cut by the occupant in an effort to sink her after landing.

The whole boat is made by hand and impresses one as somewhat amateurish. The valve is made of wood and is rather crude. There are no metal parts to the boat and all work on the canvas is hand sewed.

It was a German submarine that two years ago last April landed Sir Roger Casement on the Kerry coast of Ireland. Casement was apprehended by the Government authorities, taken to London, and after being incarcerated in the Tower of London, was charged with "high treason without the realm." After a sensational trial he was convicted and hanged in Pentonville Prison on Aug. 3, 1916.

The submarine which carried Casement to Ireland was accompanied by a German tramp steamer with a cargo of arms. The steamer was blown up when the crew saw that capture by a British warship was inevitable.

The arrival of Casement in Ireland from Berlin was the prelude to a revolt against British sovereignty which broke out in Dublin on Easter Sunday, in 1916. According to witnesses who testified at the trial Sir Roger was to have led the uprising and was to have utilized the arms which he had imported from Germany. The Irish uprising was suppressed after several hundred persons had been killed or wounded.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, May 9.—A city of dreadful silence—that is Amiens today.

Imagine a prosperous American centre of 120,000 inhabitants, the railroad traffic, canals, and road system of which make it an important ganglion of national transportation, with an annual commercial turnover reckoned in hundreds of millions, and enormous stores of merchandise. Add to these the incalculable riches of a mediaeval cathedral, considered one of the masterpieces of Gothic architecture, splendid public buildings, and a museum containing priceless frescoes of Puvis de Chavannes.

The sum total gives you Amiens, capital of Picardy, which for six weeks has been the principal goal of German endeavor and for the last fortnight a target of German guns.

As one passes through the deserted streets no sound breaks the stillness save the crackle of one's footsteps in the broken glass that carpets the sidewalk—that and the dull thudding of the ceaseless cannonade to the eastward. At sudden intervals, now hours apart, now in rapid succession, comes the screaming rattle of a German shell followed by a heavy "boom, whumpf" of an explosion and the noise of falling masonry.

A Terrible Loneliness.

But of human life there is nothing. Amiens is deserted, like one of the cities of the Middle Ages smitten suddenly by plague.

At first sight there is comparatively little evidence of the destruction other than gaping windows. Doubtless here and there the street car cables hang in tangled festoons from the standards. There is a shattered building every hundred yards, and on the boulevards innumerable spots of green mark the branches torn from the newly foliaged trees. But thus far there is nothing like the wholesale destruction as at Rheims.

It is that which makes Amiens appear so terrible, the silence and loneliness of street after street with never a moving figure or sound of voice to break the monotony of the desolation.

Yet there are still men and even women left in the city. With a shock of surprise one notes a sentry standing impassive at the street corner, or a helmeted fireman, clearing up the rubbish, and also during the intervals of bombardment a little group of soldiers or civilians removing stores or furniture from a building to a waiting vehicle.

Stores of food and other things have been successfully removed under the

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 9.—More than any other fighting man, the American soldier, while amenable to discipline, thinks for himself. He has first hand knowledge that the German fighter is no gentleman, and he knows that this is no kid glove war. He has made up his mind that the best way to win the war is to kill as many boches as possible, and that is his program from now on.

It is because every American soldier has his own opinions about the war that German atrocities will reap their just fruit with the American Army. If the German wants rough warfare, the Americans will take it under due consideration.

I never realized the stupidity of the German practices of barbarity as yesterday, when I saw the reception by American soldiers of the news of the finding of the bodies of two doughboys, who had not only had their heads smashed in, but had also been cruelly bayoneted after they fell.

While Americans will never stoop to the inhumane atrocities of the Germans, I believe that the enemy will regret every cruelty practiced on American soldiers. The development of the spirit of revenge is recognized by American commanders, who on several occasions have taken pains to investigate the reports of German atrocities upon Americans, to guard against the excessive development of the desire for retaliation. This was done not because of regard for the Germans, but because military policy demands the taking of prisoners when practicable.

Army Confident of Outcome.

There is one army fighting in France in which there cannot be found the slightest doubt of the eventual outcome of the war. That is the American army.

The American spirit is fresh, and I believe it will stay fresh. Nothing can happen to shake the fine faith of Americans in the real ability of their country and her ultimate success.

I talked yesterday with the General commanding the American troops who participated in the Seicheprey fight. After reading all the reports of the combat, he said:

"American fighters are no quitters."

Although the youngest soldiers in France, the Americans are the most serious. More than any other soldiers they take a deep personal interest in the war. For instance, I heard one today stop a group of comrades and remark: "Say, fellows, just read. The old United States is to have a bumper wheat crop this year. Guess that will

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Thursday, May 9.—It is not everywhere easy for the enemy to assemble his troops or concentrate his guns and ammunition and stores on his front for the next phase of his offensive. Albert is a case in point. From many points the British have complete observation of his positions there, as he has of theirs from the other side of the way, and, needless to say, they are making use of this direct view by flinging over storms of shells whenever his transport is seen crawling along the tracks of the old Somme battlefields or his troops are seen massing among their shell craters.

The town of Albert itself, where once until recent history the golden Virgin used to lean downward with her babe outstretched above the ruins, is now a death trap for the German garrisons there, and for any German gunners who try to hide their batteries among the red brick houses. By day and night their positions are pounded with high explosives and soaked in asphyxiating gas.

I went within 2,000 yards of it yesterday, and saw the heaviest work of the British upon it. It was a wonderful May day, as today is, and the sun shone through a golden haze upon the town. As I looked into Albert and saw the shells smashing through and then away up the Albert-Bapaume road, past the white rim of the great mine crater of La Boiselle to the treeless slopes of Posières, and over all that ground of hills and ditches to the high, wooded distant right, with its few dead stumps of trees, it was hard to believe that all this was in the area of the German Army, that the white, winding lines freshly marked upon this bleak landscape were new German trenches, and that the enemy's outposts were less than 2,000 yards from where I stood.

Fritz Having a "Thin Time."

Some siege gunners were lying on their stomachs and observing the enemy's lines for some monsters I had seen on the way up, monsters that raised their snouts slowly, like elephants' trunks, before bellowing out with an earthquake roar, annihilating all one's senses for a second. Some of the men passed the remark to me that "Albert isn't the town it was" and that "Fritz must be having a thin time there." They also expressed the opinion that the Albert-Bapaume road was not a pleasant walk for Germans on a sunny afternoon.

I did not dispute these points with them, for they were beyond argument. Big shells were smashing into Albert and its neighborhood from many heavy batteries, raising volcanic explosions there, and shrapnel was bursting over the tracks in white splashes.

There was a great noise yesterday, but it was mostly a British noise, for which I am duly thankful. Scores of heavies were scattered about behind the lines, where the woods are in the first glory of their green and where the grass was merry with gold and silver, except where German shells opened deep pits, horribly fresh, so that one knew the enemy had been searching around here for any death he could find. His shells came over in flights over the ruined villages near by and over the twisted chimneys of deserted French châteaux.

Tea in a Dugout de Luxe.

There were some tattered tapestry and some good oak chairs, carved by craftsmen of Louis Quinze, and a bit of carpet cut from a bigger square, and a gilded mirror in a room where I took tea with some gunner officers in one of the forward battery positions. It was not a room in a château, but was newly dug in the earth with a roof of iron sheeting.

The gunner Major, who was once a novelist and an actor, and is now a writer of haunting and rather tragic verses between his hours of killing Germans, has a nice eye for decoration, and will make his hole in the ground, wherever it may be, as pretty a place as any moist pit may be. So, when a French village was being slaughtered the other day by hostile fire, he saved these bits of furniture from destruction and arranged them in his new dugout outside.

As we sat at tea within, flights of British shells passed over into Albert, and the enemy answered back, but not much, and the sun grew warmer over these flowered fields, and birds were singing.

I described in my message yesterday how the noise of gunfire was so steady and loud during the night and early morning over a wide extent of front, and that along all sectors of it there were inquiries as to attacks answered by assurances that there was nothing doing. But after all there was something doing against one body of British troops in Flanders, and judging from later information gained by officers there, it looks as though the enemy had intended a big attack by at least five divisions, though his plan was thwarted by the intense British gunfire.

What actually happened was an assault upon Ridge Wood and its neighborhood north of Vierstraat and of the French left opposite Kemmel Hill, extending along the lines of the French themselves, though not so heavily except in artillery fire. That was intense, prolonged, and terrific for several hours of the night and just before dawn.

Fresh Enemy Division Tried Out.

Behind the German lines, as we now know, a new German division, previously untouched in this offensive, the 52d Reserve, had just relieved the 3d Guards, who, as I have already told, had been badly mauled with their Cockchafers in the recent fighting, and on their left—the British right, of course—there was the 56th German Division, with others opposite the French front.

All these men were crowded into narrow assembly grounds and did not have quiet hours before the moment of attack. They had hours of carnage in the darkness. British and French guns were answering back the German bombardment with their heaviest fire. French howitzers, long-muzzled fellows which during recent weeks I had seen crawling through Flanders with the cornflowers, as the French soldiers call themselves, crowded about them on the gun limbers and transport wagons and muddy horses, and which had traveled long kilometers, were now in action from their emplacements between the ruined villages of the Flemish war zone, and with their little brothers, the soixante-quinzes, their bloodthirsty little brothers, were savage in their destruction and harassing fire.

I have seen the soixante-quinze at work and have heard the rafale des tambours de la mort—the ruffle of the drums of death—as the sound of their fire is described by all soldier writers of France. It was that fire, that slashing and sweeping fire, which helped to break up any big plan of attack against the French troops yesterday morning, and from those assembly places a great part of the German infantry never moved all day, but spent their time, it seems, in carrying back their wounded.

Another Division Also Cut Up.

So it was with another division of German troops intended for assault on the lines further north. The British field batteries and heavies laid down a protective barrage of shellfire of terrible intensity, and here also any German plan of movemnt was "immobilized," the scientific word for the slaughter and destruction of hostile preparations. But in spite of the bombardment of the 52d Reserve Division those German troops in their first baptism of fire in this offensive came out against the British in Ridge Wood. The forward system of

Want American Money for Grain in Ukraine

LONDON, May 9.—The Central News says that enemy agents are purchasing large quantities of United States notes for shipment to Austria by way of Switzerland, to be used for the purchase of this year's crop from the Ukraine.

Russian peasants, it is explained, will only accept American notes in payment for their produce.

THE TIMES told, some two weeks ago, of an extensive movement, supposedly of German origin, to buy up American bills in neutral countries. The reason for this movement was then not clear to the authorities at Washington. The above dispatch seems to explain it.

The great depreciation of German and Austrian notes in adjacent countries would explain the desire of the Russians to refuse payment in these notes.

LONDON, May 9.—After listening to the speech of Premier Lloyd George in defense of his statements about the military forces of the empire, the House of Commons tonight by a vote of 293 to 106 upheld him and the Government. The vote rejected the motion of ex-Premier Asquith for an investigation of General Maurice's charges by a committee of the House instead of by a committee of judges, as planned by the Government.

Lloyd George's triumph was even more complete than the figures of voting indicated. Some of those who followed Asquith into the lobby voted with him on grounds of purely parliamentary procedure, while others were actuated by personal considerations, believing that the ex-Prime Minister had honestly been misled into taking up an attitude which will weaken the great position he held in Parliament. Some of Lloyd George's most convinced opponents recognized that his speech today made out the best case for the Government he ever presented.

It was characterized by an almost complete absence of certain faults which have occasionally marred his Parliamentary fighting speeches. Practically the only fault found with it was his reference to "cocoa slops." That same so-called "cocoa press" helped considerably to make his earlier political career. Nevertheless, though the speech was an ex-parte statement, it was so clear and apparently honest in its details that it carried conviction to minds which were predisposed to suspicion.

Text of Lloyd George's Speech.

A General who for good or bad reasons has ceased to hold an office which he occupied for two years, a distinguished General, challenged, after he left that office, statements made by two Ministers during the time he was in office.

During the time he was in that office he never challenged this statement, when he had not merely access to official documents, but when he had access to the Ministers themselves. [Cheers.] General Maurice was in office for weeks after I had delivered that speech in the House of Commons. He attended meetings of the Cabinet, in the absence of the Chief of Staff, every day after I delivered the speech, and after it appeared he never called attention to it. He never asked me to correct it.

It may be said that perhaps he had not time to read it, but he was there the following day, and he never called my attention to the fact that these statements were incorrect.

Supposing that he did not care to do it in the presence of the whole Cabinet, he was in daily contact with me on the business of the war. We were constantly discussing questions of figures, because he was the authority. As Director of Military Operations he was the authority, and it was his business to come to me, especially if he thought this was so important that it justified a great breaking of the King's regulations and setting an example of indiscipline.

Was it not his business first of all to come to the Cabinet, or at any rate to the Minister impugned, and say to him, "You made a mistake in the House of Commons on a most important question of fact." He might have put it quite nicely, and said: "I daresay you were misled. You had better put it right."

Says He Was Treated Unfairly.

Never a syllable until I saw it in the newspapers. [Cheers.] I say I have been treated unfairly. [Renewed cheers.] I will say more than that. I thought that possibly General Maurice, if he did not care to talk to me, might have talked to his immediate chief first of all, the Secretary of State, or the Chief of Staff. So I inquired, but never a word until he left office. During the whole time these questions were being discussed he never made any representation to the Chief of Staff.

And this is a question which is so important that you must set up a Select Committee to inquire into it, so important as to justify the trampling by a great and distinguished General who has held one of the most confidential positions in the War Office upon the regulations of the King and setting an example of indiscipline to the whole army.

I propose before I sit down to give the whole sources of the information upon which I and my right honorable friend made these statements to the House and to invite the House of Commons—and here I agree with the right honorable gentleman opposite that it is a question for the House of Commons—and I propose to ask the House of Commons to judge, and to judge today. [Loud cheers.]

Wanted to Guard War Facts.

I am going to give you the reasons why we proposed a committee of judges. I am going to put the reasons why we oppose a select committee. I am going to give the reasons why we are taking the course I propose to take today.

When statements of this kind were made challenging, not the action of Ministers, but statements made by Ministers, when a letter was written by a distinguished officer, my right honorable friend and I thought we were accused of misleading the House of Commons, and we were anxious to give an opportunity for an examination of these statements by a perfectly impartial tribunal. One reason was that there was a mass of very confidential information which was relevant which any committee would have the right to call for, and we were anxious to place all the documents at the disposal of an impartial committee because we knew perfectly well that once these documents were placed at their disposal there could be absolutely no doubt in the mind of any tribunal as to the veracity of the statements which had been made. A second reason was that the most important statement of all, with regard to the extension of the front, involved our allies, and it would be very difficult to decide it without making some statement which might offend their susceptibility.

Reasons for Judicial Tribunal.

That was one reason why we were exceedingly sorry that the controversy should ever have been raised. [Cheers.] When we came to the question of the appointment of a select committee or a judicial tribunal, we felt that a committee of the House of Commons, adapted undoubtedly for certain investigations, was not the best tribunal for investigating facts when passions were aroused. It is no use saying that it is bringing a charge against the House of Commons. The House of Commons, as a matter of fact, came to the conclusion long ago that on questions like election petitions, when party passions or when any passions were aroused, the House of Commons was not very well adapted to an examination of the facts.

My right honorable friend came to that conclusion himself in regard to Mesopotamia. I think he was right; but whether the best tribunal was set up or not was another matter. This is no reflection upon the House of Commons. Judges are accustomed to examine facts, and after all it is only a question of fact.

Another point was that it was very important that if there was to be an investigation it should be short and sharp and that you should get a decision immediately.

I felt no doubt at all, if there were an investigation by Judges, what would be the result. But what has happened since Tuesday? Since Tuesday it has become clear from statements of the press which supports my right honorable friend. He talks as if the press were supporting the Government, but he has got a press, too. [Cheers.] If he does not mind my saying so, he seems to think that all violence, all virulence, is with the press that does not agree with him. Why?

I have been for the last two or three years, since I have thrown myself into the vigorous prosecution of the war, according to my view, drenched with the Cocoa Press slops. [Loud laughter and cheers.]

Mr. Pringle—Whose money you took.

Mr. Lloyd George, resuming—It is perfectly clear from the action of the press which is egging my right honorable friend and suggesting that he ought to do this and the other to embarrass the Government, that no statement, no decision of any select committee, would ever be accepted, but they would go on exactly the same as before.

We have decided, therefore, to give the facts in public and let the public judge. I will proceed at once to an examination of the statements made by General Maurice with regard to my statement about figures. There have been two challenges given to the Government, and I am going to deal with both. One of them is in General Maurice's letter and the other is rather implied in the letter.

Replies to Challenged Figures.

The challenge has been given because, after all, this is only a part of the sort of things that have been going on outside, and, although I deprecate the method in which it is raised, I am glad of an opportunity of clearing it out of the way.

Two challenges have been made as to figures. One is in regard to the comparison I made of the British forces in France Jan. 1, 1918, and Jan. 1, 1917. The other is the comparison I drew between the enemy and allied forces on the western front. Both of them are of vast importance and both of them are practically parts of the same question General Maurice stated:

> On April 9 the Prime Minister said: "What was the position at the beginning of the battle? Notwithstanding the heavy casualties of 1917, the army in France was considerably stronger on Jan. 1, 1918, than on Jan. 1, 1917."
> That statement implies that Sir Douglas Haig's fighting strength on the eve of the great battle which began March 21 had not been diminished. That is not correct.

Now the issue is a very clear one. I said that the fighting strength of the army had increased. General Maurice said that it had diminished as compared with the previous year.

Has Verified His Figures.

The figures I gave were taken from the official records of the War Office, which I sent for before I made the statement. If they were incorrect General Maurice was as responsible as anybody else. They were not inaccurate. I have made inquiries since.

I am not quite sure what he means. There is absolutely no doubt that there was a very considerable part of the man-power of the army at the beginning of 1918 as compared with the man-power at the beginning of 1917 in France. There was a great increase in the man-power of the British Army throughout the world in 1918 as compared with 1917, and the increase of man-power in France in 1918 as compared with 1917 was greater than the average throughout the whole area.

You draw a distinction between what is known as combatants and noncombatants. I am going to consider that as well later on, but before I do so let me say at once I do not accept that distinction. When you talk about fighting strength, who are combatants and who are noncombatants?

Let me first of all deal with the question, Who are the combatants? Are those men who stopped the advance of the German Army to Amiens the other day—are they combatants?

Asquith's Denial of Desire to Censure Cabinet Or of a "Hungry Intention to Resume Office"

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 9.—In presenting his motion today for an investigation of the Maurice charges by a Parliamentary committee, instead of a committee of Judges, as suggested by the Government, ex-Premier Asquith said:

> The motion I am about to make is not, either in intention or in fact, as I have seen it rather absurdly described, a vote of censure upon the Government. I have, since I sat in this seat, now, I think, nearly eighteen months, given no adverse vote on any question against the Government. I have done all I could, not only in the House but outside, without withholding what I considered legitimate and helpful criticism, to assist the Government in the prosecution of the war.
>
> Some of my friends, I know, think that I have been unduly fainthearted and mealy mouthed. There are people outside this House gifted with more imagination than charity, and with more stupidity than either, who think of me as a person who has the hungry intention to resume the cares and responsibilities of office. Foolish imagination of this kind I leave to the judgment of my colleagues in the House and to my countrymen outside of it. If I were to find it my conviction to ask the House to censure the Government, I hope I should have the courage and candor to do so in a direct and unequivocal manner.

Full Text of Premier Lloyd George's Speech in Reply to Maurice Charges

[A voice, "Yes."] They are not if you begin to draw a distinction between combatants and noncombatants. Those are General Carey's forces. They would not be treated as combatants.

Are the men who are under fire every day making and preparing roads, tramroads and railways, and who suffer severe casualties—are those combatants or noncombatants? In most lists that are printed they are noncombatants. Does any one mean to tell me that they are not part of the fighting strength of the army?

Gives View of Fighting Strength.

Take the men who, when the British Army retreated and had to abandon the trenches which they had taken months to prepare, and who improved the defenses and the gunfire to relieve the infantry—are those men no part of the fighting strength of an army? If you have not got them, you have to take infantry out and set them to that work. As a matter of fact, one of the things I came back from France with was a demand for more of them, and they are not a part of the fighting strength of the army!

I decline absolutely to accept that definition, and will leave out the ordinary technical distinction between combatant and noncombatant.

A question was put in the House of Commons by the honorable gentleman, the member for Barnston, eight or nine days after I delivered my speech of April 18. This question was put:

> 'Sir Godfrey Baring—I wish to ask the Prime Minister whether, when he stated that the British Army in France was considerably stronger on Jan. 1, 1918, than on Jan. 1, 1917, he was including the labor battalions and the other non-combatant units and whether the combatant strength of the British Army was greater or less at the beginning of this year than at the beginning of last year.

My right honorable friend, whose duty it was to answer this question on behalf of the War Office, sent that question to General Maurice with the answer. [Cheers.] I am not going to read the answer which he gave, because that is on the records of the House.

Note from Maurice's Office.

I will give the note that came from General Maurice's department. This is the actual document:

George Lambert—Is it signed by him?

I see that my right honorable friend, G. Lambert, is going to draw that distinction. That shows the sort of impartial judges! [Loud cheers.]

This is the note. First of all, you have got the figures inside. Of course, I cannot give those to the House, but this note is a summary:

> From the statement included, it will be seen that the combatant strength of the British army was greater on Jan. 1, 1918, than on Jan. 1, 1917.

This comes from General Maurice's department nine days after I made that statement. I am not depending on the fact that all these men ruled out as noncombatants are an essential part of the strength of the British Army in France. I am not depending on that. As a matter of fact, there was an increase as between Jan. 1, 1918, and March, but it just happened that I thought I would take the first month of the year.

Now I come to the second statement which was made by General Maurice. There is a very important question of comparison of the allied and enemy forces, and it has a bearing upon the question later of the extension of the front. I have been charged there with misleading the public to believe that at the time when the attack took place by the enemy on the allied position on the western front we had a slight superiority in infantry; a considerable superiority, I think, in cavalry, and a superiority in artillery, and I also said a superiority in the air.

Asserts Maurice Was Responsible.

With the exception of the air—I did not get that from General Maurice—the whole of the figures upon which I based that statement came from General Maurice. I asked for them. I do not suggest that he was the man who worked up those figures, but he was responsible for documents given out by his own department. [Cheers.] And may I just add, General Maurice has made two statements himself on this subject since the battle began? They have been published, I believe, in America. I did not depend upon the American publication. I took the trouble to see whether General Maurice had really said so, and I find he did. This is what he said on March 22:

> There is one cardinal fact to keep in mind, (this he said himself and not through officials,) and that is that the forces on the whole front are as nearly equal as they can be.

On April 3 he made this statement. This also, I believe, appeared in the American press:

> As regards our side of the picture, I need only repeat what I have already said that on the whole front the opposing forces at the beginning of the battle were approximately equal, and, therefore, a readjustment of the balance of the battlefield is only a matter of time.

If there was anything in these figures, I got them from official sources for which General Maurice himself is responsible, and I think he might have said that in his letter when he was impugning the honor of Ministers. [Cheers.]

Maurice Had Chance to Correct.

Now I come to the statement with regard to figures. I said that in Mesopotamia there is only one white division and in Egypt and Palestine there are only three white divisions.

Well, now I will give here again the source of my information. The statement about one British division is in the official record. With regard to Egypt, that statement was made at a Cabinet meeting, which was examining the position, by a member of the staff. It is the custom of the Secretary of the War Cabinet to send these statements to all those who are present for correction, and I want the House to bear in mind that General Maurice is the official who was primarily responsible for the question of the number of divisions in the various theatres of war. This statement was sent to General Maurice for correction, if there was any correction to make. He telephoned to the Secretary (this is the note) that he added no remarks.

So this statement about there being three British divisions in Egypt was made in the presence of General Maurice, who made no correction, and I have no correction either from him or anybody else on the subject. [Cheers.]

Maurice Not in Council Chamber.

Now, I come to the next point. This is the statement made about the extension of the front:

> This is not the place to enter into a discussion as to all the facts, but Hansard's report of the incident coincludes:
>
> Mr. Bonar Law—This particular matter was not dealt with at all by the Versailles War Council.

Then General Maurice said:

> I was at Versailles when the question was decided by the Supreme War Council, to whom it had been referred.

In the first place, I think that any one reading that would come to the conclusion that General Maurice was present at the meeting. He was at Versailles, it is true, but he was not at the meeting. I have looked at the official record since and it confirms what I say. He was in Versailles. He was in a building outside with several others who were there assisting the various Generals. He was not in the council chamber when the question to which he refers was discussed. As a matter of fact, the extension of the front of General Gough's army, to which allusion has been made, was never discussed at that council at all. There was a demand for a further extension, but that particular extension had taken place before the council had ever met.

Haig Had Reported the Extension.

Before the Council had met it had been agreed between Field Marshal Haig and General Pétain, and the extension was an accomplished fact. [Cheers.] Field Marshal Haig reported to the Council that the extension had taken place. There was not a single yard taken over as a result of the Versailles conference—not a single yard of extension—and it was General Maurice who said he was there, but was not, who implied that he was present when the decision had taken place, who ventures to suggest that the extension of the front of General Gough's army was decided at Versailles, when, as a matter of fact, it took place before the meeting had occurred. [Cheers.] It is upon the cry that we are to be arraigned. [Cheers.]

Although General Maurice did not say so, the real point, the one which is put by my right honorable friend with characteristic bluntness and straightforwardness, is this: Is it the fact that when this portion of the line held by General Gough's army was taken over the War Cabinet insisted upon its being taken over, and, therefore, the objections of Sir William Robertson and Sir Douglas Haig were thereby overruled?

Yielded to French Pressure.

That is the real point. There is not a word of truth in it. I think it is time this matter should be cleared up, [cheers,] and with the indulgence of the House I propose to do so.

Of course, the Field Marshal was not anxious to extend his line. No one would be having regard to the great accumulation of strength against him, and the War Cabinet were just as reluctant.

There was not a single meeting between the French Generals and ourselves when we did not state facts against the extension, but the pressure from the French Government and French Army was enormous, and what was done was not done in response to pressure from the War Cabinet. It was done in response to very great pressure which Sir Douglas Haig could not resist and which we could not resist.

We are not suggesting that our French allies are asking unfairly. That is certainly not my intention.

There was a considerable ferment in France on the subject of the length of the line held by the French Army as compared with our army. The French losses had been enormous. They had practically borne the brunt of the fighting for three years. There was a larger proportion of their young manhood put into the line than in any belligerent country, in the world. [Cheers.] They held 336 miles. We held a front of 100 miles.

That is not the whole statement, because the Germans were much more densely massed in front of ourselves. Not only that, but the line we held was much more vulnerable. Pratically the defense of Paris was left to us, and the defense of some of the most important centres, but there was the fact that you had this enormous front held by the French Army, as compared with what looked like the comparatively small front of ours.

French Wanted Soldiers to Farm.

In addition to that, the French Army at that time was holding, I think, a two-division front on our line in order to enable us to accumulate the necessary reserves for the purposes of the attack in Flanders. That was part of the line which, I believe, was held before by the British and French.

The French were pressing in order to withdraw men from the army for purposes of agriculture. I ought to explain that their agricultural output had fallen enormously, owing to the fact that they had withdrawn a very large proportion of their men from the cultivation of the fields, and they felt it essential that they should withdraw part of their army for the purpose of cultivating the soil, and they were pressing us upon these topics.

The chief of the Imperial General Staff, Sir William Robertson, and the Cabinet felt that it was inevitable that during the Winter months there should be some extension, and we acknowledged that something had to be done to meet the French demands, and to that extent we accepted the principle that there must be some extension of the line. There was no doubt in the mind of any one that we would have to take over that part of the line from General Antoine, and how far beyond that and what further extension should be made was a matter which was in doubt. I give the principle which was laid down by General Sir William Robertson and accepted by the Cabinet:

As to Extension of the Line.

> We accepted in principle that there must be an extension of the British line in the Winter months, and that the time and extent must be left to the two commanders in chief to settle together; that no extension was possible until the offensive was over, and that the line to be taken over must depend upon the military policy for 1918 and upon the rôle assigned to each army. These were perfectly sound principles, and the Cabinet accepted them without any demur. I say without hesitation that the Cabinet never swerved one iota from the principle laid down by Sir William Robertson.

At that time the Field Marshal was under the impression that the Cabinet had taken a decision without his consent. The Chief of the Imperial Staff upon that sent the following memorandum to the War Cabinet. I will read it, but first, with reference to the Boulogne conference, I may, perhaps, say that that was the first time we had a discussion with the French Ministers. The subject of discussion was a rather important foreign office. It was not summoned in the least to discuss an extension of the lines. We never knew that was to be raised. Sir William Robertson and I represented the British Government, and M. Painlevé, the Prime Minister, and General Foch represented the French Government.

When Sir William Robertson discovered that the Field Marshal was under the impression that we had come to a decision without his consent he sent the War Cabinet a memorandum, in which he says:

"At the recent Boulogne conference the question of extending our front was raised by the French representatives. The reply given was that while in principle we were, of course, ready to do whatever could be done, the matter was one which could not be discussed in the absence of Sir Douglas Haig, or during the continuance of the present operations, and that due regard must also be had to the plan of operations for next year.

"It was suggested that it would be best for the Fild Marshal to come to an arrangement with General Pétain, when this could be done. So far as I am aware no formal discussion has taken place, and the matter cannot be regarded as decided. Further, I feel sure that the War Cabinet would not think of deciding such a question without first obtaining Sir Douglas Haig's views. I am replying to him in the above sense."

That, I think, was on the 19th of October. The War Cabinet fully approved of the communication. Sir Douglas Haig communicated, and said that it threw a new light on the Boulogne position. I think that we have a right to complain of the way in which it has been rumored about that Sir Douglas Haig protested.

The War Cabinet's Decision.

The fact that Sir William Robertson had explained and Sir Douglas Haig had stated that the explanation threw new light has never been repeated. That is how mischief is done. [Cheers.]

On Oct. 24 this question was first formally discussed by the War Cabinet. There was further pressure from the French Government, and Sir William Robertson gave his views as to the time which the British Government ought to take, and this conclusion is recorded in the minutes of the War Cabinet as follows:

"The War Cabinet approve of the suggestion of the Chief of the Imperial Staff that he should reply to Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig in the following sense: The War Cabinet are of the opinion that in deciding to what extent the British troops can take over the line from the French regard must be had to the necessity of giving them a reasonable opportunity for leave, rest, and training during the Winter months and to the plan of operations for the next year, and, further, while the present offensive continues it will not be possible to commence taking over more line.

"Under these circumstances the War Cabinet fear that until this policy is settled it will be premature to decide finally whether the British front is to be extended by four divisions or to greater or lesser extent."

That resolution was communicated to Sir Douglas Haig by Sir William Robertson, and we never departed from it. After that came the Cambrai incident and the Italian disaster, which necessitated our sending troops to Italy. That made it difficult for the Field Marshal to carry out the promise he made to General Pétain for a certain extension of the front. Then the present French Prime Minister came in, and he is not a very easy gentleman to refuse. [Laughter.] He was very insistent that the British Army should take over the line.

Clemenceau Suggested Versailles.

We stood by the position that that was a matter to be discussed by the two Commanders in Chief. We never swerved from that position. At last M. Clemenceau suggested that the question should be discussed by the military representatives at Versailles, and that the Versailles Council should decide if there was any difference of opinion. The military representatives discussed the question, and the only interference of the War Cabinet was to this extent. We communicated with the Chief of Staff, who was then in France, and with Sir Douglas Haig to urge on them the importance of preparing their case for the other side so as to make the strongest possible case for the British view.

The military representatives at Versailles suggested a compromise, but coupled with it recommendations as to steps which ought to be taken by the French Army to assist the British if they were attacked, and by the British to assist the French if they were attacked, which was even a more important question than the extension of the front. [Cheers.]

That recommendation came up for discussion at the Versailles council of Feb. 1. Before that meeting Sir Douglas Haig and General Pétain met and entered into an agreement as to the extension of the front to Brissy, and Sir Douglas Haig reported that to the Versailles council. When the discussion took place there no further extension of the line was taken at all as a result of the discussion.

That is the whole story. [Cheers.] I was to make it perfectly clear that in the action Sir Douglas Haig took for the extension of the line he had the full approval of the British Cabinet, having regard to the pressure of the French Government and military authorities. Sir Douglas Haig had no option except to make the extension. He was in our judgment absolutely right in the course he took. Naturally, he would have preferred not to have done it, but the British Government fully approved of the action he took.

I am not sorry that this opportunity has been given to read out the actual conclusions of the War Cabinet, in order to disperse once and for all the rumors which have been circulated by persons, for purposes of their own, [cheers,] by men who, for one reason or another, do not like the present Chief of Staff or the present Chief of the British Ministry.

The real lesson of the discussion is the importance of unity of command. It would never have arisen if you had had that. Instead of one army and one commander responsible for one part of the line, and another army and another commander responsible for another part of the line, we have one united command responsible for the whole and every part. It was the only method of safety, and I am glad we have it at last. [Cheers.]

It was not so much a question of the length of the line held by one force or the length held by another. It was a question of reserves massed behind.

Effect on Army Discipline.

Before I sit down there are one or two general considerations I should like to say something about. The first is the effect that such action as that of General Maurice must have upon the discipline of the army. [Cheers.] It was a flagrant breach of army discipline. My right honorable friend opposite admitted it, and I wish he had deprecated it. [Cheers.] I say most respectfully I think he ought to have done it. He has been responsible for the conduct of the war for two years, and if this motion is carried he will again be responsible for the conduct of the war.

Insists on Test of Censure.

Make no mistake about it. This is a vote of censure upon the Government. If this motion is carried we could not possibly continue operations, and the right honorable gentleman, as the one responsible for the motion, would have to take the responsibility for the Government. It is essential, having regard to that position, that he should deprecate the action taken by General Maurice.

What does it mean? It is not merely a flagrant breach of the King's regulations, but he avows it. He says: "I know what I am doing." He is a General in a high position. Suppose a regimental officer or ordinary soldier did a thing like this!

After all, they have got their own views about their superiors. Sometimes they are right and sometimes they are wrong, but they disagree as to the wisdom of certain actions. A soldier might even challenge the accuracy of statements made by his superiors. He might also write to the papers and say that "grave statements have been made by my superiors, and it is my duty not as a soldier but as a citizen to say so. It is my duty because I am a democrat and because my grandfather was a democrat. [Laughter.] It is my duty to forget the King's regulations and discipline and write this.".

I wonder what would have been said if a poor, ordinary soldier did this sort of thing? And this is a new army. That must not be forgotten. It is an army where you cannot possibly give the time, as in the case of a regular army, to harden their fibres in discipline. It is to an army of this kind that a high, distinguished officer sets an example by saying: "Although I am a soldier, I am first of all a citizen, and, therefore, I am going to break the king's regulations."

That means that it is for him to judge the importance of the occasion that is fatal to discipline. [Cheers.]

Each man naturally thinks his own grievance far more important than anything else. That is human nature, and every foot soldier, every regimental officer will say: "My case is a much stronger one than General Maurice's, and we live in a democratic country." In General Maurice saying, "I am a good democrat," we have got before us an example of the democracy which is being humiliated and trampled upon because it has forgotten discipline in the army. [Cheers.] Is this the time to show such an example by a distinguished officer who has held some of the most confidential positions in the army? At any rate, he ought to have tried everything before he did this. [Cheers.] Did he? [Cries of "no."] Did he first come to the person to whom he wanted to correct? Never.

He was a friend of mine and he was in this House the very day when I made the speech. I was seeing him continually every week and almost every day. Surely before setting an example of indiscipline he might first of all have tried to correct me and said: "Would you mind putting this right?" He might, if I were obdurate, have said: "Here am I sitting at the War Cabinet, and in spite of the fact that it is not my position to do so I will talk here." There would not have been much mischief in that, but he ought at least to have asked his chief to do it before trampling upon discipline, which is the life of the army.

Australians Condemn Maurice.

He ought to have exhausted everything else first. Not a word of depreciation of that from my right honorable friend opposite. [Cheers.] I have had communications from the army, from officers and soldiers. I have had communications from the Australian soldiers today on the subject, who met informally and who repudiated in the strongest manner this sort of action. [Cheers.] When we talk about the army, the army is not two or three men. The army is five millions of men, and it is vitally important that discipline should be maintained.

There is a letter which appeared in one of the papers today, not a letter but a quotation from a French newspaper, which I will read to the House. This paper says:

"France is more than any other a democratic country. Well, we declare roundly that no one in France will understand General Maurice's action."

Mr. Snowden—What paper?

Mr. Lloyd George—La Liberté. [Loud laughter.] The quotation proceeded:

"No more on the Left than on the Right, still less on the Left than on the Right, no French party would admit that in the midst of war a General on active service should permit himself to raise his voice in public to contradict the Government. With all respect to this General, what is calculated to diminish the morale of the troops is not that Ministers should in good faith have stated what is not the fact in regard to the extension of the British front, but that a chief hitherto respected should have thought it his duty to commit an act of indiscipline so glaring that even in our democratic country it would have been considered a scandal.

"It is not for an officer to seek himself to place his duty as a citizen before his duty as a soldier."

Appeals for End of Disputes.

That is the view of a democratic country like France. May I say that I wonder whether it is worth my while making another appeal to all sections of this House, to all sections of the country. These controversies are distracting, [cheers] they are paralyzing, they are rending, and I do beg that they should come to an end. [Cheers.] It is difficult enough for Ministers to do their work.

This is really a sort of remnant of the controversy over individual command, which lasted practically for months. Unity of command, the national unity, is threatened. The army unity is threatened by this controversy. Days have been occupied in hunting up records, minutes, letters proces verbals, interviews, and in raking up what had happened over the whole twelve months in the War Cabinet, and this at this moment! [Cheers.]

I have just come back from France. I have visited some of the Generals, and they were telling me how now the Germans are silently preparing perhaps the biggest blow of the war, under a shroud of mystery. They asked me for certain help. I have brought home a list of the things which they wanted done. I want to attend to them and I beg, I really beg, for our common cause, the fate of which is in the balance, now in the next few weeks—I beg and implore that there should be an end to this sniping. [Loud and prolonged cheers.]

ASQUITH TOLD HIS PURPOSE.

He Urged Inquiry to Clear Up All Misunderstandings.

LONDON, May 9.—In presenting his motion in the House of Commons for the appointment of a select committee to investigate the charges made by General Maurice, ex-Premier Asquith said that he thought it was not the business of Parliament to inquire constantly into the conduct of successive phases of the war. The House of Commons, he added, had more than enough of such inquiries already.

Mr. Asquith denied that his motion was designed to obtain a vote of censure of the Government, saying that it was absurd to describe it as such. Should he find it his duty to censure the Government, he said, he hoped that he would have the courage to do so in a direct and unequivocal form.

Mr. Asquith said that when he put down his motion he thought that it would be accepted by the Government. He had never yet given an adverse vote on any proposal made by the Government. He had endeavored to help the Government in the prosecution of the war and in defining the great purposes of the war and the peace for which the Allies were struggling.

Neither he nor his colleagues, Mr. Asquith asserted, had been concerned in the composition or publication of General Maurice's letter. If, as he saw, the Government intended to state the facts, it would be anticipating the conclusions of any tribunal and would be only an ex parte statement.

Urges a Select Committee.

The former Premier said that he knew many of his friends had thought he had been fainthearted in this matter, and that there were persons other than his friends who thought of him as being devoured by impatience to resume office.

"I am quite content," he added, "to leave judgment of that kind to the House and my fellow-countrymen."

Unless an act of Parliament were passed, he said, the tribunal of judges proposed for an inquiry into the Maurice affair would have no compulsory powers of any kind. He considered it far better to adopt the familiar machinery of a select committee from the House.

The Government's proposal for a court of honor amounted to an admission that an inquiry was necessary, and that the matters raised were so secret that they could not be discussed even by a select committee. He asked whether the Government still thought an inquiry was necessary or that the case could be considered without the presentation of secret documents.

The suggestion was made by Mr. Asquith that an investigation be made by a no-party committee of five members, which probably would be able to reach in two or three days a decision that would be respected by the House and the country.

"What is the alternative?" he asked.

"Get on with the war!" C. B. Stanton, a Labor member, interrupted. This interjection was greeted with loud cheers.

Mr. Asquith responded that the best way to get on with the war was to clear away misconceptions and misunderstandings which might have no foundation, but created doubt in the minds of all.

Mr. Asquith concluded:

"I suggest to the House that in the common interest of the Government themselves, the army, the State, the Allies, and of unhampered prosecution of the war, a tribunal of inquiry be set up which from its constitution and power would be able to give prompt, decisive, and authoritative judgment. I hope that in regard to some of these matters there has been a genuine and honest misunderstanding."

Mr. Bonar Law suggested that he knew of no member of the House who was not either friendly or unfriendly to the Government and would not start with prejudice.

Mr. Asquith said:

"I am sorry to hear the Chancellor of the Exchequer, as leader of this house and custodian and trustee of its great traditions, should think it right or even decent to suggest that you cannot get five men who are not so steeped in party prejudice that upon a pure issue of fact they cannot be trusted to give judgment. I leave it there."

Carson Would Drop Matter.

Sir Edward Carson deprecated an inquiry either by two Judges or a special committee, but would, if compelled to choose between them, prefer the latter. He besought the House to take stock of where they stood and ask themselves whether they were being of service to the country or the Allies by a continuance of the debate.

'If the Prime Minister and other Ministers are not able to assert their own veracity and be believed in the House," he said, "there is no longer any possibility of carrying on the Government."

He appealed to Mr. Asquith, who, he said, "has always acted in a patriotic way on every occasion, not to proceed with the motion in the interest of the country, of the dignity of the House, and the relations between the civil and military powers, as well as an example to the people of the country, who are going through a very trying time. "They should close up their ranks," he concluded.

Lord Hugh Cecil, member of the Privy Council, said that the Premier had made a brilliant speech that was more effective as an attack on General Maurice than as a defense of the Government. He appealed to the Government not to cling to office, but when convinced that they could not command a great body of the national support, without which any Government is useless in time of war, they should resign and so enable it to be seen whether a stronger Government could not be formed.

After he had spoken, a few minor members made brief remarks, when, amid cries of "Divide!" closure was proposed and accepted.

PRESS CALLS CRISIS WORST OF FIASCOS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, May 10.—The Times says:

"We shall still believe in the patriotism of General Maurice's motives, but it seems charitable now to assume that he has been made the instrument of abler and less honorable men. As for the questions of fact the Prime Minister's case was overwhelming—and we retain all our old conviction that he is not the best exponent of an overwhelming case."

The Daily Mail says: "If it is amazing that Maurice should have written such a letter, it is hardly less amazing that Asquith should have swallowed it with such greedy incredulity."

The Daily Telegraph speaks of "the ignominious collapse" of this latest attack on the Government, and says: "If it comes to comparing fiascos, this last may be considered the most futile."

The Daily News says: "The fact that still remains in the mind of the public after this display of political pyrotechnics is that Lloyd George has burked an inquiry into charges affecting his own honor and the honor of Parliament. The charges contained in Maurice's letter remain unaffected by yesterday's melodrama. A plain accusation has been spirited away by a trick of legerdemain."

The Daily Express says: "There cannot now be the smallest doubt that the Maurice letter was as unjustified as it was irregular, or that the subsequent attacks have been inspired by nothing but envy, malice, and uncharitableness."

The Chronicle says: "The Prime Minister's speech was a most effective debating effort, but as a contribution to determining the facts its value was inevitably restricted. One cannot establish a disputed issue of fact by ex parte statement from one side, however effective, and the needed documentary evidence could not be adduced for reasons of secrecy."

The Chronicle points out that Lloyd George skimmed very lightly over his implication that Haig's strength between January, 1918, and March 21, 1918, had not been diminished, and Maurice's denial that that implication was in accord with the facts and similarly with regard to the number of white troops in the eastern theatres.

The Morning Post asks the Prime Minister the following question: "How does he reconcile his statement of April 9 that the British Army was stronger on Jan. 1, 1918, than on Jan. 1, 1917, and his statement of yesterday that from January, 1918, to March 21, 1918, it increased in strength, with the fact, which is common knowledge, that before March 21 the infantry brigades, the main fighting arm, had been reduced from four battalions to three, so that the strength of the infantry divisions were reduced from twelve battalions to nine battalions, a reduction of 25 per cent.?"

paume, and the docks and mole at Zeebrugge.

Strenuous fighting took place throughout the day, twenty-two hostile machines being driven down, seven were compelled to alight out of control and one was shot down by machine gunfire from the ground. Seven of our machines are missing.

Owing to the mist, only a few of our airplanes were able to go out after dark. A ton of bombs, however, was dropped on railway stations at Douai and Marcoing. All the machines returned.

Plan for Big Assault Spoiled.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 9, (Associated Press.)—The Germans had intended to make a much more pretentious assault in Flanders yesterday than they were able to carry out. Their failure was due to the work of the allied gunners and to a small operation by the French east of Scherpenberg, which came at the right moment to help upset the enemy plans.

The German attack as actually executed lay, roughly, between La Clytte and Voormezeele. Details which have come to hand would indicate that the enemy had intended to attack with five divisions on a wider front, mainly between Locre and the Ypres-Comines Canal, and it is possible that this drive was meant to be the forerunner of a smash to push up west of Ypres and thereby threaten the British hold on the ruined city.

Before the battle started in earnest several things happened. Along the Ypres-Comines Canal an unusual movement among the enemy brought a tremendous barrage from the British guns against a German division. It appeared later that the enemy had been assembling here to participate in the attack, and was so badly smashed that the idea of their taking part was abandoned.

Along the front between Locre and La Clytte, the French had their eyes open and began a heavy bombardment. The French also undertook a small operation for the capture of a position east of Scherpenberg Hill. The combination of circumstances spoiled the whole German scheme.

SAYS BRITISH WERE REPULSED.

German Headquarters Statement Claims Several Successes.

BERLIN, May 9, (via London.)—The official statement issued by the War Office today reads:

During the repulse of English advances on the southern bank of the Lys, near Bucquoy, and south of Albert, we took a number of prisoners.

During yesterday's unsuccessful night attack by Australian troops on the Corbie-Bray road forty-five prisoners, including four officers, remained in our hands.

North of the Luce and on the western bank of the Avre the artillery battle continues to be lively.

On the rest of the front there were successful reconnoitring advances at several points.

The enemy has lost thirty-seven airplanes in the last few days in aerial fighting and by fire from our anti-aircraft guns.

AVRE GUNS KEEP POUNDING.

PARIS, May 9.—Tonight's bulletin of the War Office says:

There was marked activity by both artilleries on the Hailles-Montdidier front.

The day report of the War Office reads:

Spirited artillery fighting occurred last night north and south of the Avre.

German patrols attempting to approach our lines in the region of Campelle St. Aignan were repulsed.

GERMAN CHIEFS AT ODDS?

Rumor Says Hertling Is Opposing Military Leaders.

LONDON, May 9.—Former influential officers in the German Army, supporters of General von Moltke, the former Chief of Staff, are agitating against Field Marshal von Hindenburg on the ground that the German successes on the western front have not reached expectations, according to reports in The Hague, transmitted under reserve by the correspondent of The Daily Mail.

Another report which, according to the correspondent, appears to have some foundation, is that a sharp conflict of opinion has arisen between Field Marshal von Hindenburg, General Ludendorff, and the Crown Prince on one side and Chancellor von Hertling and Foreign Secretary von Kühlmann on the other. The Emperor, after considerable wavering, is said to have inclined to von Hertling's side, although hesitatingly.

DENIES PEACE MISSION.

Colyn Says His Trip to London Was on Business of Oil Company.

AMSTERDAM, May 9.—On his return from England, former Minister of War Colyn stated to the Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant, when asked as to rumors that he went there in connection with a reported peace mission, that his business in England was in the interest of an oil company of which he is manager.

Regarding the coupling of his name with peace rumors, he said he was in entire accord with what Foreign Secretary Balfour said in Parliament on Monday when he stated that there was no representative of a neutral nation in England for the purpose of making suggestions of peace negotiations.

JAILS GERMAN SOCIALISTS.

But Leipsic Court Imposes Light Sentence in High Treason Case.

AMSTERDAM, May 9.—Twelve Dresden members of the Independent Socialist Party of Germany have been convicted of high treason by the Imperial Court at Leipsic, a dispatch from that city to the Vorwärts of Berlin reports.

They distributed pamphlets last year advocating the overthrow of the German Empire, and helped to bring about the strikes of last Summer, advocating them as a means of obtaining peace.

They were sentenced to penal servitude, for terms varying from eighteen months to eight years.

LANSING MAKES DENIAL TO RUSSIA

RUSSIAN DEMAND ON PARIS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Secretary Lansing has instructed Ambassador Francis at Vologda, Russia, to communicate informally to the Soviet Foreign Office a denial of its charge that the American Consul at Vladivostok had interfered in Russia's internal affairs by assisting anti-Bolshevist movements, it was learned at the State Department today.

The informal relations subsisting between the Soviet republic and the United States do not constitute recognition of the former's Government by this country.

MOSCOW, May 4.—(Associated Press.)—The recall of Joseph J. B. E. Noulens, the French Ambassador, is demanded by Foreign Minister Tchitcherin because of statements said to have been made by the Ambassador. The note from the Soviet Foreign Office reads:

> The statements made by M. Noulens in the tragic days of Russia's living wrongs hardly can be conducive to friendly relations between the French and Russian peoples. The representative of the French Government is aggravating the relations between France and Russia and cannot be tolerated within the limits of the Russian Republic.
> The Government of the Russian Federated Socialist Republic expresses the conviction that M. Noulens will be immediately recalled by the Government of the French Republic.

Ambassador Noulens, a dispatch from Moscow dated April 25 said, had declared a few days previously that Germany was trying to gain economic control of all Russia and that if the Allies, in response to that menace, were forced to take military action, it would be friendly assistance without thought of conquest or interference in the internal affairs of Russia.

Foreign Minister Tchitcherin in a statement in reply, the same dispatch said, asserted that such assistance was not desired by the Russian masses, who would regard it as an armed invasion.

ALL-DAY FIGHT AT MOSCOW.

Bolshevist Forces Storm Munition Depots of Anarchists.

ZURICH, May 9.—Kiev newspapers received here describe an all-day battle between the anarchists and the Bolsheviki at Moscow, resulting from the imprisonment of 400 anarchists in the Kremlin.

The fighting was caused by a refusal of the anarchists to surrender great quantities of munitions and machine guns. The Bolshevist forces stormed the places where the munitions were stored.

The newspapers estimate that there are 60,000 anarchists living in Moscow.

KREMLIN TREASURE LOOTED.

Contained Jewels and Precious Stones Valued at $10,000,000.

PETROGRAD, April 10, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The famous Patriarchal Treasure House in the Kremlin at Moscow has been looted.

The Treasure House is the repository of many sacred treasures, including the reputed shroud of Christ, a robe alleged to have been worn by the Virgin Mary, one of the nails from the cross, and a painting said to have been done by St. Luke. Its jewels and precious stones were said to be worth nearly $10,000,000.

FOCH MEANS VICTORY, SAYS LORD DERBY

PARIS, May 9.—Lord Derby, the new British Ambassador to France in succession to Lord Bertie, made his first public speech since his arrival at Paris at the monthly luncheon given today by the Anglo-American Press Association. Stephen Pichon, Minister for Foreign Affairs; Mr. Sharp, the American Ambassador, and the foreign editors of leading Paris newspapers were present.

Replying to Elmer Roberts, Paris correspondent of The Associated Press, who presided, and had referred to the Earl's ancestry, the Ambassador said that no credit was due him for following the lines of tradition, but he said that there was a man, President Wilson, who made ancestry for himself and set an example for the New World.

Old alliances, Lord Derby said, were always difficult to control, but the present alliance was not difficult because it had only one aim. The Ambassador continued:

"We have attained a unique command which was not as easy to attain as might be thought, as it is difficult for one nation to put its army under the control of another, but there is not one man in the country who does not think the right thing was done when Field Marshal Haig placed his troops under General Foch in absolute loyalty, born of absolute confidence in the commander in chief. Under Foch is the surest road to victory."

The worst thing to do to the press, the Ambassador said, was to lecture it. It had always lectured him, and he had received the lectures with humility. He said that he hoped the newspapers would realize that the methods of one country could not be applied to another. Difficulties must exist, but each ally was doing its best.

There always was, Lord Derby said, an undercurrent of tittle-tattle of irresponsible people, influences which might become a danger or might create a torrent of mistrust. Such innuendoes, the Ambassador said, came from Germans trying to set the Allies against each other, and whoever repeated them was aiding the Germans.

QUEEN MARIE DEFIANT.

Won't Recognize German-Rumanian Treaty, Berlin Papers Say.

AMSTERDAM, May 9.—Queen Marie of Rumania, according to German newspapers, has publicly announced that she will never recognize the peace treaty between Rumania and Germany. Her Majesty says she would rather abdicate than reign over a country under German rule.

The Queen's children are of the same opinion, and they never lose an opportunity, the newspapers add, of insulting the Germans in Rumania.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The fighting in Flanders has been renewed, but only on a small scale. The Germans delivered a strong local attack between La Clytte and Voormezeele, using two divisions of troops for the purpose. The attack appears to have centralized about midway between these two places. From this we can glean something of the German object. Like all of the allied attacks during the past week, the German intention was to effect a local improvement in their position. The centre of the storm was about Vierstraat, which has been frequently mentioned in this column. This little town is near the tip of the high ground which breaks off from the main hill positions and extends northward to Ridge Wood, where it terminates. This wood is situated on the northern slopes of the high ground and extends down to the level of the plains. The German intention was to take this last bit of high ground between the Messines Ridge and the Mont Kemmel positions. This in itself would accomplish little, but it would put the Germans further to the rear of the defenses of Scherpenberg, from which point a further extension might enable them to conduct their favored enveloping movement.

At the point of most severe fighting the Germans succeeded in advancing their lines slightly, pushing the allied line back to the tip of the hill and penetrating on the east to the edge of the Ridge Wood position. Both flanks, however, held fast, the French, who held the left flank under attack, even pushing forward against the German attack and advancing their lines south of La Clytte along the road to Kemmel. Later, however, a British counterattack at the point where the gain was made succeeded in re-establishing the lines at their former point, so that the situation as a result of the German attack remained unchanged.

Failing here, the Germans attacked in still another place. This time it was along the edge of the high ground just north of Kemmel, where the main ridge slopes down toward the east to the plain. The attack here was also productive of a slight gain in territory, but once again counterattacks completely restored the situation. At latest reports, the fighting still continued. But as in the first case, the object was nothing more than to feel out the allied line and at the same time to effect a local improvement in position. As a matter of fact, had these actions occurred at any other place and during any other time, they would not be regarded as anything more than the usual sporadic activity which has marked the western front for the past two years and a half.

The British in the meantime have continued their pressure against the German positions between the Somme and the Ancre Rivers in the general region of Villers-Bretonneux. The results have been small, resulting in a gain of a few hundred yards here and there. These small gains, however, do materially improve the British situation, as they strengthen the British grip on the plateaus which have on several occasions been mentioned in this column as exercising a strong influence on the fighting in this particular zone. Further south the French continue to report heavy artillery firing. This may mean nothing or it may mean the preliminaries of another German attack. There have been no indications as yet, however, that this is the German intention beyond the fact that heavy concentrations of men have been reported on the front between Arras and the Montdidier salient. But whether the Germans really intend to attack here or whether they will first make another attempt to clear out the Ypres salient is not at all clear. As was stated yesterday, there are many arguments for both sides of the question. An attack in either place holds out great advantages if successful, and the Germans are keeping well in the dark all idea as to which offers to them the greater temptation.

There are those who contend that Germany feels that she has been stopped in the West and that she will make no further attempts there, but will turn her attention to Italy in an effort to get a decision on the Italian front. That heavy fighting may be resumed on the Italian front is far from impossible. But that Germany will forsake her offensive in France for a drive against Italy is far from reasonable. Germany can never defeat England and France through either the Trentino or from along the Piave. She may cause discouragement up to a certain point, which would be a moral victory of a temporary nature, but a military decision does not lie in this field. If Germany should attack Italy and permit her offensive on the western front to lapse, it would be a tacit, but none the less forcible, admission of her own defeat. This, for many reasons, Germany cannot afford to make.

She must continue in France, and there can be but little doubt that is what she is preparing to do. And when the battle does blaze out we may look for one of the fiercest and most determined battles of the war. The very length of time which has been permitted to elapse since the last attack at Mont Kemmel signifies enormous preparations. And when this attack is launched it is not too much to say that upon the result hangs the fate of the war.

ITALIAN SHIPOWNER SEIZED AS TRAITOR

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 9.—Public opinion is excited by the arrest of Commander Vittorio Emanuele Parodi, multi-millionaire shipowner, on the charge of trading with the enemy. He is accused of exporting jute to Austria and Germany through Switzerland under the guise of hemp. Several other arrests are expected. The plot was revealed through a recent raid at Como.

The confidence of the public was shaken at first by this arrest of a man of such standing and influence as Parodi, but the action of the Government has had the best effect as proving that it will not hesitate to strike at the most powerful personages and interests when the safety and integrity of the country are involved.

Parodi is reported to have made a profit of $7,000,000 in a few days by the sale of steamships urgently needed to help supply the country with foodstuffs. It appears, according to the charges found against him, that he was a partner of two Germans named Vogel and Telch in one of the largest ropemaking plants in Italy, which was seized by the Government after war had been declared, but that this did not prevent him from keeping up an indirect correspondence with them in Germany, and in this way organizing the exportation of jute by false declarations of the nature of the consignments.

BAYONET OUR MEN AFTER KILLING

This shows how they keep in touch with what is going on. Of all the soldiers, too, they have the best personal conception of what they are fighting for. They are businesslike, know they have a big task, and tackle it as such. When one gets to know them personally they invariably have one request:

"Tell them to hurry up back home. We need all the men and all the tools we can get to do this job right."

I have just completed a trip through the American sectors of the battlefront, and found that the success of the Third Liberty Loan had caused the greatest rejoicing. This was not so much because of the success in raising the quota, for that was never doubted, but because the subscriptions showed that some parts of the United States which had not been enthusiastic for other Liberty Loans had shown in the third loan that they had awakened to the war situation.

If there is one message that every American soldier, from General Pershing to the doughboy in the front trenches, wishes the correspondents to send back home as often as possible, it is the absolute necessity of the concentration and unification of the war effort of the American people. The man who faces the guns of the enemy wants Americans to forget peace talk and win the war, letting peace take care of itself. It is because the success of the Third Liberty Loan shows that the whole nation is getting down to business that the men over here are encouraged.

I talked yesterday with a young Corporal who has been doing front-line duty for several months and is the son of a prominent Chicagoan. He said:

"The way the Americans came across with the new Liberty Loan shows that we are going to have good teamwork. With good teamwork, there is nothing that Americans cannot accomplish, I believe. Teamwork means no more disappointments on the part of our country. They are going to make good, sure."

This feeling was found to be general.

There are two things about this war that soldiers who have been in France some time want the folks at home to realize. The first is the size of the undertaking and the second the need of abandoning the talk about the German people not being responsible for the war, but the Kaiser and the Junkers being only to blame.

The soldiers are now confident that the country has awakened to the size of the war, but they are weary of the repeated talk about the German in the ranks being a victim of a Junker conspiracy. Whether or not he is in the last analysis, the American soldier knows that the German in the ranks is the one that must be beaten, and other considerations are subordinate.

DRIVE OFF A GERMAN PATROL.

Americans Not Deceived by New Trick of the Enemy.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 9. (By Associated Press)—A large German patrol attempted to rush the American positions on the Picardy front last night, but was driven off.

The enemy patrol parties were active during the night, and one German, pretending to be wounded, lay outside the wire entanglements before an American position beseeching help. He was acting as a screen for others, who were armed with hand grenades.

The Germans, failing to entice the Americans from their trenches, attacked, but the Americans made it so hot for them that they fled in confusion. Their casualties are believed to have been comparatively heavy.

The roar of heavy artillery continues day and night in this sector.

WAR CROSS FOR KANSAS MAN.

Kills One German and Captures Three in Patrol Fight.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 9.—(Associated Press.)—Second Lieutenant Henry Cassidy of Wichita, Kan., a former athlete, was decorated with the War Cross today for bravery in a recent patrol engagement at Anservillers.

During the attack a German noncommissioned officer pointed his rifle at Cassidy and called to him to surrender. Cassidy refused, and then killed the German. He then flashed his light down into a dugout and forced three German occupants to come out with uplifted hands.

Today was quiet along the Lorraine front and northwest of Toul. A dozen German airplanes attempted to cross the American lines, but were repulsed by the fire of anti-aircraft guns.

FRENCH HONOR AMERICANS.

Decorate Flags of Companies That Repulsed Toul Attack.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 9, (Associated Press.)—The flags of Companies I and L of the 9th United States Infantry were decorated with the French War Cross today in recognition of the repulse of a German attack along the Heights of the Meuse, south of Verdun, on April 14, when enemy raiders, some disguised as French soldiers, entered the American trenches and gave the alarm that a gas attack was in progress.

The two companies of the 9th attacked the Germans, killed sixty-one of them and took prisoners.

NEW TAXES MAKE ALL FRANCE SQUIRM

MODIFICATION IS ASKED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 9.—The new tax on what are termed luxuries, which came into effect a few weeks ago, is raising a storm of protest on the part of traders, now that its full effects are manifesting themselves.

The tax amounts to 10 per cent. on goods of all classes which are sold above a certain fixed price. Thus, suits of clothes for men are free of tax up to a sales price of $30, but above that figure a duty of 10 per cent. is imposed on the full price, so that the purchaser of a suit sold at $40 is called on to pay an extra $4 as tax. Women's dresses are free up to $50, men's shoes up to $8, women's to $6.50, and children's to $5.

Practically every class of commodity is touched by the new tax, and not merely jewelry and similar articles, which are universally recognized as luxuries. France more than any other country is keenly susceptible to taxes of this kind from the fact that she possesses more purely luxury trades than any other part of the world.

Various trade organizations are now earnestly discussing the new taxes, and a movement is well under way to bring pressure to bear on the Government with the view, if not of getting the tax abolished altogether, at least of obtaining its modification. The chief objection raised is that the manner in which the tax is levied has already had the effect of seriously reducing the turnover in practically every class of trade.

A resolution passed yesterday by the Lyons Chamber of Commerce urges the Government to substitute for the new tax an increased levy on the traders themselves by way of an increased charge for the license to carry on trade which practically every trader in France must take out every year. The movement against the new luxury tax is gathering strength so rapidly that there is little doubt that serious Government action will be taken during the next few days.

The next shock to which Paris is looking forward in connection with restrictions is three meatless days per week, which commence next week, when it will be impossible to buy any kind of meat in shops or restaurants on Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays, except horseflesh, which horse butchers will be allowed to sell as a concession to the poorer and less well-nourished classes. But, even horseflesh will be prohibited in restaurants. We already have cards for bread, coal and several other commodities, and now it is proposed to institute cards for firewood as well as for tobacco.

ARCHIE ROOSEVELT WALKING

But the Time of His Discharge from Hospital Is Uncertain.

PARIS, May 9.—Captain Archie Roosevelt, who was wounded by shell fragments on March 7, has sufficently recovered to take walks.

He says that he is feeling fine and wants to return to the front, but it is uncertain when he will be discharged from the hospital.

AMERICAN WARSHIP SINKS A SUBMARINE

Shot Which Hit U-Boat Lifted Her Out of the Water and Broke Her in Two.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, May 9.—The sinking of a German submarine by a United States warship with a shot which lifted the U-boat completely out of the water and broke her in two was reported by officers of the ship on arrival here today. Because of the fine work of the gunners the crew of the ship received an additional furlough of ten days.

On the voyage over the warship, which previously was reported from German sources as having been wrecked, sighted three submarines and the gunners got busy. The first two shots from the warship fired in quick succession at the nearest enemy missed the mark, but the third went home. It caught the U-boat just below the water line and she was lifted out of the water, doubled up and sank to the accompaniment of a chorus of yells from the warship crew.

No survivors were seen in the water and the other submarines, as the destroyed submersible disappeared, dived and did not reappear.

ITALY SPURNS PROPAGANDA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 9.—"The Central Empires are without doubt trying to launch one of their greatest peace propagandas," said a well-known Deputy, an officer in the Italian Army, twice decorated for valor, when questioned about the rumors of peace movements emanating from all the capitals of the Entente.

"Germany's aim," he continued, "is to demoralize thoroughly the armies and populations of the allied countries and then to attack with overwhelming forces the weakest point on the allied front. These intrigues will absolutely fail, as England, France, and Italy have seen through the plans and are all determined to fight until victory.

"The Austrians have begun again their distribution in the trenches of false Italian newspapers with faked, alarming news, having the object of discouraging the soldiers, but they succeed only in causing irritation and anger against the enemy.

"One of the chief arguments of this Austro-German propaganda is an attempt to convince Italians that America is only bluffing, pointing out the delay with which her promised assistance is reaching the theatre of war. This palpable lie also makes no impression, being scorned by our soldiers, owing to the many evidences to the contrary."

BOGUS PEACE OFFER MADE TO AMERICAN

Friend of Hertling Gets a Savage Reply to Proposals Meant to Reach the President.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, May 10.—The Daily Mail's Annemasse correspondent asserts that three weeks ago the German Government decided to hold out "certain insidious and bogus offers of peace" to the United States through Professor Heron, an American living in Geneva, whose book, "The Menace of Peace," gained for him the friendship of President Wilson.

On April 19 Professor Quidde of Munich, a friend of Count von Hertling, visited Heron and declared his object was to prepare the way for a merciful peace. He gave Heron to understand that he spoke in the name of Hertling and the German Foreign Office, assured Heron that the peace party in the Reichstag was on the eve of getting predominance in Germany, and that he wished him to prepare President Wilson to take advantage of the auspicious moment.

When pressed to define Germany's terms of peace, he said that Germany was ready, first, to grant Alsace-Lorraine at a peace conference. Second, the Brest-Litovsk peace treaties were not to be raised at the peace conference, but the Allies were to be allowed to put their claims for revision on the council table for discussion. Germany might, thereupon, perhaps, make certain concessions. Third, there was to be no economic war against Germany after the war. Fourth, the German colonies were to be restored.

"I cannot imagine how you can have the effrontery," Professor Heron burst out, "to ask me to lay such a rigamarole of cant and deceit before the American people. So far from creating a spirit of conciliation, it would simply strengthen the American will to smash the perfidious and nefarious authors of such proposals forever. I tell you and those who send you that the United States intends to go on fighting till the Prussian military power and, if necessary, the Prussian State along with it, is extinguished forever as a power for evil, no matter whether it takes one year or ten.

"If you call the remorseless sacrifice of 2,000,000 men a peace offensive and if you want the United States to recognize your shelling of a Parisian congregation as a part of it, you are making a monstrous and most foolish blunder. I tell you that when I listen to your false and treacherous overtures, I feel ashamed of humanity."

PARIS, May 9.—The agreement for the exchange of prisoners of war between France and Germany, reached at Berne, has been officially ratified by the German Government.

The agreement will be made effective May 18, after which prisoners over the age of 48 years will be returned to their own countries.

AMIENS DESOLATE LIKE PLAGUE CITY

shell storm, and a dangerous fire that threatened ten days ago to involve a wide area was efficiently limited and extinguished.

"That was our worst experience," said a French officer who conducted THE TIMES correspondent through the city this morning. "The boche incendiary shells fired a block of buildings and the column of smoke and flame gave him a point to shoot at during two days and one night. The enemy evidently hoped to put the conflagration beyond our control, as he concentrated for a time high explosive and incendiary shells thereupon. We even received gas shells, but the firemen refused to be daunted. Taking into consideration the size of the original outbreak and the difficulties produced by a broken water main, our fire chief reckoned that the salvage work and the extinction of flames were accomplished more rapidly than at a normal city fire."

A few minutes later I reached the locality in question and was surprised by the small extent of the damage. A group of buildings that would, perhaps, comprise half a block in New York had been gutted, but one would never have imagined that the firemen were laboring under an abnormal handicap.

Finally I visited the cathedral in the centre of the city, around which ruin and desolation are most pronounced. With characteristic savagery the Germans seem to be directing their fire against the edifice that with Rheims and Chartres ranks highest in the Gothic architecture of France. No small proportion of the 7,000 shells and aerial torpedoes that have been rained upon Amiens day and night for seventeen days have fallen in the neighborhood of the cathedral. At one point its outer railings have been shattered. At another only the sandbags, the outer layer of which is torn to ribbons by iron splinters, have saved a masterpiece of portal statuary from destruction.

While a building adjoining has been reduced to mere shells, so far the cathedral has suffered comparatively little. As if by a miracle, none of the shells that actually struck it has caused the damage normally wrought by large calibre high explosive missiles. Some of them spent their force harmlessly against the outer buttresses. Another crashed the wall of a small side chapel, threw down the altar, and destroyed a great ivory Christ and the carved woodwork beside it. But it did not injure the main building.

One penetrated part of the superstructure and the outer and inner roofs only to pierce (without exploding) the floor just outside the central nave, which Ruskin called the finest in the world. Another tore through the outer roof of the nave itself, but exploded against a gigantic beam which prevented its access to the interior. Another burst against the massive outwork of the side chapel near the main entrance and did little harm beyond causing a rain of dust and minute fragments over a large part of the interior. The seven towering stained glass windows are for the most part intact. There are none of them free from holes that deface their beauty.

"We have removed the art treasures, carved and painted, from the interior and protected the outer statuary as far as possible with sandbags; but that is the utmost we can do," said the officer sadly.

"It is dreadful to think that this wonderful monument of Christian faith and French genius may be ruined by a single shell from those barbarous brutes. Was not Rheims sufficient? Or must Amiens Cathedral also give the world another proof of Teuton Kultur?"

ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, May 8, (Associated Press.)—The German artillery, apparently under orders from the Prussian and Bavarian Crown Princes, is doing its utmost to turn Amiens into another Rheims. The bombardment killed fifty-two men, civilians, thirty women, and five children, besides wounding sixty-two men, forty-eight women, and nineteen children before the population had an opportunity to evacuate the place.

Since the Germans have been within cannon shot of Amiens after their recent advance, they have hurled into the city no fewer than 5,800 shells, mostly six-inch and eight-inch. Every indication points to a systematic effort to destroy the public buildings, as the cathedral has been struck by shells which have pierced the roof and walls.

No troops whatever are in the city, and the railroad passing through it is not in use. The cannonade generally ceases at nightfall, only to be followed by air raids almost every night. Aerial torpedoes to the number of 680 have been launched from airplanes upon various parts of the city. As most of the shells and torpedoes are of the incendiary type, they have caused great damage, so that up to the present 1,200 houses have been destroyed.

Philip Gibbs's Story of the Great Battle trenches there had been wrecked by German shelling and the line had been withdrawn from it, in order to save life, to positions behind the wood, where the machine gunners had a good field of fire, and where it was better to organize counterattacks.

As the German soldiers advanced they were sprayed by machine-gun fire so that many fell, but they were able to take the line of upheaved trenches and Ridge Wood. That is all. The old trenches gave them no cover. Ridge Wood gave them no hiding place, for it is only a collection of tattered tree stumps, and those Germans lay out there losing more men as the hours passed. Then in the evening some of the British, the Seaforths, I think, made a counterattack, clearing the enemy out of the wood and back beyond the original line.

It was not a good day for those German divisions in Flanders—one more fresh division had been scorched—and it was the worse for them because very likely they may have to try again in order to carry out the plans of their high command, who wish to get this ground in order to make easier the way up to Ypres, which, as I have already said, they are anxious to acquire for political advertisement, through there is little of military value in its ruins except the memory of the gallant British dead and of all those who walked through its sinister streets to Hell Fire Corner and the fields across the Menin road.

GERMANS FEARFUL OF AUSTRIAN CRISIS

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMTERDAM, May 9.—Little news of what is happening in Austria-Hungary is allowed to go through to the German press, but there is a good deal of evidence that matters in the Dual Monarchy are causing widespread concern in the Fatherland.

Austria-Hungary, says one German journal, is "heading for disaster," while another declares that the country is going at ever-increasing speed toward a catastrophe. The Kreuz Zeitung says that Kaiser Charles's realm is "being shaken by a severe crisis, which this time goes far beyond parliamentary limits."

It is significant that the Vienna Neue Freie Presse is calling for energetic measures against the Southern Slav "menace," and that it views the political co-operation between the Southern Slavs and the Czechs with considerable alarm and as a danger to the monarchy. The tone of the article would suggest a situation on the southern confines of the Dual Monarchy infinitely more serious than is imagined by the public.

HERTLING FORCES FIGHT ON FRANCHISE REFORM

AMSTERDAM, May 9.—Count von Hertling, the German Imperial Chancellor and Prussian Premier, has decided to dissolve the Prussian Chamber if the third reading of the Franchise Reform bill is rejected, the Cologne Gazette asserts.

The Chancellor, according to the newspaper, received full powers from Emperor William to dissolve the Chamber at an audience two days ago, when Count von Hertling offered to resign.

In the event of the bill being thrown out, the Chancellor and the other Prussian Ministers will announce the dissolution of the house in the best interests of the country, though this step will probably not be taken before the Summer. A statement to this effect, the newspaper says, will be made soon with a view to impressing the opponents of the bill.

Three mass meetings which had been arranged by Independent Socialists to be held in Berlin on Wednesday evening to discuss the question of Prussian electoral reform were forbidden by the police. This action probably was the outcome of an attack at a recent session of the House of Deputies by the Independent Socialist, Heinrich Ströbel, on junkerdom, when he said:

"Attempts are being made to build up a modern political system on mediaeval lines, under which the junkers and capitalists can join hands to deprive the working classes of their rights and keep them in permanent subjection."

VINDICATES M. THOMAS.

"The World's Magazine of May 5 has published the third installment of a series of articles on J. Godsol, now in jail pursuant to a complaint of the French Government.

"That article mentions the name of my colleague and friend, Albert Thomas, former Minister of Munitions. On several occasions newspapers have already stated that Godsol was the victim of political intrigue aimed at Albert Thomas, mentioned as his sponsor.

"To put an end to such assertions, I would be obliged to you for quoting the two following sentences from M. Albert Thomas himself, on the floor of the Chamber of Deputies, Dec. 13, 1917, in the midst of the applause of his colleagues:

"'In 1916 I fulfilled my duty as Minister, ordering an investigation and by recalling Godsol.

"'In 1917 I fulfilled it once more by having him immediately indicted.'

"The attitude of M. Albert Thomas is thus made perfectly clear. There is, in the present trial, no question of politics and it is M. Albert Thomas himself who filed the complaint against Godsol.

"High Commissioner of the French Republic to the United States."

SEES PROFITEERING BY AIRPLANE MAKERS

BILL FOR INVESTIGATION

Covers All War Department Activities—Baker Refuses Court of Inquiry to Officers at This Time.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Senator Thomas of Colorado, a member of the Military Affairs Committee, declared today in the Senate that, under the Administration's contracts with airplane manufacturers it appeared as if there had been "huge profiteering." He urged that the contracts be revoked. The existing system, he said, by which airplane producers were able to operate under one another's patents, as selected by the Advisory Committee on Aeronautics, was, in his opinion, "entirely wrong."

This interchangeable, or "cross-line," system of contracts, as it is called, under which airplanes have been made for the American Army since the country's entrance into the war, has operated, Senator Thomas said, to the advantage of the big manufacturers, who had been able to establish a monopoly, as they held the principal patents approved by the Advisory Committee. The chief beneficiaries, according to Senator Thomas, had been the Curtiss Aeroplane Company and the Wright-Martin Company. These two concerns, he said, have dominated the war airplane industry.

Blame for allowing the "cross-line" contracts to be taken up by the Government as a basis for production of warplanes was placed by the Senator upon the Advisory Committee of Aeronautics, appointed by the President, with William F. Durand at the head and S. W. Stratton as Secretary. This committee acted in conjunction with the War and Navy Departments.

"For reasons satisfactory to that committee, it was decided not to purchase or commandeer existing aviation patents, but to make this other arrangement," said Senator Thomas. "My own view, fortified by our recent experiences, is that the committee erred in not securing by purchase or condemnation the existing patents of an established and fundamental character, because, with their control, agreement for aircraft production based upon original patents would not, in any wise, be embarrassed by the personal or selfish interests of outsiders or by conflicts between rival claimants of the inventions.

Licensed by Association.

"After consultation with representatives of those interested in the basic patents and of the producers, it was determined to prepare an agreement which would recognize certain basic patents and provide for the issuance by some central authority of licenses to all persons desiring to engage in the manufacture of aircraft upon conditions requiring the manufacturers, among other things, to transfer to the Aircraft Manufacturers' Association, in whose name the licenses were issued, all patents and inventions of their own or of which they held control. It was intended that each member of the association under the license agreement should have the benefit of these other inventions in their own operations.

"I affirm that this agreement tends to produce monopoly, because it draws within its membership all existing patents, except improvements on engines and motive power. It secures absolute ownership to the extent that when the subscriber withdraws he cannot take his patents with him.

"I cannot understand why the great manufacturers of aircraft at the time the war began, unless they intended to control aircraft production absolutely, should have insisted upon the execution of such an agreement. They are practically independent of all attacks upon their patents and at the same time are given the power through this agreement to absorb all other devices and inventions, and, by that means, acquire the benefit of the experience of others at figures to be dictated by themselves. It looks like profiteering without any limitation.

"I fear that much of the difficulties and disappointments which the nation has encountered in attempting to carry out its aircraft program are due to the fact that all these conditions bestride the industry like a colossus. Of course, they have much to say in the granting of contracts to others, because would-be contractors, the owners of independent concerns, can be easily outbid if they decline to submit to the yoke. The agreement is un-American, it is undemocratic, it is wrong, in my judgment. It should be annulled without further delay."

Blanket Resolution for Inquiry.

Senator Chamberlain, Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, put in his resolution to give sanction to the forthcoming investigation into the airplane situation. The resolution, which was referred to the Military Affairs Committee, follows:

> Resolved, that the Committee on Military Affairs, or any sub-committee thereof, be and is hereby authorized and directed to inquire into and report to the Senate the progress of aircraft production in the United States, or into any other matters relating to the conduct of the war by or through the War Department; that said committee, or any sub-committee thereof, may sit during the sessions, or during any recess of the Senate; to require by subpoena, or otherwise, the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, documents, and papers; to take the testimony of witnesses under oath, either orally or by deposition; to obtain documents, papers, and other information from the several departments of the Government, or any bureau thereof; to employ stenographic help, at a cost not to exceed $1 per printed page, to report such testimony as may be taken; to employ such agents or assistants as may be necessary, and that all expenses, including traveling expenses, contracted hereunder shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate.

There is little, if any, opposition in the Senate to the inquiry, and the resolution is expected to be passed immediately. Senator Lewis of Illinois said he would offer an amendment to have the inquiry confined to those phases which the Department of Justice did not take up. He wants the Senate Committee to avoid calling any witnesses called by the Department of Justice unless with the consent of the department.

Members of the committee discussed today the advisability of holding the inquiry behind closed doors, at least in part. No decision was reached.

Refuses Court of Inquiry.

Secretary Baker announced that he had been appealed to by Major General George O. Squier, Chief of the Signal Corps; Colonel E. A. Deeds, Chief of its Aircraft Equipment Division, and Colonel R. L. Montgomery, chief of its Aircraft Contract Division, for courts of inquiry in connection with the aircraft situation. The Secretary said he would not at this time grant their applications, because he did not care to parallel the Senate and Department of Justice investigations.

"The War Department," he said, "is anxious to facilitate and expedite in every possible way the inquiries already instituted by the Department of Justice and the Senate committee. A third examination of the same set of facts at the same time might delay the inquiry, and for that reason I shall hold these applications unacted upon for the immediate present."

TWO NAVY AIRMEN RESCUED AT SEA

PICKED UP JUST IN TIME

AN ATLANTIC PORT, May 9.—After being adrift for eighteen hours on a damaged seaplane in the shark-infested waters off Miami, Fla., two navy aviators, Ensign Arthur Laverents and C. C. Cotton, an observer, were rescued by a northbound passenger steamship and landed here today.

The men left Miami Sunday afternoon and had been circling about on picket duty thirty-six miles off the coast when toward night their engine began to misfire and they discovered a leak in the gasoline tank. They descended in a sea that was running high and threatened to wash them off. Clinging desperately to the framework of the plane, the men sought to get the engine started before the gasoline tank was empty. The sea was so rough, however, that they could do practically nothing. Their presence soon began to attract sharks, and they could see the fins at intervals as hundreds seemed to be slowly circling about the damaged ship of the air.

One of the pontoons of the plane sprung a leak during the long hours that they were adrift. Cotton crawled out to stop up the leak and was only partly successful. He was taken with seasickness, and would have been washed overboard but his companion seized him and held him to the wreck. Both men huddled down to await either the sinking of their frail craft or the coming of some steamship.

When light came on Monday morning they figured that their machine would remain afloat until 7 o'clock. At 6 o'clock they sighted the smoke of a steamship to the southward. Soon they made out the hull. Ensign Laverents took off his coat and waved it.

There was a heavy squall coming up when the pair were sighted by the captain of the rescuing steamship, and the high seas had already begun to break over the plane when his vessel came alongside. The machine, which weighs 2,200 pounds, was hauled on board the steamship and brought here. It was turned over to the care of a coast guard ship here and towed to a naval base.

The men had entirely recovered from their trying experience and had been outfitted with clothing by the passengers on board.

MIAMI, Fla., May 9.—Ensign Arthur Laverents, naval aviator, and C. C. Cotton, observer, who reached an Atlantic port today after being picked up Monday afternoon at sea thirty-five miles off Miami, left the naval station here Sunday afternoon. When they failed to return searching parties were sent out, but were unsuccessful. Both men were experienced fliers.

SEEK NEWS OF CAPT. HALL.

Paris Embassy Asked to Inquire of Germany About Aviator.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 9, (Associated Press.)—Comrades of Captain James Norman Hall, aviator, missing after a combat on the Toul front, have asked the American Embassy in Paris to communicate with Germany through Switzerland in an effort to ascertain whether Hall was killed or made prisoner. They have furnished the embassy with a description of Hall's airplane and the number of its motor.

A French artillery observer reported that Hall was apparently making a safe landing when he disappeared from sight.

NEW YORK AVIATOR KILLED IN TEXAS

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 9.—Lieutenant James D. May of New York City was killed and Lieutenant Milo H. Miller of Waterloo, Iowa, was seriously injured tonight when the airplane in which they were flying fell near this city. Both men were pinned under the machine when it fell. They were taken to the base hospital at Fort Sam Houston, where May died shortly afterward.

Lieutenant May's nearest relative is Isabella Crosby, 128 Broadway, New York.

The men were flying low when the accident occurred. Both men, it was said, were scheduled to leave Kelly Field here tomorrow, having completed their instruction. The death of Lieutenant May is the fifteenth fatality among fliers at Kelly Field.

DOWNS TWO IN 5 MINUTES.

Nungesser, French Airman, Also Damages a Third Enemy Machine.

PARIS, May 9.—Within five minutes on Tuesday Sub-Lieutenant Nungesser, leading French aviator, brought down his thirty-third and thirty-fourth German machines and damaged another, which undoubtedly will be placed to his credit. On Sunday he knocked out two other enemy airplanes, which have not yet been officially recorded.

Sub-Lieutenant Nungesser during three years of air fighting has been wounded seventeen times and has served on fifty-two bombing expeditions.

French aviation has suffered a great loss in the death within a few days of three Aces who among them had accounted for more than forty-five Germans. Lieutenant Chaput, with sixteen Germans to his credit, was killed Tuesday, while Sub-Lieutenant Demeuldre, with thirteen victories, was killed in the region of the Somme yesterday. Captain Mieffre met death while directing an infantry attack from a very low altitude. He was struck by a machine-gun bullet fired from the ground.

Fall Kills American Airman.

LONDON, May 9.—Second Lieutenant Dudley C. Fairbairn of Illinois was killed near Montrose Wednesday when his airplane fell accidentally.

PRAISES OUR WORK IN WAR.

Sir Frederick E. Smith Says Too Much Was Expected of Us.

LONDON, May 9.—A dinner to 1,000 American naval and military officers and Y. M. C. A. representatives was given at the National Sporting Club last night. It was at this function that Vice Admiral Sims, commander of the American naval forces in the war zone, in reply to a toast, declared that it was hoped that within the next fortnight the construction of new shipping would exceed the rate of destruction by German submarines.

After the dinner the guests witnessed a boxing exhibition between Jimmy Wilde, the featherweight champion, and the veteran "Pedlar" Palmer.

Sir Frederick E. Smith, the Attorney General, in proposing a toast to President Wilson and the fighting forces of the United States at the dinner, said:

"We in this country realize the immense contribution that America is making to the fighting forces of the Allies, and we are glad that Americans are here now to see the spirit of the British and the sacrifices they are prepared to make. Never has that spirit stood higher and never have the British been more resolute to maintain the struggle, even for twenty years, in order that democracy might win and Germany be shattered.

"Undue and excessive expectations were entertained regarding the speed with which the American contribution could be got ready. I never had any illusions on this point. America was called upon to do in one moment a task a hundred times greater than any nation in the world's history has been called upon to accomplish. Never has a nation undertaken such committments or flung itself more thoroughly into its task.

"The very fact that we have with us in this war the sons and grandsons of men who fought in the great struggle between the North and the South is a source of encouragement and a precious consolation. It is well that Englishmen and Americans should be brought together. They should create a warm friendship, as their differences are only superficial.

"It is worth at least something that the Anglo-Saxon races, the legatees of a precious civilization, should make an imperishable friendship. If that is the result, then even the shipwreck of this terrible war will not have been entirely for nought."

CIGARS

Treated with an excess of care— and conscience!

The 1000 lb. Havana Blend

IT matters much in a little cigar how the tobacco is mixed. The temper of the blend depends wholly upon the perfect assimilation of flavors. This can be secured only by most painstaking care.

You will find absolute harmony in Piccadilly. The tobaccos do not "clash". There is none of the harshness and bitterness so common to little cigars. Which is explained in Reason No. 6. You might read the other 9 Reasons, also.

Piccadilly Process for 1,000 lb. Havana Blend

1—We take 1,000 lbs. of high grade, selected and blended tobaccos as a base.
2—We use the greatest care in the selection of the finest leaf of each variety for this 1,000 lbs.
3—Uniformity of this 1,000 lbs. assured by the careful weighing of each grade contained in blend.
4—Mellowness and mildness of this 1,000 lbs. made perfect by the proper ageing of the tobacco.
5—Evenness of smoke and taste of this 1,000 lbs. preserved through careful and suitable fermentation.
6—Smoothness of this 1,000 lbs. produced by a thorough intermixing of the tobacco after careful shredding.
7—Absolute cleanliness of this 1,000 lbs. safeguarded by an automatic sifting and purifying process.
8—Harmony of fragrance of this 1,000 lbs. maintained by storing of tobacco in containers and temperature registered by thermometers.

ASKS NEW TAX BILL AT PRESENT SESSION

MOUNTING EXPENSES CITED

May Double Income and Excess Profit Taxes and Authorize Issuance of More Bonds.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Congressional leaders have been advised by Secretary McAdoo that legislation at this session of Congress is imperative to provide revenue to meet the unexpected increase in expenses incident to the vast expansion of the nation's war program.

A statement of the country's financial situation, upon which the amount of additional taxes and bonds needed may be calculated, has been prepared at the Treasury for submission within the next two or three days to the committees of the Senate and House.

Whether Congress will undertake at the present session upward revision of the war revenue law of last Fall, leaders at the capital said tonight, depends upon the impression made by this statement. If it demonstrates that it is essential to act now, instead of waiting until December, as planned, hope of adjournment by July 1 will go glimmering, and Congress probably will be here until Fall.

Secretary McAdoo's belief that legislation must be enacted at once was expressed in a letter to Senator Simmons of North Carolina, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. The unexpectedly heavy estimates of expenditures for the coming year include the $15,000,000,000 army program, about $1,500,000,000 for the navy, with further estimates expected, and $2,250,000,000 for the Shipping Board.

Senator Simmons said tonight the tacit agreement to defer further revenue legislation until next December was made before these new estimates were submitted. The situation now, he said, is materially changed and will have to be considered in the new light when Secretary McAdoo's formal statement is presented.

Representative Kitchin of North Carolina, Democratic leader of the House and Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, said he had heard nothing about the Treasury's plans, but if additional taxes were decided upon, the levy of the last tax bill probably would be doubled. He estimated that $2,500,000,000 in new taxes would be levied, but other leaders placed the probable figure at from $1,000,000,000 to $1,500,000,000, making a total of around $6,000,000,000, based upon the estimated returns of between $4,000,000,000 and $4,500,000,000 from the present law.

Further bond issues also undoubtedly will have to be authorized during the present session, according to Senator Simmons, regardless of when revenue legislation is enacted. The amount of the issues, however, of course will depend upon the decision as to taxes.

Incomes and excess profits, both Representative Kitchin and Senator Simmons indicated, are regarded as the principal source from which any revenue increase must come. The former says both can be doubled, while the latter believes additional tax burdens should be spread more generally over the population. More consumption taxes are regarded as a strong probability.

Strong Republican opposition to any general revenue legislation at the present session of Congress is expected. Senators Lodge of Massachusetts and Smoot of Utah, Republican members of the Finance Committee, both said today that legislation was not necessary until next December, because no appreciable amount of additional revenue would be received by the Treasury much before the Spring of 1919. It also was pointed out that, while appropriation estimates and actual authorizations for the fiscal year beginning July 1 are enormous, drafts upon the Treasury for actual expenditures probably will not be large before the beginning of 1919.

Of estimated actual expenditures next year of about $23,000,000,000, including loans to the Allies, most members of Congress are inclined to raise about 25 per cent., or around $6,000,000,000, by taxes and the remainder from bond issues. Some, however, favor increasing the ratio to one-third taxes and two-thirds bonds.

Senator Simmons explained tonight that a decision regarding immediate legislation largely depends on Secretary McAdoo's showing of actual Treasury receipts in sight between now and February, when it is assumed a new bill begun next December would be available. The Treasury Department recently was authorized to issue $4,500,000,000 additional bonds and $8,000,000,000 of Treasury certificates of indebtedness to meet the nation's expenses, exclusive of provision for further loans to the Allies. Congress, the Senator said, will not risk any Treasury deficit and will make sure that ample funds are available while it is in recess.

WOMEN URGED TO ENROLL.

Republican Woman Leaders Meet to Plan for Fall Campaign.

Woman leaders in the New York County Republican Committee will make a house-to-house canvass to induce woman voters to enroll during the fortnight that remains before May 25, the date for enrollment. Only by enrolling can a woman participate in the primaries this Fall, at which candidates for Governor and other State offices will be nominated.

Miss Helen Varick Boswell, head of the Women's Division of the Republican County Committee, had another talk with her Executive Committee at headquarters, in the Tilden Building, yesterday afternoon. Detailed instructions were given to the woman leaders of the twenty-three Assembly districts in Manhattan as to how they should go about the work. Pamphlets have been printed setting forth the excellences of the Republican Party and urging women to be sure to enroll under the eagle.

Most of the twenty-three district leaders reported yesterday that they had completed organizations by the appointment of a woman captain in each election district, with five helpers.

FIND DR. CONNERS GUILTY.

Newark Physician Aided Saloon Keeper Who Sold to Soldiers.

Dr. George R. Conners of Newark, N. J., and Private John Frey of Camp Merritt, N. J., were found guilty last night on a charge of trying to influence witnesses in a case against a saloon keeper of Paterson, N. J., charged with selling liquor to soldiers. Sentence will be pronounced next week. The conviction followed a trial which began in the morning with a commotion when Private Joseph Devine, also of Camp Merritt, jumped to his feet and shouted at a witness in the United States Court:

"That's a lie."

Dr. Conners was on the stand. He had just said that Devine and Corporal Lawrence H. Payne of Camp Merritt had come to his office and asked for $50 to "help the case of Boyle," the Paterson saloon keeper. Robert J. McDermott, counsel for Dr. Conners, asked that Devine be punished, and John M. Ward, attorney for Frey, moved for a mistrial.

"Bosh," said Judge Haight. "That is nothing startling. Proceed with the case."

SHIPS OF 544,000 TONS COMPLETED IN QUARTER

LONDON, May 9, (via Ottawa,)—Merchant ships of an aggregate gross tonnage of 111,533 were completed in April in the yards of the United Kingdom and entered for service, as compared with 161,674 in March, according to an Admiralty statement. The total for the year ended April 30 was 1,279,337 tons. Last month's output was achieved, notwithstanding a large increase in the repairing of merchantmen.

The amount of shipping completed in allied and neutral countries in the first quarter of 1918 was 544,327 tons. Yards of the United Kingdom turned out 320,280 tons in this period. The Admiralty statement also shows that the total construction in 1917 in the United Kingdom and allied and neutral countries was 2,907,786 tons, of which the United Kingdom produced 1,163,474 tons.

ARREST 37 DRAFT SLACKERS

General Roundup Ordered in New York, Brooklyn, and Jersey City.

A general roundup of selective draft delinquents has been ordered in New York City and in Jersey City. The roundup began yesterday in Manhattan when thirty-seven young men were arrested by the police and turned over to the Federal authorities. They were arrested by a squad of twenty-five detectives under Police Captain Joseph Donovan of the Detective Bureau on charges of failure to have in their possession either a Federal or a State registration card. The men were found in ten Turkish baths visited by the detectives. The raids began at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, the police operating in squads of four men each under the command of a sergeant.

At each of the baths the men of draft age were ordered to produce their cards, and those who failed to do so were ordered to dress and accompany the detectives to the nearest police station. The men protested and said they had left their cards in other clothes, or had lost them, and in most instances this proved to be the case.

The first place visited by the police was in Forsyth Street, and out of 200 men thirteen were arrested for not having Federal and seventeen for not having State registration cards. Two men were arrested in a bath house in East Third Street, six in a Second Street establishment, two in a Fifth Street bath, and the same number in a bath in Essex Street. In a bath in St. Mark's Place the police found over 200 men, of whom twenty-five were detained. Five others were arrested in First Avenue.

At the police stations all but thirty-seven of the men were able to prove that they had complied with both the State and Federal laws, and were allowed to go. The remaining thirty-seven were held for the Federal authorities, and were taken to the Federal Building at 10 o'clock, where they were turned over to Assistant District Attorney Charles W. Atwater for examination.

Within an hour after the prisoners reached the Federal Building relatives of the men began to show up. The relatives in a score of cases had the registration cards of prisoners, and these men were released when identified as the bona-fide holders of them. Four of the men who had been unable to prove they had registered were held in $1,000 bail pending further investigation by agents of the Department of Justice.

About thirty men who had no State cards were arraigned in the Essex Market Court before Magistrate Barlow. They were all discharged.

Preparations have been completed by United States Marshal James Power of Brooklyn for a borough-wide round up of delinquents in that borough. All men without State and Federal registration cards, or men without their cards when asked to show them, will be taken into custody.

"Every man must have his card, and he must have it with him," said Marshal Power. "If he hasn't his card with him it is a misdemeanor, and he is to be arrested. This office and every Federal agency in the bureau, in addition to the police, are to work in this roundup. Just where it is to begin or what agencies are to be employed in discovering the slackers and those who are violating the law cannot be said at this time."

Gathering places of suspected slackers are to be raided.

A police investigation of all "slackers" was recommended yesterday to Charles F. O'Brien, Director of Public Safety of Jersey City, by the Mayor of that city. The Mayor says he is convinced that there are men in Jersey City who have failed to comply with the law or have come from other cities to evade the draft. Every lodging house and rooming house will be visited and the inmates forced to show registration cards.

LEWIS CHIDES GLYNN.

Objects to Chairman Working for Renomination of Whitman.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 9.—Action taken by Attorney General Merton E. Lewis tonight was accepted as in effect an admission that he was to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor. Mr. Lewis sent a letter to Republican State Chairman George A. Glynn, chiding him for his activity in trying to get County Committees to indorse Governor Whitman. Thus far one county has gone on record for Whitman—Columbia. Mr. Lewis's letter follows:

Albany, N. Y., May 9, 1918.

Mr. George A. Glynn, Chairman Republican State Committee.

Dear Sir: I call your particular attention to Section 562 of the election law, being what is known as the Corhibits the use of party funds for prohibits the use of party funds for primary expenses and particularly declares that such funds shall not be expended in aid of the designation or nomination of any person to be voted for at a primary election, either as a candidate for nomination for public office or for any party position. As a sustaining member of the Republican Party, I am unwilling that the funds of the party shall be used for promoting the nomination of any candidate for public office.

I am advised that you have engaged during the last two or three days in the effort to secure action by the County Committees of various counties favorable to the candidacy of Governor Whitman for renomination. As a sustaining member of the Republican Party, I suggest to you the propriety either of resigning your position as Chairman of the Republican State Committee or ceasing your activities in behalf of any candidate for nomination at the primaries to be held next September. Yours very truly,

MERTON E. LEWIS.

It was said here tonight that Attorney General Lewis would resign his office early next week and make a formal declaration of his candidacy for Governor.

Chairman Glynn said last night at the Republican Club that until Attorney General Lewis or some one else announced himself as a serious candidate for Governor he did not believe there could be any fair complaint that he was aiding one candidate as against another.

"I think I have been as fair and consistent as any other State Chairman has been," said Mr. Glynn. "When I am informed that there is a contest for the Republican nomination, I shall keep my hands off. I had not understood that Attorney General Lewis would be a candidate, because I had been informed that he would return to the practice of law. As State Chairman, I have been working at all times to keep New York State Republican, and everything I have done has been for that purpose. It is not true that I have been inducing county organizations to commit themselves for any candidate. There is accordingly no basis for a request from any one for my resignation."

COLONEL TO ANSWER BURLESON TODAY

Roosevelt Says He Will Prove Charge of Favoritism to Certain Newspapers.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., May 9.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt spent several hours today preparing his answer to Postmaster General Burleson's request to prove statements made by the colonel in an editorial that favoritism had been shown in the treatment of newspapers under the Espionage act. Tomorrow he will go to his office at 347 Fifth Avenue, where he will make public his statement at noon.

The colonel refused to comment today on whether he thought Mr. Burleson's statement was a command from the Administration to furnish his evidence.

"My statement will be given tomorrow and I think that it will bear out everything that I have said," the colonel said.

It is known that the former President's answer will be made in detail regarding his assertion that certain newspapers which opposed the war or attacked our allies have not been proceeded against. Efforts were made to have the colonel make known what papers he had in mind and whether he would make them public tomorrow. To these questions he said that his statement would cover everything and that his answer would settle all questions arising in the controversy.

Lights and Shades in Summer Decoration

TABLE LAMPS—They may be fashionably Victorian in character like those lamps, resembling wrought iron, topped with formal shades of hand decorated parchment paper.

If you are in quest of "something different," there is a group comprised of individual lamps, no one like its neighbor. Pottery vases, exquisitely colored and patterned, or cloisonne done on bronze vases, make the distinctive bases. The shades are selected to harmonize with the particular lamp for which they are intended. The majority made of silk, which lends itself to the covering of odd shapes.

There are some new lamps of metal with a Japanese bronze finish. These have shades of colored glass that attain many unique effects. Some of them look like shaded silk, others resemble parchment. These lamps are to be commended for Summer use because they are not harmed by dust, or discolored by a strong light.

Illustrated—Cloisonne on pottery lamp base with 20-inch silk shades of rose, gold, or blue silk. A panel border of figured silk and deep silk fringe trims the shade. Fitted with two 40 watt Tungsten bulbs. $37.50

CANVASS COMMITTEE SOLD MILLION BONDS

INITIAL PAYMENTS MADE

Although $50,000,000 Was Due Yesterday, $400,000,000 May Have Changed Hands Here.

Chairman A. B. Leach of the Metropolitan Canvass Committee of the Liberty Loan announced yesterday that, on the figures so far compiled by his committee, a total of 1,016,582 individual subscriptions were obtained by it in the three boroughs of Manhattan, Brooklyn, and the Bronx alone. This committee did not cover Richmond or Queens Boroughs. These subscriptions represented a total of $138,683,150, so that the average individual subscription was about $136. The majority represented $50 bonds sold from house to house.

The individual subscriptions were divided among the three boroughs as follows: 575,246 in Manhattan, 336,448 in Brooklyn, 104,888 in the Bronx. Mr. Leach also permitted a TIMES reporter to look over the series of bulletins and general orders issued by his committee to the precinct Captains and other local leaders of the organization as the best demonstration of the care with which the canvass was organized and the completeness of the information and instructions given the men and women who actually did the work.

Committee Gave Full Instructions.

The first bulletin provided each precinct captain in the three boroughs with a full and accurate list, with addresses, of all the banks and trust companies or branches in his precinct and in his borough through which subscriptions might be booked, so that every "prospect" might be directed to one without loss of time. Then followed instructions for the issue and sale of coupon books; instructions regarding working with the traveling banks and the out-door rallies; regarding reporting evidences of hostility or pro-Germanism; regarding campaign expenditures, drawing supplies, and so on; in complete form, a compendium of all possible useful information for the Liberty Loan salesman.

Following these earlier bulletins, which comprise the canvasser's encyclopaedia, came a series of bulletins on the progress of the drive, with information regarding the leading districts, spurring up the backward, tabulating and noting, for the common good, various ideas which individual precinct workers or leaders had tried out and found good. Mr. Leach is planning to keep his full list of bulletins in some permanent form, not only because of its value in organizing the canvass for any future loan, but also as a souvenir of the work of the Metropolitan Canvass Committee.

Call Money Holds Firm.

The heavy financial transactions involved in the payment by the Treasury of $500,000,000 4 per cent. certificates of indebtedness and the payment by subscribers of the initial installment on the Third Liberty Loan were put through without strain yesterday, as far as New York City was concerned. Call money held firm at 6 per cent. until late in the afternoon, when a few loans were reported at 5¾ and 5½ per cent., and bankers reported a substantial amount of loans called, but the banking machinery, perfected by similar steps in connection with the preceding Liberty issues, worked smoothly.

As the result of the calling of loans, there was considerable activity in the loan market on the Stock Exchange, as brokers sought to replace with fresh borrowings the loans which they had paid off on demand. It was estimated that fully $25,000,000 was lent on the Exchange in the afternoon. Part of this total probably represented the effect of increased activity in stocks. General money conditions were easy enough to necessitate no action on the part of the so-called Money Pool, and no loans were drawn from the special reservoir.

Payments Include Many Millions.

While the Federal Reserve Bank officers declined to mention any totals of payments on Liberty bond subscriptions, in accordance with instructions from the Treasury Department, it was estimated in banking quarters that many millions more than the prescribed minimum went into the Government's accounts. Several of the large banks were known to have paid in full the subscriptions which they had recorded with the Liberty Loan Committee, and many individual subscribers did the same.

Basing the calculation on $1,000,000,000 subscriptions for this city, the minimum payment yesterday would have been $50,000,000. Guesses on the actual payments ran from $150,000,000 to $400,000,000. As the Treasury certificates surrendered by corporations and individuals were, in effect, payments on bond subscriptions if the holders so elected, bookkeeping transactions were all that was necessary to record a large part of the proper credits.

The decision of the Federal Reserve authorities to suspend after June 15 the service charge now in force for handling checks turned in for collection became known in the financial district in the course of the day. The charge in case of some Federal Reserve Banks has amounted to 1 cent and in others to 1½ cents an item. The ruling, which has not been established for a definite period, applies to checks handled by Federal Reserve banks for member banks and other Reserve banks, which, in case of the local Reserve bank, have frequently amounted to a total as large as 90,000 per day.

SPIKED CLUB LOAN EXHIBIT.

Austrian Atrocity to Figure in the Fourth Campaign Next Fall.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Before work on the Third Liberty Loan is finished, the Treasury's Loan Publicity Bureau has started preparations for the Fourth Loan, which will be launched next Fall. All artists and designers were asked today to submit designs for posters, window cards, and buttons by June 1. These are to be donated to the Government.

The Italian Government has been asked to furnish an exhibit of the spiked club used by the Austrians to kill wounded Italian soldiers, to be shown in the Fourth Loan campaign. American, British, and French war exhibits also will be used extensively.

Bond buyers' buttons for the Fourth Loan will be smaller than those used in the third campaign, and will be made of tin, in order to save celluloid for more important war purposes. Frank R. Wilson, Publicity Director, estimates the saving on buttons at $75,000.

SAYS HEARST WOULD WIN.

Conners Sure Editor Could Be Next Governor If He Ran.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 9.—"If William R. Hearst becomes a candidate for Governor he will be both nominated and elected," William J. Conners, former Democratic State Chairman said today. Mr. Conners had previously given intimations that he was in favor of Hearst's candidacy when he met Mr. Hearst and Mayor Hylan at Palm Beach.

It is probable that the Erie County organization, with which Mr. Conners has not been in full sympathy for some time, will oppose Mr. Hearst if he should become a candidate for the Democratic nomination.

SHELL SHOCK MASTERED, PHYSICIAN REPORTS

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, May 9.—The convention of the American Neurological Association was informed today that "shell shock" no longer was dreaded by medical men on the fighting front. It had been thoroughly mastered, it was said, and recoveries had been marvelous.

Lieut. Col. Colin Russell gave statistics which showed that the cures were so positive that only 4 per cent. of the patients, when they were returned to duty, suffered a second "shock" from some expected explosion. He told of bringing about cures in a few minutes. A soldier who was certain that his leg had been paralyzed was cured by the application of a slight electric current.

The rapidity of recovery, Dr. Russell said, depended entirely upon the mental capacity of the patients, some requiring months of "suggestion education" before they were able to control themselves.

Dr. T. H. Weisenburg of Philadelphia, President of the association, in his annual address, said that America had made a precedent for the nations by establishing a division of neurology and psychiatry in the Medical Corps of the army.

"This is the first time an army has ever created a special neurological department," Dr. Weisenburg said, "and, while there may have been some skepticism in the beginning, the work of the neurologists and psychiatrists has been of such exceptional merit that universal recognition has been given it by other branches of the service. New fields are constantly opening up for which a large number of men are needed. Aviation is almost altogether a neurological problem."

Wife Sues Actress for Alienation.

Mrs. Roberta Menges Tearle, who divorced Conway Tearle, an actor, on evidence obtained when detectives in her employ entered an apartment and found Tearle with Miss Adele Rowland, actress, filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against Miss Rowland for $100,000 damages for alienating Tearle's affections. The papers were served on Miss Rowland at the theatre, where she is appearing.

STIELOW RELEASED FROM AUBURN PRISON

Special to The New York Times.

AUBURN, N. Y., May 9.—Charles F. Stielow and Nelson Green, both pardoned by Governor Whitman after he was convinced that they were unjustly convicted of the murder of Charles B. Phelps and Margaret Wolcott in March, 1915, at West Shelby, left Auburn Prison this afternoon with Detective Thomas O'Grady of Buffalo and members of their families after a long wait for the pardon papers from Albany.

"I am going with Mr. O'Grady, and he is going to get me work in Buffalo. After I have tried city work, if I don't like it, I will go back to farming," said Stielow.

Green declared that he will join a brother who has bought a farm up the State.

Special to The New York Times.

MEDINA, N. Y., May 9.—The people of Orleans County who are familiar with the details of the Phelps murder here three years ago bitterly resent the action of Governor Whitman in pardoning Charles Steilow and Nelson Green. They point out that the Governer issued a pardon as the result of an investigation made by Deputy Attorney General George Bond of Syracuse, and that the evidence obtained by him was presented to a special Grand Jury here last Winter, with the result that it failed to obtain the indictment of Clarence O'Connell, who, with Irving King, it is now believed, committed the murder.

The Orleans County farmers, who have spent nearly $50,000 on this case and who are a unit in believing that Steilow and Green are guilty, are unable to fathom the executive's reasoning in this case.

The Lewis boom for Governor has lost no strength by this latest move in the Steilow case.

CALLS SEDITION BILL AN AID TO LYNCHING

DEMAND FOR FREE SPEECH

Liberty Defense Union Gives Dinner as Testimonial for Editors of The Masses.

Characterizing the Sedition bill, now awaiting the President's signature, as "the nationalization of lynching" and warning that there would be many more trials like The Masses' case as soon as the pending law becomes effective, Morris Hillquit, the Socialist, last night was warmly applauded by 2,000 persons who attended a dinner given by the Liberty Defense Union at Central Opera House, Third Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street, as a testimonial to the editors of The Masses who are now under indictment for violation of the Federal Espionage law. The dinner, attended by radicals of all types, including anarchists, was announced as a move "to organize popular support in behalf of persons prosecuted for the exercise of their constitutional rights of free speech and free press," was presided over by Charles W. Erwin, editor of The New York Call.

Dudley Field Malone, ex-Collector of the Port, who was down for a speech, wired his regrets. In his telegram Mr. Malone said that he did not dare leave Washington with the Suffrage Amendment bill up for consideration today, adding that if he quit the Capitol he thought the bill might be defeated.

Announcing the purpose of the gathering, Mr. Erwin defined free speech as "the willingness to endure persecution, yes, even imprisonment, for the right to speak of something of which you don't approve." He urged the auditors to stand together in their convictions.

Warm Welcome for Hillquit.

Mr. Hillquit, the first speaker, got a big ovation from the crowd when he was introduced, and, without waiting for the applause to subside, plunged into a denouncement of the Sedition law—that is, after he had requested that all smoking be stopped because "it might inconvenience the ladies."

"I am glad to speak to you tonight," he said, "because I may not have a chance to do so again. A certain law has passed both houses and is now awaiting the President's signature. When he signs that law we shall have to take a long vacation. I should like to read some of the passages of that law—" and with marked sarcasm the speaker read out the clause empowering Postmaster General Burleson to determine just what constituted sedition. At the first mention of Mr. Burleson's name there was much hissing and booing. Continuing, Mr. Hillquit said:

"They tell us about a new law that is to be passed providing that when Burleson is satisfied that one is thinking seditiously ht (the thinker) may be chloroformed by army surgeons. Under this new law you are relieved of writing, thinking, and talking.'"

Turning again to his notes on the clauses of the Sedition bill, he read the part relative to scurrilous and contemptuous criticism of the Government and its uniformed forces. With increased emphasis and in a louder voice, as though making a telling revelation, he said:

"You are not to say anything scornful or contemptuous about the Government or the army or the navy or the uniform. For instance, if Elizabeth Freeman, a well known worker for equal rights for women, begins to worry about the passage of the Federal Amendment to the Constitution giving women the right to vote, and she says 'damn that old Constitution, it should be altered,' she is liable to twenty years in prison or a fine of $10,000. But if she thinks it over first and begins her complaint by saying, 'May I suggest that the Constitution is shopworn——' she will be all right, perhaps.

Says Law Is No Joke.

"Don't think that this new law is a joke. It may sound strange that an effort is made to regulate one's speech, but that isn't so bad The law as it reads isn't so bad, but it will be when it enters into the court and opinions are based on it and it is interpreted, and all the endless things that happen when a law is construed in court.

"This law was made for spies, and now we hear of such spies as Max Eastman, Floyd Dell, and Art Young, [three of the indicted Masses staff]; these men certainly had no intention to obstruct the military affairs of this country. These men had simply communicated their thoughts, and they had the right to express these thoughts."

Here Mr. Hillquit dipped into the history of the trial recently closed, and declared that the defendants had been tried "in an air of hostility and prejudice." He also asserted that they had been tried not "as criminals, but as the spokesmen of radicals, Socialists, and the like." He declared that the Judge and jury had got "much education about the war and peace and conscription," and said that the only way of educating the American people apparently was through such trials. Speaking of trials, he went on:

"There will be more of such trials as soon as the Sedition bill becomes a law. You have heard about the mobs that lynch people for alleged sedition and we have been given to understand that the sedition law was necessary to prevent this. Why, this law is the nationalization of lynching!

"Friends, let me say that we may expect troubles for ourselves from this law. If any of us find ourselves in the predicament of Eastman, Dell, and the others, we must stand together."

Max Eastman Applauded.

Max Eastman was introduced as a "thought provoker," and was greeted by a general rising of the diners. He said in opening that he had lately found himself between two classes of people, "those who are disgusted with me because I am going to jail, and those who are disgusted with me because I am not." He said:

"I don't know whether upon conviction we shall be treated as political prisoners. Apparently only German spies get that sort of treatment. Do you know that there hasn't been a single genuine anti-German agitation in this country since the war—so far as I know of? All those who have suffered for their sentiments have been American citizens who were punished because they were making socialistic speeches to working men.

"I think that it would be better if those politicians in Washington would devote themselves to the prosecution of the war with the German Empire, instead of prosecuting a war against the American Republic. We don't want to be martyrs for our opinions, but we will not relinquish our right to speak the truth as we see it," was his parting shot.

Other speakers were John Reed, war correspondent; Elizabeth Freeman and Amos Pinchot. An effort was made to raise a fund of $5,000 for the union, but the effort fell short badly.

ASSAILS FOOD FAVORITISM.

German Officers Smuggle Supplies Home, Haase Asserts.

AMSTERDAM, May 9.—Before the Reichstag Food Committee last week, Socialist Deputy Haase, according to German newspapers, demanded that the War Office deal with the "scandal" of food smuggling from the front. He said that a soldier could no longer obtain leave unless he "dragged home with him parcels from officers containing food for their families."

The Deputy said that it was difficult to say whether the people would tolerate the seemingly inevitable reduction of the bread ration due to delay in the arrival of grain from the Ukraine.

ARREST MORE RUSSELLITES

Two Bible Student Preachers Charged with Aiding Germany.

Clayton J. Woodward and George H. Fisher, two more members of the organization founded by the late Pastor Russell, were taken into custody yesterday to answer to the Federal authorities for their alleged conspiracy to help Germany win the war by spreading discontent and disloyalty here. They live at Bethel House, 122 Columbia Heights, Brooklyn. Both said they were preachers connected with the International Bible Students' Association. They were in Scranton Wednesday, they said, and did not know of the arrest of their leader, J. F. Rutherford, and five of his followers until they got back.

When the first arrests were made the prisoners were saved from going to jail by a quick transfer of the real estate of the organization to one of the members. This done, the property was accepted as bail for the six prisoners. It was learned yesterday that this proceeding was not regular, and it is probable that in the default of any of the prisoners the Government would be in a legal fight to recover on the security accepted. It is said that arrangements are being made to furnish other bail. The security, however, that was offered for the six prisoners was accepted as bond for the two taken yesterday.

United States District Attorney France was asked whether the bond offered was irregular. He said that he would not reply to the question. "I am satisfied for the present," was his only answer. Fisher and Woodworth were taken before Federal District Judge Edwin L. Garvin, who fixed bail at $2,500 each. All the prisoners are over draft age.

CAR RUNS DOWN HILL KILLS MAN IN AUTO

THEN HITS ANOTHER CAR

One man was killed and more than twenty persons were injured, seven of them severely, yesterday when a runaway surface car collided first with an automobile and then with another car. The accident occurred shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon on the steep hill extending from Amsterdam Avenue to Eighth Avenue on 145th Street. The casualties were:

Dead.

Seriously Injured.

WAGNER, rMs. CARRIE, 406 St. Nicholas Avenue; fractured skull; in the Harlem Hospital.

It was just at the beginning of the rush hour when the Union Railways crosstown car, with Michael Nolan as motorman, started east from 145th Street and Broadway. It was filled with men and women and a number of children, all homeward bound. At Amsterdam Avenue and 145th Street, where there is one of the steepest hills in the city, Nolan shut off his power and applied his air brakes.

For some reason they failed to work, and the car instead of slowing down leaped forward and started at breakneck speed down the incline. Nolan threw on the emergency brake, but there was only a whir and rattle of chains, and the car's momentum was unchecked.

By this time the passengers had become alarmed, and, notwithstanding the orders of the conductor that no one was to leave his seat, a number made a rush to get out of the lurching car. Conductor Fishdeck kept the doors shut to prevent any one from leaping out.

Nolan, when he realized that his car was out of control and that nothing could stop its course down the hill, braced himself on the platform and kept sounding the gong. He also kept up a continuous shouting.

As the car shot down the hill attaining a speed of more than eighty miles an hour, Nolan saw just ahead of him an automobile with one man in it. The man was Charles Gordon, who apparently did not hear the alarm until it was too late. He was going down the hill just in the track of the approaching car, and his attention was fixed on the road ahead.

With a tremendous crash the runaway struck the automobile, turning it half around and throwing Gordon into the air. So great was the momentum of the street car that Gordon was thrown backward through the glass on the front platform of the car and into the aisle of the car itself. He lay unconscious before the passengers.

Patrolmen Brehme and Murphy of the West 135th Street Station, who were standing near Eighth Avenue at the foot of the hill, heard the tumult and at once ran ahead, blowing their whistles and clearing traffic as much as possible to avoid any further collisions.

Notwithstanding their efforts, however, the New York Railways car running in the same direction as the Union Railways car and on the same track was unable to speed up and get out of the way. Motorman Pasquale Ricco and Miss Gustess McCall, conductor of the New York Railways car, stuck to their posts even when they saw that a collision was inevitable.

The Gordon automobile had become wedged in front of the car and was sweeping the street to both sides. Gradually it broke up under the pounding. Dragging the almost unrecognizable wreckage, the Union Railways car smashed into the rear platform of the New York Railways car with such force that the latter shot ahead nearly a half block before it could be stopped. All the glass in both cars was broken. Many of the passengers were cut by broken glass.

District Attorney Swann last night ordered the motorman and conductor of the runaway car arrested on a technical charge of homicide. The motorman asserted that he had several times reported the car as defective. He said he had made this report at the Kingsbridge car barns.

"No man responsible will be allowed to go free," said the District Attorney last night. "If he is responsible we will go after the 'man higher up.'"

9 SAVED, 3 KILLED IN SUBWAY CAVE-IN

TIMBERING NOT AT FAULT

Crash Thought to Have Been Caused by an Excavation Run Too Close to Shoring.

A rescue party working all night long under the Prospect Park Plaza succeeded in digging a twenty-foot tunnel through soft earth and débris and rescuing the nine men who were imprisoned alive when the subway link, which is to connect the Brighton Beach line with the Fourth Avenue subway, callapsed on Wednesday night. The men were found uninjured. There are three men still reported missing, and it is believed they were killed by the mass of rock that fell on them. It was at first thought that five men had been crushed when the tons of earth and rock trapped the gang at the head of the tunnel, but later, in checking up the list, it was found that two had not reported for work. The missing are:

BENTON, RICHARD, 284 4th St., Jersey City.

SKATES, WILLIAM, 268 Bergen St., Brooklyn.

The Public Service Commission in a statement said that so far as is now known the accident was not due to any lack of timbering or engineering precautions. The exact cause is a matter for investigation. The men were working on a section 100 feet under the street level. North of Malbone Street is a shaft leading from the surface to the proposed subway level. The contractor has been driving a tunnel north and south from this shaft. The accident happened in the north tunnel, about 100 feet from the shaft. The tunnel is being driven through sandy soil, which has to be supported by timbering as the work progresses. As fast as possible the timbering is removed and concrete walls erected. About twenty feet beyond the end of the concrete one of the supporting timbers gave way. The Public Service officials who have investigated presume that it gave way because one of the workmen excavated too close to the base of the timber, causing it to slide.

The workmen, including Richard Benton, the timberman, were trying to brace this timber up when it gave way. Its fall caused the collapse of the adjoining timbers, with the result that a section of the tunnel wall and roof, for a length of twelve to fifteen feet, slid into the tunnel, burying the men. The slide filled the tube and cut off the other workmen, who were further north.

The task which confronted the engineers then was to reach the imprisoned men. The engineers and contractor's men successfully established communication with the entombed men by driving a two-inch iron pipe through the slide. Through this tube they heard exactly what had happened, and through this tube, with the help of an air compressor, the men were furnished fresh aid. Then the workmen started digging a four-foot drift through the slide. It was about 4 o'clock yesterday morning before those trapped were rescued.

As the rescuers dug their way slowly forward other workmen followed and shored up the opening with heavy timber.

"All of us were equipped with electric torches," said Edgar Gardner, one of the rescued. "For a time we had difficulty in getting air, and we threw ourselves face down in the wet and in this position we seemed to get a fuller measure of air. All of us were dizzy at times, and we were always sleepy. We had our lunches with us, but we did not feel like eating. We were mighty glad when we got more air and our anxiety departed as we heard the men coming through the cave-in for us."

One of the men rescued said he saw a twelve-inch beam fall and pin down one of the men missing. Chief Engineer Waldo Biggs, of the Degnon Contracting Company, said there was now little likelihood of the three missing men being found alive.

Early in the morning by order of the Public Service Commission the trolley traffic at the scene of the acident was suspended, and the Flatbush Avenue cars diverted over other lines.

Exchange Greetings with Chileans.

SANTIAGO, Chile, May 8.—The American Embassy and the Chilean Foreign Office exchanged greetings today on the completion of 100 years of diplomatic relations between the two republics. The American Chargé d'Affaires called at the Foreign Office to pay his respects and the Chilean Foreign Minister sent a note to the American Embassy in which hope was expressed that the cordial relations continue for many years to come.

CHARGE DR. TILING WITH DISLOYALTY

Government Moves to Cancel Physician's Citizenship Papers.

FIRST ACTION OF ITS KIND

In accordance with instructions received from the Government at Washington, United States District Attorney Francis G. Caffey filed a petition in the Federal District Court yesterday for the cancellation of the citizenship papers of Dr. Johannes Herman Martin Augustus von Tiling of Poughkeepsie, for years a well-known resident of Dutchess County and one of Poughkeepsie's leading physicians. The Government charges that when Dr. Tiling foreswore allegiance to the Kaiser and took the oath of American citizenship he did not have "the purpose and intention of renouncing his allegiance and fidelity to William II., Emperor of Germany."

The action is the first brought for the cancellation of citizenship in New York York State since Congress declared war on Germany. In the event the courts grant the petition of the Government Dr. von Tiling, it was stated yesterday, will immediately become an enemy alien. Agents of the Department of Justice went to Poughkeepsie last night to serve a copy of the Government's petition on Dr. Tiling.

The petition states that Dr. Tiling filed his application for citizenship in the Supreme Court at Poughkeepsie on Dec. 4, 1906, at which time, it is added, he "made declaration under oath of his intention in good faith to become a citizen of the United States." Three years later, on May 9, 1909, Dr. Tiling took the oath of allegiance and was duly declared an American citizen by Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauser.

"Citizenship by Fraud."

The Government in its petition charges that when Dr. Tiling made his declaration of intention and subsequently took the oath of allegiance to the United States he did so with the intention "to procure by fraud a certificate of citizenship * * * that, at said respective times, the respondent did not intend to renounce forever all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince, potentate, State, or sovereignty, and particularly did not then or at all intend to renounce forever all allegiance and fidelity to William II., Emperor of Germany."

It is further charged that Dr. Tiling is not "attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States," and that, furthermore, he "has not supported and defended" the Constitution or the laws of America against the enemies of America, and "has not borne true faith and allegiance to the same."

The petition next alleges grave charges with reference to the utterances of Dr. Tiling since this country entered the war. It charges:

> Your petitioner further states and charges that since the outbreak of the European war, and particularly since Congress declared a state of war to exist between the United States and the Imperial German Government, respondent has stated at divers times to divers persons, that the sinking of the steamship Lusitania was justified; that the people traveling thereon had absolutely no right to take passage due to the fact that they had been warned; that this boat was laden with bullets intended for the German people, and that the lives of the German people, that the said bullets were intended for, were more important than the lives of Americans lost by the said sinking of the said ship; that Germany will certainly come out victorious, and it was ridiculous for the United States to enter the war; that he is firmly of the opinion that Germany will win the war; that his personal feelings are as strong now as they ever were for Germany, and that they have never changed since he had left Germany, and that his present feelings had been brought to the surface by the present European war; that he still has a good deal of fondness for the town he lived in along the Rhine, and that he has a great deal of fondness for the country there, and that he does not feel that he has ever forfeited his love for Germany; that he has often stated his own opinion that the German people and the Austrian people feel that they are fighting for life and death, and have to defend their homes; that he has made a careful study of the questions involved in the war and that he fully believes and thinks that the German side is the right side and has so publicly expressed his opinion.

Friend of Enemy Aliens.

It is stated in the petition that the charges which are the basis of the Government's action are based on various affidavits now in the possession of the Government. The makers of these affidavits are reported to include some of the most prominent persons in Dutchess County.

In conclusion the Government asks that the citizenship of Dr. Tiling be canceled and "he be forever restrained and enjoined from setting up or claiming any rights, privileges, benefits, or advantages whatsoever thereunder."

Dr. Tiling is the fourth prominent resident of Poughkeepsie against whom serious charges have been brought by the Government in the last three weeks. The others, all of them German subjects, are Dr. Josef Stulz, who is a son-in-law of the late J. W. Hinkley; Herr Heinrich Bakasch, and Fraulein Agate W. Richrath, the nast named a former instructor of German in Vassar College.

Rudolph Bergmann of 160 West Eighty-seventh Street, who is described as an investment broker, was brought to the Alien Enemy Bureau in the Federal Building yesterday afternoon, where he was questioned by Captain Roger B. Hull, U. S. A. Bergmann is accused of denouncing the Government and President Wilson. He is held for further investigation.

Max Freudenheim is charged with being an active German propagandist who has been spreading stories intended to frighten negroes who are in the armed service of the country or who are subject to call to the colors. He is an insurance agent and has been in the United States twenty years. One of the stories he is alleged to have circulated was to the effect that when a negro soldier was captured by the Germans he was horribly mutilated, including cutting off his ears. Those who don't fight for the United States, he said, would be looked after and granted special privileges when Germany was triumphant and the Allies, including the United States, were humiliated. He told the negroes that the Germans would "kill Americans like rats in a hole." This case was not one of internment, it was said yesterday, and will be turned over to the District Attorney for action.

Michael Ball, an Austrian-born soldier in the national army, whose brother is said to be an official in the Austro-Hungarian Ministry of War, was brought to the Alien Enemy Bureau yesterday to answer a charge of spreading German propaganda among American soldiers. A hearing was postponed pending the arrival here of several soldiers who were in his company at Camp Upton. Martin Starck, also an Austrian, and a former soldier at Camp Upton, was also brought to the Federal Building for examination. He is not charged with being an active propagandist.

Benno Loewy, attorney for Frau Margaret Ober-Arndt, the German opera singer, called on United States Marshal McCarthy yesterday to ask permission for his client to spend the Summer in the Adirondacks. Frau Ober recently asked permission to return to Germany, and yesterday's action was taken to mean that the State Department has refused to grant the request. Marshal McCarthy has referred the Adirondacks request to the Department of Justice.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 9.—Dr. Johannes H. M. A. von Tiling, whose naturalization the Government is attempting to have cancelled, came to this city fifteen years ago from Baltimore. For about a year he was Assistant Superintendent at Vassar Brothers Hospital. He left the hospital to take up the practice of medicine in this city, having his office at 278 Mill Street. Up until the time the United States entered the war he had a very extensive practice. He was at one time a member of the Poughkeepsie Board of Health. When told tonight of the application made by the United States Attorney, Dr. Von Tiling, who says he was born in Russia, was deeply affected. After a few minutes, he said:

"I am surprised and bewildered at the action that is being taken against me. However, I have put all my affairs in the hands of my attorney, John E. Mack of this city."

TO BUILD NEW HOSPITAL.

Open Campaign to Raise $250,000 for East Side Institution.

A campaign was launched yesterday afternoon following a conference at the Hotel McAlpin of the merchants and medical men of the east side to raise $250,000 for a new hospital, to be erected on the site of the People's Hospital, 203 Second Avenue, between Twelfth and Thirteenth Streets.

It was announced at the end of the conference that $50,000 has been already subscribed. The new hospital will be a ten-story structure with all modern improvements, including a gymnasium.

Edward Mandell, Temporary Associate City Superintendent of the Board of Education, presided at the meeting. Among those interested in the project are Julian Goldman of the Hotel Breslau, who was elected President; Irvin Schaerr, who donated $10,000, and Dr. William I. Sirovich, Superintendent of the hospital.

Court Gives Warning of Prosecution for Those Who Aid "Whispering Propaganda."

CRIME TO REPEAT STORIES

The Federal Grand Jury for the Southern District of New York handed a presentment to Judge Augustus N. Hand yesterday regarding the source and truthfulness of certain stories which have been circulated in this country, "to the effect," as the presentment put it, "that frightful and scandalous conditions attend the Red Cross nurses in the American Army hospitals in France."

These vicious reports are believed to be a part of the widespread German "whispering propaganda," the purpose being to create dissension among the people in America, as well as to frighten women so that they will not enter the overseas nursing service.

The Grand Jury investigation was undertaken by order of the Government for the two-fold purpose of identifying if possible the source of the propaganda and to make the falsity and viciousness of the propaganda a matter of court record. The Grand Jury, the foreman of which is W. De S. Trenholm, investigated various stories which have been widely repeated, not only in New York, but all over the country, and cites in its presentment as typical one "reported to have been made at Vassar College by Dr. Emma B. Culbertson, Senior Surgeon of the New England College for Women and Children at Boston."

In substance, this story, the Grand Jury says, was as follows:

> It was a matter of common knowledge that 200 beds had been reserved in the Sloane Maternity Hospital, New York City, for Red Cross nurses who were returning from France and expecting immediate confinement.

"This statement," the presentment reads, "was called to the attention of this Grand Jury on the ground that if the statements were true the failure of the military authorities properly to safeguard the nurses in the service of the United States Army abroad would constitute gross neglect, and accordingly it would be the duty of the Grand Jury to call upon the proper authorities to take the requisite and necessary steps to correct such evil condition, &c."

Story Fully Disproved.

The investigation of the report, the Grand Jury adds, shows "that the said Dr. Emma B. Culbertson on Jan. 17, 1918, publicly made a statement at Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in substance and effect that it was a matter of common knowledge that 200 beds had been reserved in the Sloane Maternity Hospital, New York City, for Red Cross nurses who were returning from France and expecting immediate confinement, which statement was absolutely disproved by the authorities of that hospital; that said Emma B. Culbertson had absolutely no knowledge or information upon which to base said statement, and that said statement was wholly and entirely without foundation, and does further present that no Red Cross nurse has returned to this country from foreign service in such condition.

"The Grand Jury further present that the said Emma B. Culbertson herself now believes that she has been misinformed as to the matters contained in the statement made by her and regrets that she has been a party to the dissemination of a false statement.

"The Grand Jury further present that the said Emma B. Culbertson did not wilfully make said statement with the intent to interfere with the operation and success of the military and naval forces of the United States or to obstruct the American Red Cross in the recruiting or enlistment of nurses in the service of the United States."

Another story, which is also German propaganda, involved the mutilation and outraging of two young Belgian women. This was also found to be false from beginning to end.

"The Grand Jury," the presentment concludes, "further presents that it deplores the tendency shown by the public in general to give ready ear to and repeat stories and reports of a sensational and scandalous nature and character affecting the American Red Cross and its nurses, for the reason that such stories and reports not only seriously interfere with the recruiting of nurses for service abroad, but also have a tendency to create public distrust in the American Red Cross, and are detrimental to the many activities it is carrying on to alleviate the unspeakable condition due to the war."

Judge Hand Sounds Warning.

After the presentment was filed Judge Hand addressed the jury and made it plain that the time had come to handle in most drastic fashion persons who circulate such stories as those investigated by the jury. A person who repeats such stories, without investigating to ascertain the truth or falsity of them, Judge Hand added, should be held as making them willfully and knowingly. After a reference to the remarks Miss Culbertson is alleged to have made at Vassar, Judge Hand continued:

"This statement, your presentment shows, or statements that are equivalent to it, have been circulated in various cities and towns throughout the United States; it indicates on its face some deliberate propaganda from some malevolent source that is inimical to our institutions.

"The Espionage act covers exactly this sort of thing unless it is innocent. If it is willful and knowing, the Espionage act covers it, and a jury or Grand Jury is justified, in the absence of anything else, in inferring knowledge and willfulness from lack of foundation and recklessness in the statements themselves.

"You have investigated this particular statement; I know the substantial and representative body of men that you are from this community, and I am not in any way suggesting that your presentment in regard to this particular matter and this particular physician is not correct. I am confident that you have satisfied yourselves that she did make this statement at Vassar College in good faith, but in future matters which come to your attention, I will remind you that where the statement is utterly reckless, and proves to be utterly without foundation, in the absence of any adequate explanation on the part of the person making such statement, it would be justifiable to find that it was willful and knowing. A statement like this, which, after investigation, you have found was utterly without foundation; which, after the reports and testimony of representatives of the Sloane Maternity Hospital, you have found had not a scintilla of evidence back of it, is a thing to be deprecated and severely censured by the court.

"That a person should come to a place which is a seminary, a college for the education of young women who are eager, many of them, to go abroad to act as nurses for the Red Cross, and circulate such a hairbrained statement as this in the presence of these young women, that would alarm the authorities of the college, that would discourage their enlistment as nurses, is a most reprehensible and disgraceful thing.

Time for Tolerance to End.

"The American people have been very tolerant in these matters, and I think it is greatly to their credit that they have, but the time has certainly come when people who utter falsehoods, make statements without the slightest foundation which they have picked up on the curbstone in the street and then give them out in some public place, not knowing whether they are true or not, and choosing to believe them or give them out either for notoriety or for some reason which we cannot fathom, the time has certainly come when those people are going to be held responsible by juries in our courts of law.

"The juries have been tolerant in the past because they did not want to believe evil of any one—but undoubtedly statements of this kind emanate from some source which is engaged in a deliberate and unfriendly propaganda, and it is certainly proper for the Court to say here that the people in this community and every other community ought to take warning and to remember that when men in this country are sacrificing their lives; when women are going to the front to act as nurses; when mothers are parting with their sons and wives with their husbands; when, as I saw up in Vermont the other day at a little college that I attended, about two-thirds of the senior class who were already engaged in military service, the least people can do who attempt to speak about matters relating to this war is to pay some kind of attention to the facts and to know what they are talking about, and not make statements and criticisms and spread wild rumors that are utterly unfounded in a perfectly irresponsible way. If they do it in the future they may expect indictments and they may expect trials, and they may be pretty certain of conviction."

Dr. Culbertson's Explanation.

BOSTON, Mass., May 9.—Dr. Emma B. Culbertson of this city, mentioned in connection with a Federal Grand Jury investigation in New York of statements alleged to be detrimental to the Red Cross, said today that she had made no address at Vassar College, but that she had conferred with Dr. Henry N. MacCracken, President of Vassar, for the purpose of obtaining official denial of stories which had repeatedly come to her attention.

"My only idea in going to Dr. MacCracken," said Dr. Culbertson, "was that I believed some official denial should be made of the many rumors in order that parents might be reassured."

Dr. Culbertson said later she appeared before the Grand Jury and gave information regarding the source of these reports, which she believed to be German propaganda.

'THE KISS BURGLAR' IS ON FOR A RUN

FAY BAINTER BURGLARIZED

THE KISS BURGLAR.—A musical comedy in two acts. Book and lyrics by Glen MacDonough. Music by Raymond Hubbell. At the George M. Cohan Theatre.

Fay Bainter, who was last seen here as the dual heroine of "The Willow Tree," returned to musical comedy last night and developed a repertory of graces that is likely to carry "The Kiss Burglar" throughout the Summer. A very rare personality, this! She has no particularly striking beauty, perhaps, and no great single talent; but she has a freshness of feeling and a daintiness of charm that surround her like an atmosphere and win their way by an almost instant magic throughout the audience. With no voice to speak of, Miss Bainter sings the purest music; with no great virtuosity in dancing, she somehow manages to set the dance rhythms leaping in every pulse, and with no considerable equipment in the technique of acting she conveys the effect of the subtlest comedy and the most ingenuous, stirring romance.

Her present vehicle is in many ways admirable, and is a very considerable factor in the happy result. No antecedent liabilities are acknowledged in the program, yet the book and much of the music have a dominant Viennese character that can scarcely be accidental. The very title suggests the manner, and not too pleasantly, of the gentle Austrian sensuousness mingled with Continental comedy.

The burglar is an American, who, while in Trieste, got into a gambling quarrel and found refuge in the boudoir of a Grand Duchess. There, instead of the jewels she tremblingly offered him, he took only a kiss or two and left her. But the memory of the moment lingers in the lives of both, and is renewed in our American midst, where the Duchess has found refuge from the war.

What one sees on the stage is mainly an amusing travesty of the incident. For the purposes of society publicity a press agent stages what is in effect a travesty of the kiss-burgling. Denman Maley enters the Duchess's boudoir "atop" a Fifth Avenue "mansion" as a pretended thief, and carries the scene with much excellent fooling. The Duchess on her part, is thrilled at what she takes for a repetition of the romance in Trieste, and her ingenuous frankness and freshness of feeling mingle with Mr. Maley's matter-of-fact demeanor, in an effect of delicious romance and hearty laughter.

Later the original "burglar" of Trieste (Armand Kalisz) is encountered in a Berkshire inn, where real "inside men" are at work, and the love of the enamored Duchess is mingled with the conviction that he is really a thief. Here a situation rich in potentialities is handled by the librettist with less skill; yet, thanks to Miss Bainter's charm, the effect is sufficient to carry the play to an adequate conclusion.

Much of the music and several of the songs had a touch of real Viennese quality. One of them was an excellent travesty of the manner in which John Philip Sousa, Victor Herbert, and George M. Cohan, respectively, would pay their musical compliments to the American Beauty rose. Several of the young women in the support were pretty and graceful, and the dancing of Dore and Cavanaugh was of very high quality.

But the mainstay of the production was the slender genius of Miss Bainter, which achieved its most memorable results in combination of the rarely artistic fooling of Denman Maley.

Germans Revive 'The Beggar Student'

A post-season series of operettas, which the German players at the Irving Place Theatre will present, began last night with the revival of "Der Bettelstudent," ("The Beggar Student.") The guest star on this occasion was Otto Goritz, who had the assistance of many members of the erstwhile German chorus of the Metropolitan Opera House. Other principal rôles were sung by Kathryn Lynbrook, Else Kentner, Hariet Behnee, Ludwig Eybisch, and Hanns Unterkirchner. The piece is one of the best-known operettas of the German stage.

Adolph Klauber to be a Producer.

Adolph Klauber, it is announced, is about to enter the theatrical field as an independent producer. His first offering will be a comedy by Arnold Bennett, which will be given a preliminary production in Washington in July. Mr. Klauber will also make a number of productions in association with the Selwyns.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Willard Mack has withdrawn from the cast of "Tiger Rose" and is now head of the scenario department of Goldwyn films. He is also the organizer of the Pauline Frederick Feature Film Company, whose pictures will be handled by the Goldwyn concern.

"The Liberty Gun," by Robert Mears Mackay and Victor Mapes, has been placed in rehearsal by the Shuberts. Among those in the cast are Robert Edeson, Malcolm Duncan, Henry Kolker, Lyster Chambers, Edwin Holland, Katherine Grey, and Millicent Evans. Frederick Stanhope is staging the piece.

The musical version of "The Melting of Molly," in which Florence Nash will be featured, will open in Wilmington next Monday night and will be brought into New York about two weeks later. The piece is based on Maria Thomson Davies's story and has been turned into a musical play by Dorothy Donnelly, Harold Orlob, and Sigmund Romberg.

The new Winchell Smith-John L. Golden production, "Three Wise Men," now playing in Washington, will be acted at a special performance at Stamford a week from Saturday night so that the performance can be witnessed by Mr. Smith, who is recovering from an eye affliction at his home near Stamford.

The entire Hippodrome organization will be reassembled on Wednesday of next week to assist in the selling of tickets for the War Thrift concert to be given at the Polo Grounds on June 2. The Hippodrome will close this week.

The auction sale of seats for the New York performances of "Out There" in aid of the Red Cross will take place at the Liberty Theatre at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. The performances will be given at the Century Theatre on May 17 and 18.

LABOR PLEADS FOR IRELAND

LONDON, May 9.—A joint committee of the Trades Union Congress and the Labor Party has sent a strong appeal to the Government against enforcing conscription in Ireland. It says, in part:

"It must be clearly evident to the Government that an attempt to enforce conscription would mean not only the shedding of blood of thousands of Irishmen, Englishmen, and Scotchmen, but also the maintenance of a huge permanent army of occupation in Ireland. Today, every soldier is needed on the Western front, yet the Government is proposing a course which will involve the withdrawal of hundreds of thousands of soldiers to engage in a civil war which will outrage the conscience of the civilized world.

"Moreover, Irishmen are scattered over the wide world—in America, and in the dominions of Great Britain itself—besides large numbers on the Western front. The tragedy cannot be local or confined to Ireland. It may easily be the beginning of a world tragedy in which our last hopes of a fairer future will be extinguished * * *.

"With all these facts and terrible anticipations in mind, we confidently appeal to the Government to immediately take the necessary steps to avert the appalling disaster which now threatens."

ANTI-DRAFT CONFERENCE.

Irish Leaders Hold Meeting in Dublin—Fund Now $300,000.

DUBLIN, May 9.—An anti-conscription conference was held today at the Mansion House, John Dillon, Professor Edward De Valera, and other leaders being present. Arrangements were made for the administration of the anti-conscription fund, which will be in charge of local committees representing all sections. It was ordered that 10 per cent. of the money raised should be sent to Dublin for central purposes, and the whole fund was declared to be under the control of the conference for administration impartially irrespective of party or religious belief.

The Lord Mayor has not yet received his passport to America.

It is reported that the anti-conscription fund has reached £60,000, although only 174 of the 1,115 parishes have as yet sent their first installments.

DEGAS'S PAINTINGS SOLD.

5,600,000 Francs Realized at Auction in Paris.

PARIS, May 9.—More than 5,600,000 francs was realized from the sale, by order of the executors of the late Hilaire G. E. Degas, the noted painter, of his paintings, pastels, and drawings. M. Degas, who portrayed various phases of Parisian life, died last September.

The paintings offered represented the accumulation of many years, for M. Degas could rarely be induced to sell his own works. It was feared that the simultaneous sale of so many pieces and the imposition of luxury taxes would keep the prices down, but the salesroom was crowded during all three days of the sale. The principal collectors and dealers bid spiritedly, and even slight sketches fetched several thousand francs apiece.

A portrait group of Degas and his own family was bought by the Government by arrangement for 300,000 francs. Another picture, representing two girls practicing a duet, was sold for 100,000 francs, the buyer of which was reported to be the Metropolitan Museum of Art of New York.

DEPLORES OUR STAND.

Costa Rican Congress Expresses Regret Over Our Attitude Toward It.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, May 9.—The Costa Rican Congress, by a vote of 28 to 3, has voted confidence in the Government of President Tinoco, and at the same time passed a resolution expressing regret at the attitude of the American Government toward Costa Rica. The resolution declares that Congress is surprised at the contradiction between the democratic aims of the United States in the war and its attitude toward a small republic.

The Tinoco Government in Costa Rica came into power in January, 1917, after the deposition of President Gonzalez. In the following month it was stated in Washington that the United States would not recofnize the Government and there has been no change in the American attitude, despite Costa Rica's efforts to gain recognition. A special envoy sent to Washington was not received last July. In September Costa Rica severed diplomatic relations with Germany.

NOTABLE SCENES DEPICTED

The thrills of the battlefield in Flanders are portrayed in vivid detail by a series of official Canadian war photographs now on exhibition at Lord & Taylor's. Major M. S. Boehm of the 169th Battalion, Canadian Infantry, the officer in charge of the exhibition, yesterday described the action that took place at every scene pictured. The pictures have been sent here in the interest of the Canadian War Memorials Fund.

The crowd at the exhibition yesterday followed the Major with earnest attention as he gave the history of each photograph from the picture of the desolate Somme battlefield, where "1,600,000 soldiers, Germans and Allies, were killed," to the photograph of the little dog found lying griefstricken on the breast of a dead German officer, and finally adopted by a Canadian company.

So clear are the pictures—they are many of them greatly enlarged—that Major Boehm said that when they were shown in Canada many persons recognized sons and brothers, fathers and sweethearts, who had ben absent from home since the war began.

One of the pictures showed a truck full of laughing Canadians returning from a successful tour in the trenches, each man with some part of German equipment he had captured. The most prominent face in the picture, and the most light hearted apparently, was a Sergeant of middle age who held in his arms a Prussian helmet, a bayonet and water bottle. This man, Major Boehm explained, had been killed two days after the picture in question was taken. He said that when it was shown in Canada he noticed three little girls standing in front sobbing. They pqroved to be the three daughters of the dead man.

The pictures were taken by Captain Ivor Castle, the official Canadian photographer, and many of them, Major Boehm said, were taken at the imminent risk of the Captain's life. There was one picture of a German barrage, another of the bursting of two gas shells depicting the clouds of poison being slowly desseminated toward the allied trenches. Another showed a tank in action.

Go Over the Top Laughing.

Perhaps the most vivid picture in the whole collection showed the men of the 20th Canadian Battalion going over the top at Courcelette on the Somme in 1916. The picture was taken, according to the Major, from a shell hole out in No Man's Land just in front of the Canadian trench from which the attackers came. The men, resembling in the picture college football players going down the field under a kickoff, are nearly all smiling happily, though one or two have looks of grim resolve as though they were going through with that charge or were going to die in the attempt. Some very clear pictures of German prisoners captured by the Canadians were shown.

The pictures of the wounded were especially affecting, and in this connection Major Boehm said that the British Tommy labels his wounds which give him the privilege of a trip home under three heads, a "blighty," a "nice blighty," and a "beautiful blighty." The first generally means the loss of a limb or some other permanent injury, the second the loss of an eye or a hand, and the last a mere flesh wound. The number of blinded, the Major said, has been surprisingly small. Out of 150,000 Canadian casualties, there have been only thirty-five cases of total blindness."

Some of the pictures showed the terrible devastation which German soldiers carried out under orders of the high command before falling back last year. Major Boehm said that he had entered a village behind the Germans and that literally it could not be told which was the store and which the dwelling place. You couldn't distinguish, he said, between a butcher's shop and a blacksmith's. Every single bit of property had been looted and carried away by the Huns.

Major Boehm said that the Allies looked to America to furnish the man power, and he declared that an American force of at least 4,000,000 men would have to be sent to France before we could win.

To Try Mt. Vernon Mayoralty Contest.

WHITE PLAINS, May 9.—Supreme Court Justice Seeger today, granted a motion of ex-Mayor Edwin W. Fiske of Mount Vernon to amend his complaint in the quo warranto proceedings he has brought against Mayor W. Edward F. Brush of Mount Vernon, in which he asserted that Mr. Brush was not legally elected to the Mayoralty, and the contest over the election will take place in the Supreme Court during the June term. When Mayor Brush was inducted into office Mr. Fiske contended that on the face of the returns he had defeated Brush by one vote, but now he says he will prove that he was elected by at least six majority.

Anna Held Is Much Better.

Anna Held was able to sit up for more than twenty minutes yesterday in her apartments in the Hotel Savoy after she had taken a meal of solid food, and last night there was every indication of a marked improvement in her condition, it was said at the hotel.

HITCHCOCK IS CHAIRMAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Steering Committee of the Senate today agreed upon Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska as the new Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations vacated through the death of Senator Stone of Missouri. This decision gives the chairmanship to the ranking Democratic member and conforms to unbroken precedent.

Because of opposition to Senator Hitchcock, due to his early attitude on the war, Administration Democrats on the committee had talked of backing Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi for the chairmanship. This evoked a threat from several Democrats to unite with Republicans upon Senator Lodge of Massachusetts. The selection of Senator Hitchcock ends further contest over this point. The Steering Committee selection of Senator Hitchcock is subject to approval of the Senate. This will be forthcoming.

The Steering Committee picked Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois to be a member of the Finance Committee, vice Senator Stone. Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia was selected for the vacancy on the Military Affairs Committee caused by the death of Senator Brady of Idaho. Senator Robinson of Arkansas was selected to be a member of the Foreign Relations Committee. The chairmanship of the Philippines Committee, vacated by Senator Hitchcock, is as yet unfilled. Senator Reed of Missouri declined to accept it.

BROKER KILLED IN AUTO.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., May 9.—Clarence McEwan, a member of the New York Cotton Exchange, living at 2,765 Broadway, was killed tonight, and George A. Finn, who was with him, was perhaps fatally injured, when the automobile in which McEwan was riding collided with a car driven by William Graham, head gardener on the estate of E. P. Converse.

The car which McEwan was driving was bound toward New York. Graham was coming in the opposite direction. The cars crashed near the reservoir on Upper North Eighth Street, the broker's motor striking the car driven by Graham a glancing blow. It veered off the road, went through a small stone wall, struck a tree and was overturned. McEwan died on the way to the hospital. In the car with Graham were his wife and two children. They were not injured.

The Salvation Army drive for $250,000 for war work, the quota of the National War Fund that New York is expected to raise, was continued yesterday with increased vigor, and last night it was reported that $71,000 had been raised. Hand organs made lively music on a hundred or more street corners, while the Army girls rattled their tamborines or strong-lunged officers called attention to the fact that the Salvation Army was in need of money to help the boys over there.

Salvation Army officers invaded the Stock Exchange yesterday. Two booths have been erected at the Exchange, and they are in charge of Major Urshall. Within an hour $200 had been collected and the Major was assured that a committee of members would canvass the Exchange and the building for the benefit of the war chest.

The largest donations received yesterday were: Bankers Trust Company, $2,500; James A. Hearn & Son, $1,000; Barnard Baruch, $1,000, and Cleveland H. Dodge, $500.

BILLY SUNDAY SETTLES SUIT

Man Who Says He Wrote Evangelist's Book Drops Action.

On the applications of the attorneys for the Rev. William A. Sunday, the evangelist, Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum signed an order yesterday discontinuing the suit brought against him by Hugh C. Weir for $50,000 damages for breach of a contract under which Weir alleged he wrote "Great Love Stories of the Bible" under Sunday's name, and was to have written other books in collaboration with the evangelist. Miss Lucille Pugh, attorney for Weir, who consented to the discontinuance, declined to discuss the terms of the settlement.

SUES SENATOR LODGE.

Pacifist Who Says He Was Assaulted Asks $20,000 Damages.

BOSTON, May 9.—Alexander Bannwart, formerly a professional baseball player, filed suit here today for $20,000 damages against Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, with whom he had an encounter in Washington in April, 1917.

With a delegation of pacifists Bannwart summoned Senator Lodge from his office in the Capitol into the corridor, where he urged him to vote against a declaration of war. After a heated argument there was a scuffle and Bannwart, in his complaint, alleges that he was assaulted by the Senator. He also complains that Senator Lodge subsequently caused him to be arrested and locked up, and still later made libelous statements concerning him.

FOUND NEW COLLEGE, FACULTY TO CONTROL

Institution to be Devoted to Political Science Will Minimize Administrative Features.

ENDOWMENT FUND RAISED

Teaching Force Will Elect the Trustees and Engage and Dismiss its Own Members.

The foundation in New York of a new college of political science, to be carried on with as little administrative machinery as possible and with the professors in full control of everything, even to the election of the Board of Trustees, was announced in yesterday's issue of The Nation. Among the founders of the new organization are Winston Churchill, the novelist; Herbert Croly, editor of The New Republic, and Mrs. Willard D. Straight. An endowment fund of $150,000 a year is to be provided, most of which it is said has already been obtained, and of this "90 per cent. is to be spent on brains and 10 per cent. on administration."

The Nation, which calls this "a profoundly important and fascinating educational experiment," says that "the Faculty will elect the Board of Trustees and will also appoint and dismiss its own members. While the school will have a Secretary to attend to registration and collect fees, the usual administrative machinery will be reduced to the vanishing point."

Corporation management and control, labor organization, city, State and national administration, will be included in the field of the new college. "There are," said the announcement, "to be no formal 'departments' within the college, and all courses of instruction are focussed upon the issues of current life. Instead of bending the world to suit the categories of the university, this institution proposes to adapt its instruction to the needs of the present situation.

"There will be seminars and other courses leading to degrees for specially equipped students; field work in public administration and commercial lines; special lectures by distinguished leaders of thought from abroad as opportunity offers; popular lectures at school and other centres for organized labor and others desiring information on current issues.

"It is likely that there may be no fixed curriculum; the courses as well as the lecturers may vary from year to year. Flexibility, adaptation, freedom, experiment, approach from the angle of social need, not of rigidly organized and classified intellectual formulas, are to be the marks of the instruction. It is planned that the program of study shall include modern history, social, political, commercial, and individual; political and commercial geography; international relations; political economy, finance, statistics; labor organization and management; modern social management; public law, jurisprudence, government, administration, and public service; women in the modern social order; anthropology and psychology."

CHARITIES CONVENTION ENDS

The ninth annual convention of the New York City Conference of Charities and Correction ended in Yonkers yesterday with the election of officers. Judge Franklin A. Hoyt of the Children's Court was elected President, William Church Osborn, First Vice President; Samuel Rabinowitz, Second Vice President; George J. Gillespie, Third Vice President; Charles Loring Brace, Treasurer, and George C. Rowell, Secretary. The committee will be under the following persons: Alexander McKinney, Chairman of the Delinquency Committee; Aaron E. Nussbaum, Chairman of the Children's Committee; Miss Jessie M. Hixon, Chairman of the Committee on Families; John A. Fitch, Chairman of the Committee on War Labor Program; Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Chairman of the Committee on Public Health, and Miss Mary E. Tinney.

OPPOSE GERMAN IN SCHOOLS

Union League Club Also Against Towner Bill Passed at Albany.

Resolutions were passed last night at the regular meeting of the members of the Union League Club, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street, condemning the teaching of the German language in the public schools and the publishing of newspapers in German in this country, and protesting against the Towner bill for the liquidation of branches of enemy insurance companies in this country, which is now before Governor Whitman.

The resolution protesting against the Towner bill states that the club is against the bill as affording opportunity for enemy interests to regain control of their insurance systems during the war. The resolution regarding the German language asserts that the club regards instruction in German and the publishing of German newspapers as subversive of loyalty to the United States. Copies of this resolution will be sent to President Wilson, Governor Whitman, and Mayor Hylan.

AIR MAIL SERVICE TO BEGIN ON MAY 15

Weather permitting the air mail service between New York and Washington will positively begin on May 15 it was announced yesterday by Postmaster Thomas G. Patten of this city. The service will be opened by an airplane leaving Belmont Park at 11:30 A. M., and another one leaving the Polo Grounds in Washington at the same time. The trip each way is expected to take three hours.

An arrangement has been made by Postmaster Patten with the Long Island Railroad to take the mail for the air service by a special train to Belmont Park in twenty-five minutes. No mail will be accepted for this service after 10:30 A. M., Postmaster Patten said, and the mail will leave the Post Office promptly at 11 A. M. daily.

The airplane from Washington is due to arrive at Belmont Park at 2:30 P. M., and the mail will be in the main Post Office at 3 o'clock. When the mail arrives on time it will be delivered by the regular carriers, but when it arrives too late for the regular deliveries it will be sent by special messenger.

The first mail to Washington on Wednesday will carry among the packages two copies of Secretary Baker's book, "Frontiers of Freedom," to President Wilson and Postmaster General Burleson. In the mail from Washington will be the first special stamp for the air postal service which will be auctioned for the benefit of the Red Cross. The stamp which will be inclosed in a letter to Noah W. Taussig of 111 Wall Street will be canceled and will bear the autograph of President Wilson.

Until the special twenty-four-cent stamps are ready for sale regular stamps may be used. In a few days announcement will be made by Postmaster Patten as to where mail may be deposited for the air service. Parcels will be carried at the rate of 24 cents an ounce, provided they do not measure more than thirty inches in any dimension.

Postmaster Patten, Mayor Hylan, and several officials of the Federal Government will be present at the inauguration of the service at Belmont Park, it was said.

REVOKE GROCERS' LICENSE.

Servus Company Forbidden to Deal in Groceries for Duration of War.

The Federal Food Board yesterday revoked the license of the Servus Trading Company, 114 Hudson Street, for the period of the war, and ordered that the firm's officers, Joseph Blaustein, President; Otis J. de Valier, Vice President; Alexander Bernstein, Treasurer, and Jesse Markel, Secretary, be forbidden to trade in groceries for the same period. The decision was handed down after the complaint of Dr. H. H. Rickards of Ridgely, Md., who sold a carload of yellow meal to the Servus Company on March 25, had been investigated. The physician charged that the company refused to accept the meal on its arrival in New York because the market price had declined.

P. A. Johann, head of the Bureau of Complaints of the Federal Food Board, yesterday recommended that the license of Israel Moses, a baker of 1,919 Second Avenue, be revoked for the period of the war, and that no application for a license be granted to his son, Solomon Moses. Moses, it was brought out, had been ordered to close his bakery for three days for violating the wheat substitute regulation. He closed his place at 1,919 Second Avenue during the three days, but opened another store at 1,923 Second Avenue, which was conducted by his son under the Government license which had been issued to the father.

Chris. Isserman, a wholesale grocer of Greenpoint, L. I., must invest $1,000 in Liberty bonds and contribute $100 to the American Red Cross for overcharging in sugar and flour sales.

PUTS OFF SENATE VOTE ON SUFFRAGE QUESTION

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Senate action on the House resolution proposing submission to the States of an equal suffrage amendment to the Federal Constitution has been postponed indefinitely because a canvass of the members showed that supporters of the resolution number two less than the two-thirds vote necessary for its adoption.

This amendment was made today by Senator Jones of New Mexico, Chairman of the Senate Woman Suffrage Committee, after he had stated in the Senate that the resolution would not be called up tomorrow as planned. He added that formal notice of the indefinite postponement would be given in the Senate tomorrow.

Senator Jones said there was no indication when the resolution would be called up, but declared that no effort would be made to do so until there were assurances of sufficient votes to pass it. With Congress planning to adjourn July 1, some Senators believed that the resolution would not come to a vote at this session.

Army Deserter a German Subject.

After it had been discovered that he was a German born in Bavaria, Frederick Smith, a deserter who had pleaded guilty yesterday to charge of robbery before Judge Doherty, in the Hudson County Court, Jersey City, broke from his guards on the way from the court to the county jail. After a chase of several blocks he was caught. District Attorney George Vickers learned on cross-examination of Smith that he had arrived in America from Bavaria only a year ago, and after failing in an attempt to enlist in Hoboken, was successful in New York and was sent to Fort Oglethorpe. He deserted from his regiment there last February, and came to Hoboken, where he robbed Paul Albert of 153 Second Street in the Hoboken Hotel.

NEARLY THREE TO ONE.

There is not the least doubt that a feeling of disquiet was excited in the United States by the news that General MAURICE's charges might precipitate a change of Government in England, and that there is a strong feeling of relief over the fact that the change has been averted by the thoroughly satisfactory vote of nearly three to one. The battle is still going on, the battle that we began by calling "the battle of Picardy," and changed to "the battle of Flanders and Picardy," and which we may have to call "the battle of Europe" or "the battle of 1918" before we get through, if we are to find any title that is adequate to its size. It is the battle of Magna Charta and the Declaration of Independence and the Rights of Man against the Dark Ages, fought out now in one gigantic struggle; it is four years of agony brought to a sudden climax. At this moment, when there is need for the tensest concentration against the foe, it was deeply disturbing to have thrust before us the prospect that England might be guilty of the levity of changing commanders for mere party reasons. It is not so, and the common cause has escaped a peril.

The overthrow of Mr. LLOYD GEORGE, if it had been accomplished, would have been accomplished in part because of dissatisfaction with the unification of the allied armies under General FOCH. That would have been only one of the causes; but the inevitable result of the overthrow would have been a feeling of doubt as to how far that unification would be permitted to go, how long it would be allowed to last. The effect of this on the military operations would have been to create irresolution and uncertainty. The overthrow would have been accomplished in part by the desire of other political parties to hold office; and if it had been accomplished the armies would have been inevitably influenced by the knowledge of what Mr. GEORGE's successors stood for. They would have known that these successors are, to say the least, no more skilled in conducting a war than is the present Ministry; they would have remembered failures which were certainly greater than any for which Mr. LLOYD GEORGE can be blamed, and they would not have found their tranquillity increased by the knowledge.

We all know one thing with certainty about LLOYD GEORGE and his associates. We know that they cannot be hoodwinked or played upon by bogus peace offers, that they are firm and resolute in the face of insidious approaches of pacifism. It is of the highest importance that every one of the allied Governments should be above suspicion in that respect, in view of the dangerous "peace offensive" which Germany is about to open. We do not know so much about the men who would have succeeded Mr. GEORGE if he had been overthrown yesterday; and the feeling of uncertainty which would have resulted would have been most unfortunate at this trying time.

It is earnestly to be hoped that the Allies have seen the last, until the present battle is over, of attempts to unhorse the Lloyd George Ministry. We have heard a great deal about the defects of democracy in wartime, and each of the democratic nations has been illustrating its own defects in its own peculiar way. In peace times we often hear much about the superiority of the English political system to ours. In time of war it may be doubted if the English system has so much to boast of. Our system is based on the belief that it is not wise to swap horses while crossing a stream. Suppose that at every stage of the war, at each new complaint that is made about shortcomings in Washington, President WILSON had to appear before Congress and show cause why he should not be deprived of his office overnight. He has no very easy task as it is; it can be imagined how much harder it would be in such a case. It can be imagined how much of the energy which should be devoted to fighting the German would have to be spent in protecting himself against this constantly recurring threat of dismissal. It is "too unwashed a way," as CARLYLE would have said, of dealing with a man who has on his shoulders the vast responsibilities of such a war as this.

It is to the credit of Mr. LLOYD GEORGE's opponents that they have not shown themselves impatient to take advantage of this power of threatening an overturn. But, unless he shows incompetency for the conduct of the war, the menace should not be invoked at all. The English cannot, at this time, think of their party politics as a thing affecting themselves alone; it affects all their allies, it affects the world. The overthrow of LLOYD GEORGE would have been received here with something like dismay, and probably it would have had some such effect in France, coming so soon after he had figured in that unification of the forces which the French and ourselves had so long and urgently desired. This realization of the larger aspects, the world aspects, of their political affairs has undoubtedly had its effect on the English mind. That vote of three to one cleared the air and served well the common cause; it has given confidence and new strength to England's allies. And it must have that effect on the English people; for we do not believe that Mr. STANTON, the Labor member, spoke for himself alone when he interrupted Mr. ASQUITH's question, "What is the alternative?" by the retort: "Get on with the war!" That is, indeed, the heart of the matter; and if that spirit animates the English people, as we believe it does, we shall hear no more of attempts to unhorse a Coalition Ministry for the purpose of bringing in a Liberal or Radical one, or of overthrowing any Ministry whatever over a question of veracity or mistakes of fact.

PRACTICING UPON FISHERMEN.

A few days before Holland reached an agreement with Germany concerning the transportation of sand and gravel, German airplanes were attacking Dutch fishing boats with machine guns. Twenty-four hours before tension at The Hague was relaxed, five victims of these assaults at sea were rescued and landed at a British port. In some way they had avoided the bullets from four airplanes. Their story was confirmed by the condition of their small vessel, which was found several hours later. When news of his airmen's attempt to kill these neutral and harmless fishermen came to the Kaiser, he may have repeated these words from one of his public addresses: "The "God of Battles directed. We have "been His instruments and are proud "of it."

Will Holland send a protest to Berlin? This is not the first time her fishermen have suffered from German attack. Some time ago fishing vessels a few miles from her coast were sunk, and men working on them were killed, by a German gunboat. The public has not been informed that Holland complained to the German Government about this. Probably any protest would have been curtly dismissed at Berlin. German gunners must be permitted to become expert by practice, even upon neutral fishermen. But the Dutch Government must realize that without a formal complaint the official record will be incomplete.

THE RAILROAD WAGE QUESTION.

The report of the Railroad Wage Commission is admirable in performance and startling in result. It ranges all the way between the highest and lowest classes of two million workers, and attempts to do justice to each. The relation of wages is even more difficult to appraise than the relation of rates. The Interstate Commission has been baffled by the relation between the services to the common needs of goods of various sorts from many competing sections and markets. It was not possible to touch a rate without arraying interest against interest, and obstacles to justice which baffled the railways baffled also their regulators. The problem referred to the Railroad Wage Commission is economically of the same nature, and is complicated with a human element. The wage question is affected by ethics as well as by economics, and the treatment of the board is more human and humane than by either the railways or their wage earners. The railways have suffered in dividends, but also they have earned dividends by wage economies. The railways have not treated the subject as justly as the board. They have yielded to the strong, and have overpaid as well as underpaid. The lawmakers conspicuously erred in this manner and matter. In fact there is nobody who has not shared in the acceptance and use of services unjustly requited, and who is not partly responsible for the results.

It is idle to apportion the blame with exactness. It is better and necessary to look ahead rather than behind. There are scandals and wrongs scattered all through railway history which should be neither forgotten nor condoned, but which it is idle to raise when the bill for them is laid at the door of the Director General. For the first time, the nation as a whole is dealing now with the railway question as a whole. It is no reproach to the Wage Board that it confines itself to the wage question. It was a reproach to the Interstate Commission that it dealt with the rate question as standing by itself. If the Commission had considered the whole question, there might have been no need of a Wage Board. Now the entire subject comes before the Director General. He is master of the relation of rates to each other, of the relation of wages to each other, and the relation of their relations to the common good of the entire country. The subject is rather simplified than complicated by the beginning of the new era. Hitherto the treatment has been partisan and irresponsible. The conflicting interests have used force rather than reason to support their contentions. Labor has preyed on labor as well as on capital. Capital has preyed on labor. The law has favored interests alternately. Equity was impossible so long as indivisible factors were dealt with individually, with no responsibility for results.

There are brighter lights in the picture, and the future is sure to be better than the past. It is necessary to remedy mistakes, and as a first step to recognize them by whomever made. As the board remarks, the railways themselves in two years had increased wages $350,000,000 per year, and confronted further demands or "an unfortunate series of labor disturbances." The danger was not from those treated most unjustly. There was no strike threat from the greatest sufferers, who now have a reward for their loyalty to country and employers in receiving the larger share of the hundreds of millions which are to be distributed on considerations of justice rather than what the board calls "strategic values" of an unethical and uneconomical division of the wages fund. There will be little attention to those who already have had increases, but who now are complaining in pitiless disregard of those worse off. The injustice of existing wage scales was so great that it was impossible to increase pay horizontally. The method adopted is an increase on a scale rising as the wages fall. The case is not one for rewarding some at the expense of others, nor yet of dealing exact justice to all. We have seen the results of excessive pursuit of ideals, of enactment of perfection, of following theories until confronted with conditions. We are a reasonable people, and therefore there will be no Bolshevism under the rule of reason and equity. We are on trial before the world as much as either Germany or Russia, and we shall acquit ourselves as true democrats. There will be no defeat of right by might because of jealousy of profits under present conditions, nor because of shirking labor when the reward is all that the case allows.

FIELD ARTILLERY PRODUCTION MUST BE SPEEDED.

The investigation of the production of field artillery, now the most important factor in modern warfare, was begun by a Senate Military Affairs Committee at the urgent solicitation of those who knew that things were not going well. Field guns, especially guns of large calibre, are not made in a day. That was understood even by the uninitiated. But it was believed that the Ordnance Bureau had lost no time in laying the foundations for the manufacture of pieces of all calibres, and was methodically and scientifically working on a program that called for the early production of light guns and for the turning out of the high-explosive guns with no more delay than the assembling of tools and machinery made necessary. A substantial appropriation was available several months before the United States declared war on Germany, and ordinary foresight should have warned the Ordnance Bureau that it must make plans for strengthening the artillery arm of the land forces.

After a year of war, a Senate subcommittee has learned that the production of field guns, even of the lighter kinds, has been "pitifully small" and that the prospect of the delivery in France this year of big guns is discouraging. There are some pertinent questions that may be asked in a spirit of constructive criticism. Have the manufacturers under contract received instructions from the Ordnance Bureau as to the tolerances which must be established before they can begin to make gauges for the adopted French 75, which is the best field gun in the world? By tolerance is meant the permissible range of departure of sizes from "unrealizable actual perfection." Have plants equipped to build the three-inch gun as long ago as last Summer received forgings in any quantity? With regard to the 75s, the drawings and specifications were on hand about the same time, and experts to help in construction were at the service of the Ordnance Bureau. Have they yet been supplied with all the tools to build these guns?

To return to our three-inch gun, an admirable piece which is rated very high, is not the manufacture of the carriages in a very backward state? It is, of course, an old story, for which there seems to be foundation, that months were wasted in trying to improve the recoil mechanism of the French 75s. What seems to be the fact is that the Ordnance Bureau has been straining after unattainable perfection in most, if not all, of its undertakings to get field guns made, in that respect rivaling the Signal Corps in its experiments with airplane motors and fabrics. Moreover, it seems to be true that the Ordnance Bureau, like the Signal Corps, has had no head for big business, and has therefore been overwhelmed by the complications of its task.

It is no answer to the charge of inefficiency and dilatoriness to say that the French and British were ready to supply artillery for a certain number of divisions if the United States would send over the men. The fact of the matter is, our allies had to produce the guns to get the men. It was a case of stern necessity, not of choice. Perhaps shift can be made in France to keep up the equipment of the stated number of divisions, but France and Great Britain cannot have too many guns of their own. In the present German offensive Great Britain's losses of artillery have been serious. France has also lost guns. Neither can spare more pieces for the use of the American Army. For the second half million of our troops, and for additional reinforcements, the United States must provide the field artillery. It cannot be done satisfactorily unless there is an acceleration of production like that which at last characterizes the shipbuilding industry. As Mr. SCHWAB is the man for the job in the shipyards, so must a Schwab be found for the gun plants.

THE GOOD, BEAUTIFUL, AND TRUE

Deep calls to deep, reformer to reformer. Those of us who venerate the direct primary and those of us who venerate prohibition do or should hear with an equal joy that Mr. GEORGE W. ALDRIDGE, the Sage of Monroe and one of our trustiest and best established and beloved Republican old school reformers, is "unequivocally in favor of and committed to "the renomination and re-election of "Governor WHITMAN."

Attorney General LEWIS comes from the Rochester Reservation. His refusal to be a candidate for renomination was taken by too many of the Whitmanians as a determination to run for Governor in the primaries. For a few hours gooseflesh spread among the faithful. Then Mr. ALDRIDGE, without professing to know whether Mr. LEWIS will invade the Republican primaries or not, renewed his allegiance to the Governor, and confidence was restored.

What chance would a Monroe County candidate have in the Monroe County Republican primaries against the will of Mr. ALDRIDGE, who graciously makes, anticipates, interprets that of the people? What chance in the Republican primaries of any county would any candidate have against Governor WHITMAN, the Darling Child of the Primary? It is strange that any Whitmanian could have had any fear as to Attorney General LEWIS. He is an able lawyer and a citizen of strong character and attractive qualities, but what would happen to him in a primary? Primaries are for those who know how to run them. The Governor and his associates in statesmanship possess that art. An anti-Whitmanian Republican wrote, in yesterday's TIMES, of > the incumbent of high office who is able by systematic and unscrupulous use of patronage and influence to bend the party organization to his will, and by so doing to gain a highly favored place in any primary contest.

This is most unjust. What did reformers like Mr. GEORGE W. ALDRIDGE and Mr. FRANCIS HENDRICKS, patron saints of Whitmanism, ever care for base respects of political patronage? They live for the good that they can do, and the primary exists for the good it can do good men like them and the Governor. It is wrong to talk of patronage in the political baker-and-fishmonger sense in connection with the Governor. His "specialty" is a loftier patronage, espousal with all the passion of his incandescent temperament of noble causes, not without full sheaves of votes, such as the direct primary, woman suffrage, and prohibition.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Wise Action Taken By the "Antis."

Nothing could have been more injudicious than for the women of the State who opposed the extension of the suffrage privilege to all adult citizens to have decided as a class that they would not exercise that privilege after it had been granted to the "pros" and imposed on the "antis." A few individual women, taking counsel of obstinacy and resentment instead of reason, did, indeed, refuse to vote when their first opportunity to do so came, but the intelligent majority realize that with privilege goes obligation, and that for them to refuse to go to the polls would simply be to give their late opponents added power and facilitate the success of influences considered by them dangerous and reprehensible.

It is in expression of the opinions and purposes of this intelligent majority that the Executive Committee of the Woman Voters' Anti-Suffrage Party has now made formal recognition of the fact that, for New York women, suffrage exists, and that it is therefore the duty of every woman, not only to vote at every election, but to qualify herself for political action and efficiency by enrolling in whatever party she likes best—or dislikes least.

That is good advice, and the women who do not heed it—who sulkily refrain from participation in politics simply because they did not want the vote—should be made to understand, if possible, that thus they are playing into the hands, not of suffragists, as such, but the suffragists whose affiliations are of a kind to make certain that they will vote against public interests as known outside of radical circles. It is only by voting that the woman of conservative tendencies can assist in preventing or delaying further changes in the laws of the country to which she is still as much opposed as before she was enfranchised—the imposition, for instance, by constitutional amendment of woman suffrage on States that do not want it, or the triumph of socialistic ideas at a time when socialism, at least of the official party brand, is indistinguishable from pro-Germanism.

Possibly It Is Authentic.

Among the minstrel jokes of forty years ago, none was surer of "getting a laugh" than the one about what Brother Bones claimed to be a remarkable silver spoon, then in his possession. When the interlocutor, after the usual repetitious interchange of question and answer, had carefully prepared the audience for the "point" about to be made, Brother Bones informed him that the spoon was remarkable because it was found in New Orleans after the departure thence of BEN BUTLER.

If one were to accept as authentic the remarkable document given out by our Department of State as the translation of a warning distributed by German agents in Spain, the Kaiser's propagandists want the Spaniards to believe that the penalty for abandonment of neutrality is to have done in the country committing this error of judgment exactly what General BUTLER was charged with doing—pure slander, by the way—in the city where his rule was so bitterly resented. For among other loot proudly listed in the schedule of German acquisitions in Belgium are 1,876 silver spoons.

At first thought, that seems strangely few silver spoons to find in a land as rich as Belgium was before the war, but presumably—still assuming the authenticity of a document so highly guaranteed—all the other silver spoons had been sent over into Holland or France betimes, and the 1,876 were the poor pickings that remained. Anyhow, that is as plausible as that the Germans would prepare an elaborate list of their thefts—for even in war the taking of private property is theft—as well as of the number of churches they had destroyed and of the prisoners whom they had maltreated.

On general principles, and judging from human nature as commonly known, the Germans would not do a thing so stupid, and it seems almost certain that the State Department has been trapped into giving out as a German production what is really the work of an ironical and ingenious enemy of Germany. That decision, however, is not quite safe. Many another proof has been given that the workings of the German mind are different from those of other minds, and that an almost pathetic belief in the efficacy of "frightfulness"—in the possibility of frightening non-Teutonic peoples into submission—still exists in Germany. It may be, therefore, that this document really is of the origin ascribed to it, that its statistics are approximately correct, and that the Germans think the "lesson" it teaches will be heeded in Spain.

It would be enlightening—perhaps—for the people who coerced the too easily persuaded Red Cross to withdraw an appropriation it had made for medical research to consider the news that the same surgeons whom they charged with cruel intentions toward animals are now engaged in finding out how to prevent "trench fever" among soldiers.

This is a serious and often fatal malady, as well as a most painful one, and to conquer it would be a triumph as great, probably, as was the victory over yellow fever, which was one of the beneficent consequences of our war with Spain. As in that case, so in this, the first effort has been to determine with definiteness and certainty the method by which the infection is acquired, and this information has again been acquired by exposing to it volunteer Americans who, in the interests of their fellows and of science, were willing to risk their lives.

Already the "carrier" has been discovered, and again it is an insect. Now will come the work of seeking to create immunity. It may be accomplished by establishing conditions in which the transmitting creature cannot live. On the other hand, it may involve the manufacture of a protective serum or anti-toxin, and if so there will presumably be resort to experiment with animals of one sort or another.

Thus what is called "vivisection" is in full action, and strange indeed must be the mind that judges it reprehensible—that does not accord gratitude and honor to the men who are practicing it.

ART NOTES.

An Exhibition for the Benefit of Blinded Soldiers.

At the Anderson Galleries is an exhibition of nearly eight hundred paintings, sculptures, and other works of art, which have been donated by American artists in all parts of the United States and in England and France to be sold for the benefit of the blinded soldiers, under the auspices of the Permanent Blind Relief War Fund. The artists realize with special keenness the horrible affliction of the blind, and have given wholeheartedly works of importance and dignified character. A number of the letters accompanying the contributions are printed in the catalogue, and all amount practically to the succinct comment of the painter who, "personally, would rather die than be blind."

The exhibition should be considered not as an occasion for criticism but as an opportunity to secure pleasant things, often of great merit, and at the same time to help one of the finest relief undertakings of the war. A number of the pictures are especially pertinent in theme to the cause for which they are given. Robert Henri, for example, sends a picture of a blind Spanish woman singing to the music of a guitar, a piece of vigorous realism, in which the beautiful workmanship counteracts to a certain degree the painful effect of the faithfully rendered type. Mr. Henri writes of it: "This picture is one in which I put my deepest feeling, and the painting is as well as anything I have done. In fact, I consider it one of my very best pictures. It has never been shown to the public because there are so few to sympathize with or understand a frank facing with the tragedy of blindness. My feeling at the time of the painting was to face it frankly, with all my heart and without sentimentality. Sentimentality is a protective mist, which life-slackers throw about themselves to obscure from their consciousness the reality—they wish to pity, but they do not wish to share the hurt."

The exhibition will be reviewed at a later date. The Executive Council of the committee are Harry W. Watrous, Chairman; Howard Russell Butler, William A. Coffin, Charles C. Curran, Daniel C. French, Francis C. Jones, Carman Messmore, Hobart Nichols, Chauncey F. Ryder, George H. Story, Robert W. Van Boskerck, and J. Alden Weir.

The Homing Mule.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Pages have been written setting forth the qualities of the United States Army mule, his infinite wisdom, patience, and endurance, but now he has shown a "homing instinct" second only to that of the carrier pigeon. It is well known that Germany had no mules of her own, and those which recently brought the letters across No Man's Land had the regular "U. S. A." stamped on their hoofs. The suggestion contained in this incident to the Quartermaster's Department is only too obvious. MONTAUK.

THE MIKADO'S PROMISE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The correspondence between the Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs, Baron Goto, and our own Secretary of State has been published at one of the most decisive moments of the world war. There is no time for long-winded discussions when hours, yea, minutes, are weighing heavily in the balance of fate.

If there are still in our midst "Germans" and pro-Germans, they may be shocked by my statement, but it remains nevertheless true that, for the present, at least, the united solemn signatures of William II., Charles I., Ferdinand I., and Mahmud V. under a State document would be greeted with a shrug of the shoulders and an ironical smile, while a word of the Mikado, a whisper of President Wilson are sure to find an echo in the hearts of all civilized peoples, and their promises are sure to be taken by the world at their face value.

The Bolsheviki are nervously clutching at the arms of their governmental fauteuils; Poland and the Ukraine are ready to join their Slavic brethren in an attempt to crush the German invader; the Slavs in Austria are seething with revolt; if the Hungarian Parliament should be dissolved, we may hear very soon interesting news from Budapest; in brief, now is the time for a Japanese Hannibal to begin his knocks at the doors of Berlin via Irkutsk, Petrograd, and Königsberg.

One sentence of reassurance as to his territorial disinterestedness from the Mikado, interpreted and indorsed by President Wilson, would set at rest all real inquietude of the Russian people. We allies have missed the psychological moment so often; we can really not afford to repeat the same.

WARNINGS FROM GERARD.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It may be of interest now to recall extracts of letters forwarded to me by Ambassador Gerard from Berlin:

"I do not expect to see Germany 'outhungered.'"—Nov. 9, 1915.

"There is absolutely no chance of peace. The war is going on for a year or more."—Nov. 23, 1915.

"I tell you forcibly that if I were dying and could send but one message, I should warn America to be ready."—Dec. 28, 1915.

"Germany will undoubtedly last through, especially with grain from Rumania, and copper from conquered Serbia and a large mine in Saxony. There is enough rubber in hand for military purposes. * * * I don't think that the blockade, however uncomfortable it may make Germany, will decide the war."—June 21, 1916.

"Hope this Mexican flurry has sobered you and shown the need for real preparedness."—July 26, 1916.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A prominent metropolitan newspaper has more than once quoted the phrase "one of those d——d littery fellers" as from Zack Chandler of Michigan. For more than forty years the writer of this letter has credited these words to Simon Cameron of Pennsylvania, and by consulting the files of THE TIMES accessible in the Public Library has clear proof of his belief. THE TIMES of March 14, 1877, referred to the Senator as a statesman of the old school, mystified by the new-fangled notions of those "literary fellers," thus showing that the phrase was already famous. The numbers of March, 1876, gave fuller information, and the biography of Richard Henry Dana by Charles Francis Adams completed the illumination. There we read that Cameron felicitously but somewhat profanely described Dana as belonging to the literary class, (Vol. II., p. 376.) It may be noted here that there seems to be no fixed spelling of the phrase:

"The words 'one of those d——d literary fellers' in which, as was currently reported, he conveyed his meaning in this last respect, became, indeed, a permanent contribution to American political parlance, and is almost the only thing elicited by the struggle over Dana which took a firm hold on the public mind and memory. There was about them a humor and point as well as a terseness which caused them to pass at once into the vernacular. So far as Mr. Cameron was concerned, the contest could, therefore, have been in its results in no way unsatisfactory; for he both carried his point and at the same time made a lasting contribution to American political speech."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You may be interested to learn of the appreciation with which we soldiers of the American Expeditionary Force in France greet THE NEW YORK TIMES in the trenches. We do not get a real American newspaper very often, and you would be surprised to see how eagerly the articles are read.

We are seeing real war stuff every day, and are getting practical experience in scientific barbarity. As I write this, at 3 A. M., explosions of shrapnel and high explosives are jarring my pen. Yesterday I ducked a shell that fell a few yards away without interrupting my train of thought, so accustomed one becomes to these things.

A few moments ago I picked up some German stuff on the wireless, in which the enemy brags about having bombed Paris on the 13th, (last night,) killing twenty-six and wounding seventy-two. I would be interested to see how this is reported in American newspapers. CORPORAL L. R. C.

THE CALL AND THE ANSWER.

Late a call came o'er the sea—
Call that stirred a nation's heart!
Now, O Land of Liberty,
Is the time to do your part!
We in Flanders hold the line—
Face for you a ruthless foe.
Follow where our Flag's stars shine
That all lands may Freedom know!

Sinews of the war must you
Show yourselves as patriots true
Worthy those who for you die!
Freedom armed in Flanders stands,
Gold she asks of you, not life.
Hear her call to all her lands—
"Share the glory of the strife!"

When that call from Flanders came
Over seas white-flecked with foam,
Liberty's torch new glowed aflame,
Answer came from every home—
Came from Maine, from Golden Gate,
From the Isles that we made free,
Puerto Rico, Cuba's State,
Philippines beyond the sea!

Lo! a golden tide now runs,
Bearing ships upon its crest!
Aid for men who man the guns
Comes from East and from the West!
Millions make their offering,
Each and all now freely give,
All we have and are we bring,
Freedom shall not die, but live!

NAMED AS AIDS TO SCHWAB.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Announcement was made by the United States Shipping Board today that as a result of the expansion of the shipbuilding program and the additional burden of work involved Howard Coonley, President of the Walworth Manufacturing Company of Boston, had been made a Vice President of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and Naval Constructor J. L. Ackerson assistant to Charles M. Schwab, the Director General of the organization.

Charles A. Piez, a Vice President of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, who has been responsible for the executive and administration work of the Shipping Board, will relinquish a number of these duties to Mr. Coonley and will be able to devote himself solely to matters pertaining to shipbuilding and construction work.

Mr. Piez, as General Manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, a post which he relinquished when Mr. Schwab became Director General, had co-operated closely with Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board in building up the divisions of the organization which had to do with construction work. He will now be able to give all his time to this task and keep in close touch with Mr. Schwab, who has expressed the intention of spending as much of his time as possible in the ship yards in the capacity of a "shipbuilding field marshal."

Mr. Coonley is a Director of the Second National Bank of Boston, the Link Belt Company, the Walworth Company, the Rivet Lathe and Grinder Company, and a Vice President of the Chamber of Commerce of Boston, and the Associated Industries of Massachusetts.

Naval Constructor Ackerson was aid to Rear Admiral Capps, a former General Manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and until his appointment today as assistant to Mr. Schwab, had remained with the corporation, under the direction of Mr. Piez. He holds the rank of Commander.

URGES MORE SHIP SECRECY.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9. — To still further safeguard American transports and other vessels by concealing their movements as far as possible, the Committee on Public Information, acting at the request of the Navy Department, has again made an appeal for secrecy in the matter of ship movements.

"The committee," says the appeal, "is again requested by the Navy Department, to urge upon newspapers and upon all ship owners, ship agents, and brokers to discontinue the publication of news items and advertisements, which in any degree indicate the location or movement of vessels. Naval authorities have clearly demonstrated to the committee that the publication of even the most fragmentary or trivial items of this nature may reveal clues upon which the enemy can build up information of extreme detriment to our prosecution of the war.

"This notice is not issued because of any new circumstances endangering ocean shipping—none has arisen—but because it is felt that the voluntary censorship has not yet achieved the fullest possible measure of essential secrecy in the protection of merchant shipping. The Committee on Public Information therefore urges once more that all references to the names of ships, dates of sailing and arrival, and all information of routes, schedules, cargoes, location and movement of ships be deleted from all news and advertising copy in newspapers, magazines, folders, circulars, charts, &c. This request applies to all American, allied, and neutral shipping in the Atlantic, Pacific, South American, and coastwise trades.

"The Committee on Public Information depends confidently upon the press and upon ship owners and agents, realizing the seriousness of the situation, to co-operate to the fullest extent with the naval authorities in the protection of the tonnage available for supplying our troops abroad, and the troops and populations of the countries associated with us in the war."

WANTS GOV. YAGER OUSTED.

Has Oppressed Porto Rican Labor, Gompers Tells President.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Removal of Arthur Yager as Governor of Porto Rico was asked of President Wilson today by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Gompers charged the Governor with incompetency in handling the labor situation in Porto Rico.

In a letter to the President, Mr. Gompers declared the Governor had refused to better living conditions of the working people. He inclosed an exhaustive report of an investigation of conditions made by Santiago Iglesias of San Juan, Porto Rican organizer for the Federation. His report described the situation as intolerable. The working people were said to be underpaid, and in many cases underfed.

Governor Yager, a Democrat, was appointed from Kentucky by President Wilson in 1914 for a four-year term. Congress extended the term until a successor should be appointed.

The National War Labor Board was asked by Secretary Wilson today to investigate labor conditions in Porto Rico.

REJECT VOLUNTEERS AS CREDIT IN DRAFT

EXEMPTIONS ARE CUT OUT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Accepting the suggestion of President Wilson, who originally recommended that in the next draft credits be given to the States for volunteers but later reversed his position, the House today by a vote of 231 to 90 adopted the conference report on the bill providing for the next draft quota, consenting to the elimination of its amendment authorizing credits on quotas for volunteers and thus also reversing itself.

Despite the efforts of Chairman Dent of the Military Committee to induce the House to accept the conference report on the bill for the registration of those who have become 21 since June 5, 1917, the House by a vote of 182 to 118 rejected the Senate provision exempting theological and medical students from the next draft. As a result the machinery for calling into service the 700,000 men who have become 21 since June 5 last year cannot be put into immediate operation.

The position of those opposing the Senate amendment was that the purpose of the selective draft was to place all on an equality and that to make an exception would break down the principle of the law. It was argued that the President had authority under the selective draft law to place divinity and medical students in Class 5 if he deemed it essential, as he had done in the original draft.

Representatives John C. McKenzie of Illinois and F. J. Garrett of Tennessee led the fight against accepting the exemption amendment. It is believed the Senate will recede.

When the bill fixing the quotas for the next draft was up in the House two weeks ago, Chairman Dent read a letter from President Wilson supporting the idea of credits to States for volunteers and influenced the House to amend the bill so as to allow such credits. He said today, in presenting the conference report and asking the House to recede from its position, that he was still of the belief that the credits should be allowed, but that President Wilson, Secretary Baker, and Provost Marshal General Crowder had urged that the credits be not allowed and had asked the House to comply with their wishes. This letter from President Wilson was made public:

> The White House,
> Washington, 7 May, 1918.
> My Dear Mr. Dent: I take the liberty of writing you to say that I have become convinced that I was mistaken in advising you recently with regard to the matter of credits in the draft legislation. When the matter was presented to me, I had not fully analyzed, and I dare say that the gentlemen who presented the matter to me had not fully analyzed, the effects which would ensue by allowing credits for the number who had volunteered. I do not know whether they have changed their opinion in the matter, but I have been convinced by the facts as presented to me by the War Department that I took a mistaken view of the matter, and I now write to say that in my judgment that mistake ought to be corrected. I hope that if I was instrumental in any way in leading the committee of the House to the conclusion they came to, you will express to them my apologies for not having looked into the facts more thoroughly before I advised.
> Cordially and sincerely yours,
> WOODROW WILSON.

Representative Julius Kahn, ranking Republican member of the Military Committee, urged the House to adopt the conference report disallowing credits for volunteers. He said the time had arrived when the country should think seriously about increasing its army to an unlimited size, and pointed out what he termed the injustice of the proposed credits.

"The States indirectly have been given credit for their volunteers," said Mr. Kahn. "Class 1 in the various States would be greatly augmented if the men who had volunteered had been classified. Why should the army be charged with 300,000 men who have volunteered in the navy?"

"Are you aware that the Marines are in the trenches and are doing as good fighting as anybody over there?" asked Representative Cannon.

"There are something like 30,000 Marines, and we need 3,000,000 men in arms," said Mr. Kahn. "We will need, in my humble opinion, 8,000,000 men in our army before we get through. Class 1, in my opinion, will be exhausted within a year, and we shall have to go elsewhere."

Copeland Promises an Additional $6,000 for Laboratories' Use.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, took occasion yesterday to expedite in his department several matters that have been the subject of criticism in medical and labor circles. He called on Dr. William H. Park, Director of the Bureau of Laboratories, and approved immediately of the expenditure of $9,000 for vials and other things needed in the department. He said he expected soon to grant Dr. Park's request for an additional $6,000 to purchase necessary articles.

Several representatives of the Labor Sanitation Conference called on Commissioner Copeland yesterday and requested him to expedite the appointment of additional persons to further the work of industrial hygiene. Dr. Copeland promised to see to it that the money for this work was used. The money was appropriated by the last administration.

Dr. Copeland spoke yesterday afternoon at Delmonico's before the Widowed Mothers' Fund Association, and later at the Strand Theatre, before the Homeopathic Hospital Unit. Course for Assistants to Nurses.

In discussing the necessity for wartime training for volunteers in health work in the Extension Teaching Course of Columbia University Miss Mary E. Wadley, Executive Secretary of the Social Service Department, said yesterday that it had erroneously been made to appear that the object of the short course was to fit lay workers to take the places of graduate nurses, releasing the latter for war work. The object was, she said, only to obtain additional assistants for both doctors and nurses in the less technical work of children's clinics and in the work for undernourished children in Summer school centres. She wished also to correct the impression that such short training would fit a woman to do the part of a trained nurse.

There were 328 first, 22 second, and 1 third offender in March, 1918, against 111 first, 9 second, and 2 third offenders in March, 1917. LORD ABERDEEN SEES SWANN

Drive Here for Woman's Health Association of Ireland Will Be Dropped

The charitable work carried on in the United States for some eighteen months by Lord and Lady Aberdeen and their friends under the auspices of the Woman's National Health Association of Ireland, for the special benefit of the children of England, Scotland, and Ireland, will be discontinued. This announcement was made by Lord Aberdeen at a conference yesterday with District Attorney Swann, to whom he related his version of the failure of certain persons to appear at the entertainment in Carnegie Hall on Wednesday.

Carl C. Diener, an employe, had inserted the advertisement in the newspapers announcing that French and American soldiers were to take part, Lord Aberdeen said, and he added he had no reason to doubt the truth of this until the time of the entertainment arrived and only one of the American soldiers appeared. Lord Aberdeen said that Charley Chaplin, who was also absent, had personally promised him he would attend.

The activities of the charity, which included operations here, in Boston, Washington, San Francisco, and other cities, had brought in a total of $40,000, approximately, Lord Aberdeen believed, and the expenses of the work would average about 15 per cent. of the collections. No charge of any nature was made against the charity.

Judge Swann suggested that it might be better for the allied cause if the charity was discontinued, and to this Lord Aberdeen agreed. The grounds for this suggestion, the District Attorney said, might be found in the fact that enemies would use the occasion to raise confusion in the public mind by asserting that the charity was for war purposes and that it was getting little support.

Ask Compensation Under Prohibition

Compensation for property used in the liquor business, the value of which is destroyed by prohibition legislation, is advocated by the Merchants' Association in preambles and resolutions adopted at a meeting of the Board of Directors yesterday. The Directors at their April meeting appointed a special committee, consisting of William Fellowes Morgan, President of the association, James G. White, and William A. Marble, to consider the proposal that compensation should be made in case prohibition laws are passed.

PARADES TO START RED CROSS CAMPAIGN

Women in Families of Soldiers to March in Appeal for $25,000,000.

New York City Expected to Give One-Quarter of $100,000,000 New Fund Within a Week.

Confidence that New York City would contribute its alloted quota of $25,000,000 of the $100,000,000 for the Second War Fund of the American Red Cross was the keynote of all the speeches made last night at the first get-together dinner of the thirty-one team Captains and division Chairmen at the Hotel Biltmore. The details of the campaign, which will cover the week from May 20 to 27, were discussed, and arrangements for the highest possible efficiency were made.

William C. Breed, head of the Committee of One Hundred, that has full charge of raising the money, was Chairman. Among the other speakers were Mrs. August Belmont, J. W. Dahl, Felix Warburg, William Fox, W. Fellowes Morgan, Walter Stabler, Olin J. Stephens, Louis Stewart, Joseph P. Day, Frank Presbrey, and Leo L. Redding.

After voicing his belief that the heart of the American people was upon the Red Cross, Mr. Breed said:

"We wish to see to it that every individual within the city has an opportunity to express his patriotism by contributing to the Red Cross. Our aim is to bring home to the people the fact that every dollar which is contributed to the Second Red Cross War Fund will be used for war relief purposes, and in addition, that the expenses of running this campaign will be borne by the various chapters out of the dues paid by the members of those chapters, or in some other way by voluntary contributions of money or space, which we are receiving from a great number of sources, as we have progressed in our plans during the past two or three weeks. We want people to also understand that the payment for their subscriptions may extend over a period of four months, beginning July 1, Aug. 1, Sept. 1, and Oct. 1. In order to carry the idea to the people of the democratic and broad campaign which we have planned, we have organized along six different lines of solicitation. Those six different lines are the teams campaign, with which you are familiar; the corporation campaign, the house-to-house campaign, the industrial campaign, the profit-sharing days, and entertainments and benefits."

Among the many special features that were reported on last night were the following: three large parades on Saturday, May 18, to inaugurate the drive. In the parade will be the women of the Red Cross, together with the wives, sweethearts, mothers, and sisters of men in the service. This is to be followed by a military parade.

On Sunday, May 19, pastors, priests, and rabbis of the 2,600 religious institutions have been asked to conduct special services, including the reading of the President's proclamation, the message of General Pershing and the singing of the national anthem.

Every day at 3 P. M. every church bell in the city will toll and every factory whistle will blow for half a minute. Then there will be a five second stop and the whistles will blow and the bells toll one time for each million dollars raised. A Red Cross twelve feet high will be started from Houston Street on the first day and as the national campaign for $100,000,000 progresses it will be moved uptown until 100th Street is reached.

The four-minute men will speak to 1,000,000 men, women, and children in the theatres and moving picture houses of the city during the week.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The promptness with which the American Red Cross Commission in France complied with a request for food for 50,000 refugees gathered at St. Omer and elsewhere during the recent German drive has elicited a message of thanks from Premier Clemenceau. The message, as received at Red Cross Headquarters here today by cable, said:

"I thank you heartily for the generous help given recently by your society to evacues of Pas de Calais, when you sent them provisions at St. Omer, Anvin, and Bruges. After so many tokens of your bounty toward the population, sorely tried by common misfortune, you are now helping the Pas de Calais people, who, by their energetic attitude toward the enemy, fully merit the interest you are taking in them. Allow me to be the interpreter of their gratitude."

Premier Clemenceau's secretary, one day shortly after noon, called on the Red Cross Commission and asked whether it could supply milk, cheese, beef, and flour to feed 50,000 refugees at Stomer. When the French relief train left at 7 o'clock that evening it carried five tons of condensed milk, two and a half tons of cheese, and the same amount of beef and flour. Additional food was shipped by the Red Cross on a train the next day.

On the same day, in answer to an appeal by the Minister of War, the Red Cross from its warehouse supplies sent seventy-five beds for refugee children housed in a convent in Southern France.

STETTINIUS SPIKES RUMOR.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Edward R. Stettinius, Assistant Secretary of War, issued a statement late this afternoon in denial of the published report that he had been placed in supreme charge of the ordance production program of the army.

"The statement in a morning newspaper that I have been made 'gun dictator' is very wide of the mark," said Mr. Stettinius. "General Williams, the new Acting Chief of Ordanance, is of course in charge of guns and all ordnance material. General Williams, who has just returned from France, is a man of high ability, and enters upon the discharge of his duties with a keen appreciation of the requirements of our forces abroad and a recognition of the importance of speeding up production in every possible way. He will have the whole-hearted co-operation of Colonel McRoberts of the Procurement Division and Colonel Tripp and Mr. Marshall of the Production Division. Of course I will render every possible assistance to him in the discharge of his duties.

"I believe the fullest support and encouragement should be given General Williams and his staff, and particularly in their efforts to develop the Production Division, to the end that it may reach the highest possible point of efficiency."

BENEFIT FOR HOSPITAL UNIT

President's Autographed Photograph Sells for $300.

A benefit performance for the Woman's Homeopathic Hospital Unit, for service in France, was given yesterday afternoon at the Strand Theatre under the auspices of the New York College and Hospital for Women.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, appealed for funds for the unit. He said that in this country we were feeling the scarcity of practicing physicians, due to their serving at the front. In one district of over 15,000, he said, there was not one physician left.

Leon Rothier of the Metropolitan Opera Company sang the "Marseillaise," and May Peterson, soprano, of the Metropolitan, sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" and three other songs. Sara Gurowitsch, the 'cellist, and Winifred Christie played.

TO MOTHERS OF AMERICA.

Mme. Poincare Sends Message to be Read on Mothers' Day.

PARIS, May 9.—France will join in celebrating Mothers' Day (May 12.) Cardinal Amette has directed that special services be held on that day in all churches, and Mme. Poincaré has written a letter to the mothers of America to be read from all the pulpits of that country.

The first Sunday after May 8 is always sacred in France to the memory of Joan of Arc. Thus this year's celebration coincides with Mothers' Day.

Mme. Poincaré's letter, written in the name of the French Red Cross Societies, of which she is the head, recalls that American women sent toys to French babies at the very beginning of the war and are now sending their husbands, brothers, and sons to face the hard trials that the French have known for many months. The American mothers, she says, "can be sure those dear to them will here find cordial welcome and gentlest care."

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY FOR POLICE RESERVE

Deputy Commissioner Wanamaker Sees Great Work for His New Force in Putting Down Sedition.

New York City's morals are to be toned up in the near future by the activities of a police reserve of volunteer women. It was announced at Police Headquarters last night that the Police Reserves which Commissioner Enright reorganized out of the Home Defense League, recruited so successfully by his predecessor, Commissioner Woods, was to have the prestige of this auxiliary.

The idea originated with Special Deputy Commissioner Rodman Wanamaker, the new head of the Police Reserves, who passed it along to his chief for approval yesterday in a memorandum, which was later issued to inform the public of the contemplated addition to the forces of law and order. Mr. Wanamaker laid stress in his outline on the thought that since New York women have received the vote they should have an active part in enforcing the laws.

The Special Deputy would not have the women police cope personally with rough and violent lawbreakers; on the other hand, their forte under the plan would be to keep a finger on the city's pulse in an effort to detect signs of unlawful developments before they grew to serious proportions, to watch out for cases of sedition, to uplift the general moral atmosphere of the city in the neighborhood of their posts. If need arose for the use of a nightstick or other instrument for curbing crime, the work would be referred to the men members of the force.

In his recommendation to Commissioner Enright, after describing his plan in general terms, Mr. Wanamaker said:

"Women of character and ability can be easily found, to volunteer for this work. After the Inspection District organization shall have been completed and in effective working order, it can be extended to the precinct and then to a block, so as to have in every block of inhabited territory in this city a woman in charge whose post it would be and whose duty should be to keep that block clean and wholesome by becoming acquainted with every person and condition existing therein and reporting, as may be directed by the Police Commissioner, everthing irregular or unlawful coming to her notice, so that proper police action may be taken.

"A woman in charge of a block could be assisted by one or more members of the women's Police Reserve, as the condition of the block and the number of women available might warrant, such assistants to be in command of the woman in charge. A central or headquarters, board of women under command of the Special Deputy Police Commissioner in charge, could be appointed to organize and control this force of women under rules and regulations established by the Police Commissioner.

"With a volunteer force of this kind, trained and efficiently controlled, kept free from sensational or advertising methods and held aloof from contaminating vice conditions, a Police Commissioner would be armed with an agency that would be of great use to him personally and to the police and to the city. A women's police reserve would be utilized to do useful public work in many directions in addition to its regular police duty, aiding in the Americanization of the alien elements of our population and reporting cases of sedition and disloyalty, aiding the various war activities, discovering and relieving cases of distress and destitution, comforting and cheering the unfortunate, advising and directing the weak, foolish, and idle, and setting an example of high ideals, real unselfishness, and patriotism.

Inspector John F. Dwyer, aid to Mr. Wanamaker, said last night that work on the plan of a women's police reserve would be started at once. Drills can be conducted, he stated, on three floors of the Hallenbeck Building, or in the gymnasium of Police Headquarters, or in some armory. The Inspector said that an aviation division of the men's Police Reserve, comprising 160 men, is to receive instruction in the Hallenbeck Building, near Police Headquarters, immediately. A Curtiss airplane has been obtained for instruction work.

GIANTS MOW DOWN PHILS AGAIN AND DEPART FOR WEST SEEKING NEW FIELDS OF CONQUEST

GIANTS START WEST WITH GREAT RECORD

PHILLIES BEATEN AGAIN

The Giants wound up their Spring stay at the Polo Grounds yesterday and went away from here with a record of eighteen out of nineteen games. They again beat the Phillies under Coogan's Bluff by a score of 4 to 1, compiling a second string of nine straight victories already this season.

Charley Moran, the umpire who got into a jam with the Philadelphia players on Wednesday, umpired on the bases yesterday. Here he was entirely surrounded by space and no one was able to approach him at close quarters. Rigler was behind the bat and no one swung on Rigler. Manager Pat Moran objected to some of Rigler's work early in the game, but Rigler promptly informed Pat of the great value of silence.

The only difference between the game yesterday and the others that the Giants have won, was that McGraw's men waited longer than usual before getting down to business. They didn't win until the sixth inning. Holding back so long stirred up a lot of false hopes in the Phillies and it isn't a nice thing to do, because when the Giants tore into Erskine Mayer, the Phils were leading by a score of 1 to 0 and they had every intention in the world of winning a game.

President Tener of the National League was a spectator. He went to Harlem not so much to see the ball game as to get a squint at Umpire Moran. The umpire had only Managers McGraw and Pat Moran to protect him Wednesday, so Mr. Tener happened around, thinking that perhaps he might have a chance to do some umpire protecting. The new indicator-holder's work yesterday was no example of what he can do. If Mr. Tener wants to see something good, he wants to be there some day when Moran is busy.

Burns Spoils a Shutout.

Big Jeff Tesreau was at his best yesterday and the Phils never had a chance to win. If it hadn't been for a muff by George Burns early in the game, the Quakers would have been whitewashed. Five scattered hits made up the Phillies total of batting and in only one inning, the fifth, were they able to group two safe bangs.

Mayer held the Giants in check for five innings and then McGraw's aggressive batsmen tore into the Quaker's curves and had the game in their grasp before they called a halt.

Mayer was battered hard in the fifth, but great fielding support saved him. Holke pounded a red hot smash at Mayer, who bravely knocked it down while McGaffigan picked up the ball and threw him out at first. McCarty ripped a grounder at Stock so hot that it smoked. Tesreau then smashed a liner over short, Bancroft jumping high into the air to make a sensational one-handed catch.

It was a great day for Benny Kauff. He had a perfect day at the bat with a two-bagger, two singles and a walk. Ross Young went out at first at the start of the sixth and Kauff smashed a two-bagger off the right field wall. Burns slapped a single off Bancroft's shins, the ball hopping away so far that Kauff scampered through with the first Giant run. Zim singled to right, sending Burns to third, and then McGraw yanked Rodriguez, the Cuban filler, from the pastime and injected Joe Wilhoit.

Game Tucked Away.

Wilhoit evidently knew that Fitzgerald, who was playing in right for the Phils, was a poor judge of fly balls, for he smashed a liner out in that direction and Fitz played it so poorly that it went for a hit, Burns scoring. Fletcher continued the bombardment of Mayer and his single scored Zimmerman.

The Giants got another in the seventh when Ross Young peppered a two-bagger to left and scored on Kauff's single to right.

CUBS MAKE SERIES EVEN.

PITTSBURGH, May 9.—Chicago won today's game, 6 to 2, and thereby divided the series with Pittsburgh. Sanders, starting the game for Pittsburgh, gave way to Harmon after he yielded four runs on five hits in six innings.

Harmon also was unable to stop the visiting batsmen, four hits in succession in the eighth inning scoring two more runs.

Vaughn pitched well, and although his support wavered at times he was always equal to the task of retiring the side. Pittsburgh played listless ball.

ROBINS TASTE OF VICTORY.

BOSTON, May 9.—Rube Marquard pitched Brooklyn back into the winning column today, beating the Braves in a light hitting game. The 3-to-1 score was even large for the product of straight baseball, but the Dodgers were entitled to at least a 1-to-0 score.

Marquard pitched warm weather ball, the Braves making only two real hits, while the Brooklyns got eight against Boston's entry from Indianapolis, the stocky Fillingim, who later on should strengthen Stallings's weak pitching staff.

Johnston played first base today owing to Daubert's indisposition, and his muff of a little fly, with a man on first base, in the Braves' opening inning provided the home club with its only score. Brooklyn counted in the first inning on Olson's double, a sacrifice by O'Mara, and Herzog's boot of Wheat's roller. In Boston's half, with two out, Herzog and Wickland singled and then Johnston lost Smith's fly in the sun, finally muffing the ball.

The Braves reached second base only once during the remainder of the game. In the fourth, after hits by Wheat and Johnston, with an in-between pass to Myers, two Dodgers were caught at the plate, a ticket issued to Schmandt forcing in a run after that.

Two innings later Rawlings lost an easy roller from Myers, who stole second and scored on a clean hit by Hickman. Wickland, who was tried against left-hand pitching for the first time today, made both of the Braves' undoubted hits.

YANKEES OUST VEAN GREGG FROM MOUND

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., May 9.—A batting rally which drove Vean Gregg to the clubhouse and netted five runs for the Yanks gave Miller Huggins's team the odd game of their series with the Mackmen at Shibe Park this afternoon. The big drive came in the second inning, after the home team had picked up a two-run lead in the opening frame, and though the Yanks were halted during the remainder of the game, they never again were in danger. The score was 7 to 3.

Brilliant pitching by Herb Thormahlen held the Mackmen at bay after the New Yorkers had made their outburst against Gregg. The young southpaw of the Yanks really pitched nine complete innings of shut-out ball, but the game does not go into the records that way, as Russell had yielded three runs before Thormahlen made his appearance on the hill.

Then came the big blow-up by Russell. Jamieson greeted the Yankee pitcher with a double to right and Kopp worked him for a pass. Walker attempted to sacrifice and the bunt rolled into a safe hit. Russell picked up the ball, and though he had no chance to get Walker at first base he made a throw for the bag.

The ball sailed far over Pratt's head when the latter covered first base, and rolled to the bleachers, then to the outfield. Jamieson and Kopp scored and Walker reached third base before the ball came back. Burns followed with a single to left which scored Walker and Huggins signaled Russell that he might retire.

In the second Bodie singled to centre, and Gregg walked both Miller and Hannah, filling the bases. Then he fanned Thormahlen. Marsans hit to the bleachers wall for two bases, scoring Bodie and Miller, and sending Hannah to third.

Peck's triple chased both Hannah and Marsans over the plate, and Peck followed when Baker rolled to Gardner. Larry had an easy play at first base, but tried for Peck at the plate, and the latter beat the throw.

Gregg was excused at this stage, and Adams took up the pitching burden. The latter quickly retired the side, and allowed the Yanks only four hits during the remainder of the game. Miller's homer in the eighth was the only run scored after this big rally.

RED SOX LOSE LEAGUE LEAD

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Two sacrifice flies—one by Johnson in the ninth and another by Foster in the tenth—gave Washington a 4 to 3 victory over Boston here today. The defeat cost the Red Sox the league leadership, Cleveland going ahead by winning from Detroit.

Holy Cross defeated the Fordham nine in a twelve-inning game on Fordham Field yesterday by a score of 5 to 3. The game developed into a pitchers' battle between McQuade and Gill after the seventh inning and the Worcester lad was able to go better over the long route. The game was exciting and both teams uncorked many fielding thrills. It was the first defeat for Fordham on Fordham Field this season. Gill, for Holy Cross, fanned seventeen batters. Holy Cross scored twice in the second inning on a single, a fielder's choice, and two errors. Fordham flashed to the fore in the sixth inning, having garnered one run in the fourth. Abbott singled and Coletti delivered his second home run in two days, a vicious circuit drive to right.

Holy Cross tied the count in the seventh inning. Martin singled, stole second, and came home on Scanlon's wild heave over second. This run gave the Worcester lads a new lease on the game.

ARRANGE FOR LOCAL RACING

At a meeting of the stewards of The Jockey Club held yesterday officials were appointed, in view of the opening of the racing season in the metropolitan district, which is set for next Thursday at Jamaica. W. S. Vosburgh, the official handicapper of the club, was appointed steward for the opening meeting. His duties as handicapper will be easier in future, as a new official was created, that of secretary to the handicapper. The first incumbent will be Harold Vosburgh, a son of the handicapper.

Other stewards to serve during the season will be F. R. Hitchcock at Belmont Park, H. K. Knapp at Aqueduct, Andrew Miller at Empire City, and F. R. Hitchcock at Saratoga.

The appeal of the Government for field glasses was taken up, and attention called to the fact that The Jockey Club had a large number of these glasses, which had been reserved for members of the club and their guests at the different race meets. It was decided to present these to the Navy Department.

On the report of the stewards of the Havre de Grace meeting the license of W. Ward was suspended. F. G. Martin was fined $200 for entering the horse Friendless in violation of Rule 116.

Tommy McTaggart again applied for a jockey's license, but it was refused as were the applications of Charles Borel, M. Nathan, Charles Martin, and J. McIntyre. The applications of W. J. Burke, J. W. Moore, L. P. Sharp, and Frank Kelly for trainers' licenses were refused. A number of licenses were granted.

Major August Belmont received word from France yesterday that a full brother to Hourless had been foaled at the Haras de Villas stud of the Chairman of The Jockey Club in Normandy, France. The breeding of Hourless was more or less of an experiment, as Major Belmont did not own his sire, Negofol. When Hourless proved a success, his dam, Hourglass II., was again bred to the French sire, and the colt was foaled on April 13. In all probability, he will be shipped to this country as a yearling and entered in the principal stakes.

GOLF MATCHES PLENTIFUL.

Leaders to Play Over Local Courses in Exhibitions.

The competitive golf season for the metropolitan district will get in full swing starting today, when the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association plays its first one-day tournament of the season at Arcola. It will be an eighteen-hole medal play affair, with prizes awarded for the low gross and low net, and the receipts going to the Red Cross.

While the women are making merry at Arcola the Columbia Golf team, which defeated Pennsylvania last week, will meet the Williams College golfers at Garden City in a team match with four ball contests in the morning and individual affairs in the afternoon. Captain Scott is the leader of Williams, and will play against A. L. Walker, Jr., leader of the Columbia team.

Two exhibitions of note are scheduled for tomorrow and two more for Sunday. At Garden City tomorrow Jim Barnes, Western open champion, and Jerome D. Travers, former national amateur and open champion, will play an eighteen-hole four-ball match against Walter Hagen, former open champion, and John G. Anderson, Westchester County amateur champion. Montclair is to be entertained by a handicap match in which Mrs. William A. Gavin will play against Robert White, professional, at Montclair.

The exhibitions Sunday are to be held at Oak Ridge and Hackensack. At Oak Ridge Hagen and Barnes will play against Tom McNamara and Tom Kerrigan, former professional at Siwanoy and now in the Naval Reserves. Kerrigan has been granted a furlough for the match. At Hackensack Mrs. Gavin will play against Max Marston in a handicap match over eighteen holes.

Title Bout Barred in Utah.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, May 9.—The proposed Willard-Fulton heavyweight championship bout will not be held in Utah, it was announced at the office of Governor Simon Bamberger here today. The laws of the State will not permit of the contest, according to an opinion of the Attorney General, given at the request of the Governor. Ogden sporting men have been endeavoring to secure the battle in that city.

Brooklyn Prep Defeated.

Brooklyn Prep School's baseball nine suffered its first defeat of the season yesterday, when the Peekskill Military Academy nine trounced the team from Brooklyn in a close game at Peekskill, N. Y., by the score of 3 to 2. Perry, the Peekskill twirler, showed good control, and fanned ten of Brooklyn's batters.

JACK HARE, JR., HAS BIG LEAD AT FINISH

PIMLICO, Md., May 9.—Candidates for the rich Preakness Stakes had a public trial this afternoon in the running of the Woodberry Handicap for three-year-olds, and the result showed that it will take a mighty good horse to beat W. E. Applegate's Jack Hare, Jr., in the $15,000 event on May 15. Jack Hare, Jr., picked up top weight of 123 pounds today, showed brilliant speed at the beginning of the race, and afterward was rated in front to win as he pleased by two lengths from Harry Payne Whitney's Flags.

Jack Hare, Jr., turned the mile in the fast time of 1:39 2-5, but the most remarkable feature of his victory was that he took into camp George Starr, previously undefeated as a three-year-old, and looked on as a probable favorite for the Preakness. George Starr was in receipt of six pounds from Jack Hare, Jr., and finished in fourth place, sixteen lengths behind the winner.

There was a severe shock for the form players in the running of the Pimlico Nursery, for which a purse of $2,500 was offered. Harry Payne Whitney's Blue Laddie had won both of his previous races so impressively that he was looked on as almost a certainty. In the scramble over the four and a half furlongs the Whitney crack was shuffled back several times and was beaten in a close finish by W. A. Gamble's Madame Byng and E. B. McLean's Bon Jour. Madame Byng paid better than 40 to 1 in the mutuels.

QUALITY

To the several hundred salesmen in our four stores we say "Emphasize to your customers the fact that the fabrics in the garments you are offering were contracted for a year ago and our prices are based upon the prices paid, and not upon the cost of replacement which would now be higher."

We have said this before, both in the papers and to our men, but it needs reiteration.

The other things we deal in — haberdashery, hats, shoes—are treated precisely the same way. Normal profits added to actual cost. We try to keep down prices rather than boost them.

MATCH RACE FOR PIMLICO.

Omar Khayyam May Meet Cudgel, Bondage, and Crank Again.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 9.—The sum of $10,000 has been offered by the Maryland Jockey Club for a match race to be run at Pimlico next Tuesday or Wednesday between Wilfred Viau's Omar Khayyam, Commander J. K. L. Ross's Cudgel, Mrs. James Arthur's Bondage, and Crank, owned by Samuel Ross. The owners of the last three thoroughbreds have practically agreed to the race, and all that remains to make the contest a certainty is the permission of Viau.

The quartet of thoroughbreds met yesterday in the Pimlico Spring Handicap, and, although Cudgel won, the race turned out in such a manner that there is still much discussion as to which is the best horse.

Mountaineers Win on Diamond.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., May 9.—In one of the chief games on the local schedule the West Virginia University nine defeated the University of Virginia today by the score of 7 to 4.

BASEBALL VETERANS PLAY.

Billy Sunday and Other Former Stars in Chicago Exhibition.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Baseball stars of a former generation, many known only by reputation to present-day enthusiasts, met in battle again today in a game staged, despite the rain, for several hundred Jackies from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. Among the veterans were "Billy" Sunday, once the sprinter of the National League; Fred Pfeffer, one of the greatest second basemen the game has known; "Tony" Mullane, who pitched for the "Reds," and "Jimmy" Ryan of the old Colts. Jake Stahl played first base, and was the "youngster" of the aggregation.

The veterans were divided into two teams, the All-Nationals and All-Americans. The Nationals won the game in the fourth inning when, with the score 14 to 9, rain made the continuation of the contest impossible.

OPPOSES EMPLOYING WOMEN ON CARS HERE

Labor Department Investigator Asserts They Should Not Be Lured Into Such Work.

SERVE TO KEEP WAGES DOWN

Also Reports That They Will Be Unable to Resume Former Places at Home or in Industry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Department of Labor is opposed to the employment of women as conductors and guards in the subways and on surface lines in New York and other large municipalities. Such a conclusion was reached by Benjamin Squires of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, following an investigation made in Manhattan and Brooklyn, and his findings were set forth in an official report made public today. Mr. Squires sums up his opinions in this paragraph:

"From the facts brought out, it must be evident to any thinking person that it is practically impossible to make the conditions of street railway employment even tolerably endurable to women employes, and that the operation of street cars is one of the last occupations into which women should be lured or forced."

The report shows that on Feb. 15 last there were 452 women conductors employed by the New York Railways Company, or approximately 30 per cent. of all of the conductors employed. The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company on the same day had 138 women conductors on its surface lines, and 297 women guards and conductors on its subway trains. They represented 5.6 and 21.7 per cent., respectively, of the total number of conductors and guards employed.

While admitting that, as the transit companies assert, women in their employ as guards and conductors are receiving the same wages as men, the Federal investigator expresses the belief that the employment of women is responsible in no small part for the fact that wages of all employes of the operating department have not increased as rapidly as have wages in other industries.

At the time of the investigation, the report says, women conductors worked twelve hours and more on most of the days they were employed. It was also shown that 46.6 per cent. of the women employed by the New York Railways Company began their work between midnight and 8 A. M., either by choice or allotment, and that the work of 41.7 per cent. of all of the women employes ended between 10 P. M. and 4 A. M. Conditions were about the same on the Brooklyn Rapid Transit. The report then continues:

"Those who advocate the employment of women as street car conductors have given scanty consideration to irregularity of hours, to 'within' time and to night work, or else they regard these as more than compensated by the comparative lightness of the work. It is necessary, however, to take into account the nervous strain resulting merely from riding for hours at a time on a car that is constantly starting and stopping, and from handling crowds at rush hours.

"On many cars the conductor is obliged to be on his feet constantly, and the principle has been clearly established that a woman cannot work at employment requiring constant standing without seriously endangering her health. Moreover, the conductor is exposed to cold, damp, and draughts even on the best type of inclosed-vestibule and centre-door cars.

"The point has been made repeatedly by the companies during the investigation that even when women have a choice they frequently select night runs. At this time the cars, of course, are less crowded and the work less strenuous, except, perhaps, during the after-theatre rush hours on certain lines. Some of the women have remarked that they preferred the night runs because it left them the day free to do other things. Others with families have said that the night runs enable them to look after the children and prepare the meals during the day.

"The disastrous consequence of employing women on night work to enable them to work all day for their families have been so thoroughly demonstrated in other industries that it needs no further demonstration in street car operation. Lack of sufficient rest must very soon so lessen the vitality that the woman is not only unfit for street railway service, but unable to resume her former place either in the home or in industry."

The investigator presents the statements of the New York Railways Company and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to the effect that the selective draft has drawn heavily on their employes and that others have volunteered or gone to war industries.

"It is in reference to those who leave for higher wages in other industries," the report states, "that the wage scale of street railway employes is significant. It is denied that women are employed to fill easy jobs or to lower the wage scale of men. However, the wage rates in most industries have advanced very greatly, while the rates of street railway employes in New York City and Brooklyn—and probably elsewhere—have advanced much less rapidly.

"First-year conductors are now paid 27 cents per hour on the New York transit railways companies lines and on the surface lines of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. First-year subway conductors employed by the latter company are paid 26 cents per hour; first-year guards, 24 cents. In 1914 the rate of first-year surface car conductors was 24 cents; of first-year surface-subway conductors, 23 cents; of first-year subway guards, 20 cents.

"There is thus an advance to first-year surface car conductors of 12½ per cent. in four years; to subway conductors of 13 per cent.; to first-year guards of 20 per cent."

GEN. DONNELLY RESIGNS.

Army Officer Was to Have Faced Court-Martial Yesterday.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The resignation of Brig. Gen. Arthur B. Donnelly of the Missouri National Guard has been accepted "for the good of the service." This announcement was authorized tonight by Adjt. Gen. McCain, but he declined to discuss the case. General Donnelly was charged with conduct unbecoming an officer and his trial by court-martial was suspended today by order of President Wilson soon after it had begun at New York.

The court-martial of Brig. Gen. Arthur B. Donnelly of the National Army, who is charged with conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman, in that he played cards and drank with subordinates, which was to have begun on Governors Island at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, was postponed at the last minute. The postponement was on orders received from Adjt. Gen. McCain in Washington, who acted under instruction from Secretary of War Baker. The court adjourned to meet at the call of Major Gen. William H. Carter, the President.

Sues for $2,000,000 in Real Estate.

Mrs. Hortense Tracy, who filed suit several years ago against sixty property owners of New York to recover a dower interest in realty once owned by Edward Tracy, wealthy real estate speculator, who posed as a bachelor, on the ground that she was his wife, and whose actions were discontinued, began new suits yesterday involving nearly $2,000,000 of realty in the section between Seventy-second and Ninety-first Streets and Fifth and Lexington Avenues. Among the defendants named are Andrew Carnegie, Milo M. Belding, Henry C. Emmet, and Sarah C. Mills.

DR. PAES HEADS REPUBLIC.

LISBON, May 9.—Dr. Sidonio Paes, who recently was elected to the Presidency of the Republic of Portugal by direct and universal suffrage, was formally proclaimed President of the republic today.

Stocks Make Big Advance on Heavy Buying Orders—Steel's Leadership.

For the third time this year the Stock Exchange handled more than a million shares in yesterday's session, but the two preceding big days came so soon after the turn of the year, on Jan. 2 and 3, that they might almost be credited to 1917. The upward movement which was retarded by profit taking in the steel shares on Wednesday assumed new impetus from the opening yesterday and carried prices of many active issues up from 1 to 5 points. The spirited rise served to recall the record day in the history of stock trading in this country, which occurred just seventeen years ago yesterday and culminated in the famous Northern Pacific panic.

The commanding position of the Steel shares in yesterday's market was emphasized by the frequency with which large blocks of that issue appeared on the tape on an advancing scale. From 102, the low for the day, the price moved to 107⅜ with only minor reactions, and the close saw a net gain of 4¼ points. As the day wore on bullish enthusiasm broadened to include other issues which had shown only small response to the wave of buying orders. Industrial Alcohol advanced another 3 points, several smaller steel issues from 1 to 3 points and American Sumatra Tobacco to 114¾, closing up nearly 6 points for the day. The railroad issues were firm, but more or less neglected.

Attempts to find reasons for the upward swing which has carried stocks so far since the close of the loan campaign last Saturday resolved themselves finally into the conclusion that the war is going decidedly in favor of the Allies. There has been no open talk of peace in the financial district in recent months, traders purposely keeping that out of the discussions because of the feeling they have that peace talk is incompatible with full-hearted participation in the war preparations. At the same time there is apparent a strong undertone due to the belief that Germany's resources will not suffice to carry the war on its present costly scale many months longer. Other factors among the new conditions operating in this market are the favorable crop report, the increase in investment funds through widespread economy, and the expectation of favorable action by the Government authorities on the railroad rate question. Money was in demand at 6 per cent. throughout the session.

LONDON MARKET ACTIVE.

Traders Stimulated by the Latest Military News.

LONDON, May 9.—On the Stock Exchange today military news stimulated the market. Investments, including Far Eastern securities, were in good demand. Chilean stocks responded to a fresh spurt in Valparaiso exchange, while Argentine railways hardened.

Industrials were firm, particularly munitions. Mining securities were buoyant.

Money was in ample supply and discounts were quiet.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Sinclair Oil Gained in March.

The Sinclair Oil and Refining Company's report for the March quarter reflected the unfavorable operating conditions of January and February. Of the net earnings of $1,985,440 before interest and taxes, $1,084,298, or 54 per cent., was produced in March. Information so far received from petroleum companies operating in the Southwest indicate that the severe Winter weather and transportation tieups cut heavily into shipments. The Spring improvement has been noteworthy. Cosden & Co., another big producer and refiner of Oklahoma, is understood to have shipped a larger value of products in April than in any other month of its history. After writing off $712,911 for depreciation and depletion, the Sinclair Company had a balance of $561,268 in the first quarter available for dividends, equal to a little more than 56 cents a share of stock.

The Stock Exchange fairly teemed with bullish rumors yesterday, ranging from a story that the British forces had broken through the German lines to one that the Government was considering an effort to repeal the Sherman law. Steel common was bid up actively after a rumor gained hearing that the anti-trust suit against the corporation was to be dropped. The Exchange Governors recently put a rule into effect aimed to check the spread of rumors of an unsettling character, but it could not be learned that action was taken to inquire into yesterday's crop.

The boiling stock market resulted in a turnover of 1,114,893 shares, the largest for any date since Jan. 9, when 1,342,623 shares changed hands. Steel common accounted for 335,700 shares, or more than 30 per cent. of the aggregate.

August Hechscher resigned yesterday as a Director of the Central Foundry Company, and was succeeded by R. A. Fairburn. Mr. Hechscher's action attracted attention in the Street, for the reason that he was believed for a number of years to be the largest individual stockholder of the company.

The announcement of plans for the construction of a giant ordnance plant by the Steel Corporation for the Government arouses speculation as to the effect of this contemplated unit on the earnings of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company from ordnance work in future years. Material effects in dollars and cents are submerged, however, in thoughts of the purpose of the new plant—to help win the war.

A result of yesterday's strong stock market was to lift the average price of fifty representative issues to the highest level of the year. At 71.05, the average was .10 above the previous maximum of 1918, established on Feb. 19. The demand for bonds was more insistent than on any preceding day of the year.

Yesterday was the anniversary of the Northern Pacific corner in 1901. Outside of their activity, the sessions, according to traders who recalled the memorable day seventeen years ago, had little in common.

Cost-Plus Versus Fixed Price.

There seems, from the shipbuilders' gossip, to be considerable history behind the brief announcement that the Submarine Boat Corporation's contract for building ships at Port Newark has been canceled and replaced by a new contract at a fixed price per ship. There was significance in the remark of one man who has an intimate acquaintance with the whole affair, "Score one for Charley Schwab." Meanwhile, it is obvious that with steel prices and wages stabilized by the Government, one of the strongest arguments for the cost-plus, or so-called agency, contract, disappears, and the fixed price contract, with a free hand and definite responsibility, always has been tremendously appealing to people who have confidence in themselves and their organization. Incidentally, Submarine Boat made a new high record for the year on the Curb yesterday.

The Future of the Yards.

One of the questions that is being much debated by leaders in the new American shipbuilding industry is: What will become of the present immense expansion of shipyards, which, once the war losses have been made up or are well on the way to being made up, will be far greater than will be needed to maintain the world's fleets and provide the normal yearly increase with the growth of commerce? One possible answer is supplied by a remark of the head of one of the biggest entirely new yards. "With our rail connections, our deep-water frontage, our layout of warehouses, shops, yard trackage and so on, and particularly our immense fitting-out basins and piers," he said, "we have the makings, with very little alteration, of the finest ocean freight terminal in the world."

Nationalised Shipping.

The possibility of nationalised shipping cropped up again in Sir Owen Philipp's remarks at the annual meeting of Lamport & Holt, Ltd., a report of which has just reached here. Sir Owen declared roundly that "the sea is, and always will be, open to all the world, so that shipping * * * is the very last thing to which the principle of State ownership could be safely applied."

The disproportionate demand for high-grade cotton at present, due to strict specifications in Government orders, has had an upsetting influence in the cotton trade, because the price differentials for the lower grades are by law based on average prices in actual first-hand sales at eleven Southern markets, and at this season of the year, particularly in a falling market, sales at many of these markets are small, if not non-existent, and the quotations present no real criterion of market conditions. N. L. Carpenter & Co., in order to remedy this, propose either the elimination of the inactive markets from consideration in making the prices, or the retention of differences established about midseason throughout the dull months.

Wright-Martin and Curtiss Aero, the two curb airplane leaders, have not yet shown signs of perturbation at the various Government investigations into the industry. On the contrary, both stocks have been rather stronger than before, and some of the Wright-Martin "boomers," who were so energetic some months ago, are now talking about more big contracts for Hispano-Suiza motors as a sequel to the investigation and the restricted usefulness of the Liberty motor.

Talking Peace Again.

For the last few days the Cotton Exchange, after an almost complete abstinence of several months, has been returning to one of its favorite amusements—peace talk. Apparently it is the opinion of the talkers that prices are now once more so low that "peace talk is bullish in cotton."

Trade in the Philippines.

The National Bank of Commerce in New York has issued a long and careful analysis of the commercial possibilities of the Philippines, among whose most interesting features are that there is a scarcely-touched field there for agricultural machinery, a steadily growing market for cheap automobiles, in which the United States has things all its own way, and for farm tractors, and that the Filipino is rapidly learning to wear American boots and shoes.

U. S. STEEL TO BUILD BIG ORDNANCE PLANT

INTERIOR LOCATION CHOSEN

The vast plans of the United States Government for the conduct of the war to victory were emphasized yesterday through information made public by Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Steel Corporation, in respect to the construction of a giant ordnance plant. The project had been hinted at in Government circles for several weeks, but Judge Gary's announcement was the first authoritative discussion of it.

"At the solicitation of the Secretary of War," said he, "the United States Steel Corporation has undertaken to construct and equip for, and at the expense of the Government, upon a site in the interior of the country, a plant for the manufacture of cannon and projectiles of large sizes and in great quantities, and to operate the same when finished.

"At best, the time required will extend over a considerable period, and the cost will be large, but the work will progress with all practicable speed, and economy in the use of money will be practiced. It is hoped and expected the results will be creditable to the country.

"The work will be in the immediate charge of a committee consisting of a Vice President and the Controller of the Corporation, and eight others designated from the officers (Presidents or Vice Presidents) of the various manufacturing subsidiary companies, and all selected because of their education, experience, and peculiar fitness. This committee will keep in close touch with the building and operating organization which is being formed, and with the officers of the Steel Corporation and with the War Department.

"Officers of the corporation and of the subsidiary companies will receive no compensation for their services. Accurate books of account will be kept which, with all records, files, and other documents and papers, will be open and subject to examination by Government officials or other properly appointed representatives.

"General plans are being rapidly prepared and will soon be ready for examination by the Ordnance Department or other bureau, and, when approved, the corporation will be given a free hand in construction and operation, holding itself responsible for the faithful performance of the duty imposed by the terms of the contract. The corporation, in consequence of the magnitude of its business, most of which, directly or indirectly, is in aid of the military necessities of the Government and its allies, had hoped to avoid the necessity of engaging in work of the kind now entered upon, but was persuaded by the War Department that it was imperatively required under existing conditions."

Judge Gary limited his discussion of the new plant to the formal statement, and it could not be learned where the works were to be located. It has been reported that the site would be near Pittsburgh, close to existing plants of the Steel Corporation which would facilitate quick deliveries of construction material and assure an adequate supply of fuel at all times.

WILL MAKE LARGEST CANNON.

Secretary Baker Tells of Ordnance Factory Plans.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Secretary Baker announced today that the War Department had entered into an arrangement with the United States Steel Corporation by which that corporation undertakes to construct, equip, and operate for the Government a modern ordnance plant, upon a site to be selected, in the interior of the country.

"A committee formed from officers of the corporation and its subsidiary companies," said Secretary Baker, "men fitted by education and experience, will be in immediate charge of the work. These men will receive no compensation. The plant is to be built, equipped and operated at the expense of the Government by the United States Steel Corporation without profit. Cannon of the largest calibre will be manufactured, as well as heavy projectiles in large quantities.

"While the United States Steel Corporation, like other steel manufacturers, are full of work and have always gladly undertaken production of finished materials wanted by the Government, they were persuaded by the Secretary of War to undertake this additional task which they patriotically agreed to do, and have placed their best energies and the strength of their economic position at the disposal of the War Department."

THE COTTON MARKET

Trading Is More Active and Stronger—Prices Advance from 75 to 88 Points.

The local cotton market was not only considerably more active yesterday, but also stronger than it has been for some time. The market was so thoroughly liquidated by recent declines that the cumulative effect of some quiet accumulation by trade interests which has been going on this week, together with the development of uneasiness among the big short interest, found expression in advances which at their maximum added $4 a bale to prices. The close was very steady, with prices well maintained and net advances of from 75 to 88 points.

With the underlying market conditions favorable for an advance, the usual crop of news and gossip tending in the same direction was not lacking, but not much of it seemed worth taking with great seriousness. Weather map readers saw cooler weather and retarded cotton growth in the Southwest, and there was an entire procession of bullish war, or rather peace, rumors. More concrete was the talk of steady increases in overseas movement, following the falling marine insurance rates and the progress of the shipyards. Moreover, nothing came from any Southern market to indicate that the determination of spot holders had been weakened by the recent declines.

The opening was steady, and not particularly active, from 2 to 6 points. There was a bit of selling on the weather, but observers noted that some of the floor operators who are credited with being most heavily short, took prompt advantage of offerings at anything below the opening. The most active hours of the day were in the early afternoon, and coincidentally the market went up fastest then. There was some buying of October attributed to trade sources, but this did not follow the market up, and toward the close, although prices stood up, business fell off considerably.

One of the minor bits of good news for the trade was the receipt of an application for the licensing of a new 50,000-bale warehouse on the Brooklyn waterfront. Four-fifths of its capacity, it is said, is already bespoken. No exports were reported yesterday. Southern spot markets were unchanged to 75 points higher, the changes being in the direction of parity, and moderate business.

BURLINGTON EARNINGS CUT.

The report of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company for the calendar year 1917, issued yesterday, shows a net decrease for the year of $3,818,230 in railway operating income, but this, relative to the total of $35,280,757, is rather less than the average loss last year of roads generally considered in the Burlington's class, and the net income of $29,406,033 after all charges, showing a decrease of $3,597,692, as compared with 1916, still amounted to $26.53 a share on the 1,108,391 shares of capital stock outstanding. The earnings per share in 1916 amounted to $29.76.

The Burlington, in August, 1917, paid an extra dividend of 10 per cent. on its stock out of accumulated surplus, in addition to its regular dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum. Payment of dividends, sinking fund withdrawal, and "appropriations of income" were made which exactly consumed the net income for the year. A surplus of $4,998,715 had been left on the books the previous year, despite appropriations written off of $17,264,595. The company's balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1917, shows a profit and loss surplus of $115,604,586. The gross income for the year was $122,342,707, with net revenues of $43,710,864. This was practically identical with those of the previous year, on a considerable increase in gross revenues. The decline in net was practically entirely due to heavy increases in taxes.

RESERVE BANK HERE EARNS $3,733,000

TOTAL INCOME $4,929,213

$2,455,000 Came from Bills Discounted for Members and $1,843,000 from Acceptances.

A remarkable expansion in the business and activities of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York is shown in the annual report for the year ended Dec. 31 last. The bank's income, which was only $983,609 in the previous year, amounted to $4,929,213 in 1917, of which $2,455,000 came from bills discounted for members and $1,843,000 from acceptances. The total expenses were $1,195,000, leaving net earnings of $3,733,000, which compares with $426,000 in the preceding year.

After deductions for unissued reserve notes charged off, depreciation reserve, franchise tax, and dividends, there remained a surplus of $649,363. The bank paid $1,942,000 in dividends to the member banks holding its stock. There is $18,695,000 capital paid in, comparing with $11,865,000 a year earlier.

An interesting table in the annual statement shows the comparative cost of the bank's activities in connection with the first two Liberty Loan campaigns. The total outlay for work in this district for the 3½ per cent. loan was $48,041, of which $10,281 was spent by the publicity department. For the second loan expenses jumped to $542,862, of which publicity was charged with $222,861. Salaries in the publicity department were $26,000, printing and stationery cost $97,000, and miscellaneous items $75,000. The bank will be reimbursed for its loan expenses by the Treasury Department.

Attention is called to the continued increase in the volume of bankers' acceptances created, which have circulated in a steadily broadening open market. At the close of the year 1916 it was stated that there were outstanding about $250,00,000 of dollar acceptances, including bills of foreign origin on American merchants. It is estimated that at the end of last year the volume of such paper had increased to from four to five hundred million dollars. The increases, while general in all classes of bills eligible for discount with reserve banks are most notable in the bills arising from domestic transactions and from the increasing trade between the United States and the Orient.

"The more general recourse during the year to bankers' credits for financing the large seasonable movements in commodities is an indication of a wider understanding and appreciation, by the borrower and banker alike, of the advantages of this form of financing transactions that in themselves furnish the means of discharging the oblibations incurred by the taker of credit and acceptor," says the report. "With the increased volume of business, the number of accepting banks and purchasers of bills also has steadily increased. The names of many well-known institutions located in the larger cities of the country have now become known as acceptors through their acceptances offered in the open market in New York. Dealers report an increasing interest on the part of out-of-town banks as investors in prime bills, evidenced both in the number of new buyers and the volume of their purchases. Indicative of the increase are the reports of two houses whose sales this year have in each case exceeded $300,000 and neither of which handled over $60,000,000 of bankers' bills last year. The larger number of dealers and bill brokers specializing in bankers' acceptances is another indication of the widening interest in the development of the open market."

TRANSFER TAXES DISCUSSED

State Controller and Aids Plan Means for Getting More Revenue.

More than 200 transfer tax appraisers and attorneys from the various counties of the State were present yesterday at the conference arranged by State Controller Travis to discuss new inheritance tax legislation. The meeting was held in the rooms of the Merchants' Association in the Woolworth Building, and will continue today. Deputy Controller William Boardman presided. Recent legislation designed to prevent the loss to the State in the future of taxes in such cases as that of the estate of Mrs. Hetty Green, in which case, it is estimated, the State has lost about $12,000,000 in taxes, was discussed.

State Controller Travis, in his address of welcome, pointed out that the transfer tax laws have thus far added more than $200,000,000 to the State's receipts, and that during the last three years four estates alone paid $15,000,000. State Senator Knight of Wyoming County, Lafayette B. Gleason, attorney for the State Controller in New York County; Samuel B. Botsford, transfer tax attorney in Erie County, and City Controller Craig also spoke. Controller Craig mentioned one man living in New York who has $30,000,000, but has never paid a cent of personal taxes here. He believed that such cases require remedial legislation.

Unnecessary Tax Puzzles

Law was superimposed on law—so that comparison and duplication of effort were necessary at every stage.

They will set forth suggestions for betterment resulting from their study of the situation and from the experience and study of others.

STEEL COMMON SOARS IN MILLION-SHARE DAY

Gains 4 1-4 Points to 107 1-4, a New High Record for Year, Because of Crop Prospects.

The rising tide of stock quotations, in evidence all the week, gained in strength yesterday, and the product of heavy buying, particularly in the steel issues, was a turnover in excess of 1,000,000 shares. Prices were bid upward from 2 to more than 6 points, with the activity and vigor of Steel common making it easily the feature of the session. Steel rose 4¼ points to 107¼ at the close, a new high record for the year. The day's business was the largest since Jan. 2 and 3, when sales greater than 1,200,000 shares each were recorded.

Speculative interest on the part of the public appeared to be stimulated by the excellent crop prospects reported by the Government on Wednesday, and also by the absence of disturbing news from the western battlefront. Commission houses with telegraphic connection to interior points were active buyers of Steel and certain railroad stocks. The demand broadened into the bond market, where railroad and seasoned industrial issues were advanced in many cases to new high levels for the year.

These were some of the stocks to score important gains: American Sumatra Tobacco, 5⅞; Bethlehem Steel, Class B, 2½; Canadian Pacific, 4⅝; Corn Products, 2¼; New Haven, 1⅛; Pullman, 3½; Texas Company, 3¼, and United States Industrial Alcohol, 8 points. The best quotations were reported toward the close of the day.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.

The crop news coming to hand yesterday was mostly favorable, especially from the Northwest, where it was said that soaking rains will just about assure the crop. Wheat is coming up to a good stand, and it was further said that many patches that have not been plowed in years were being planted in wheat. A number of favorable crop accounts were also received from Kansas, and it was quite generally agreed that the Winter wheat crop at the moment is considerably better than the figures given out by the Government as of May 1.

RYE.

Reports from the West showed the rye market demoralized, and it was also easier here, with No. 2 Western quoted at $2.36 cost and freight to arrive New York export. Holders of No. 2 rye in Chicago were said to be wiling to sell at 25 cents under Tuesday's prices.

CORN.

Important advances occurred in the corn market reflecting nervous activity on the part of a large short interest, which was somewhat alarmed over the prospects for lower temperatures in the West, and possibly frost. After advancing 1⅝c over the previous night on Juy contracts, the market had an afternoon setback due to more favorabe war advices from the western front, but steadied up again near the close, which was practically at best point of the day on July and net unchanged on May contracts. Cash corn was quiet here; kiln dried No. 3 yellow being quoted at $1.55, cost, insurance and freight New York and No. 4 yellow $1.57, cost, insurance and freight New York.

CHICAGO PRICES.

OATS.

The feature of oats was a jump of 2⅝c in May contracts, which sold at 76c. and closed only a little under highest of the day, at 1½@2c net rise. Cash oats were firm here, natural being quoted at 84@85c, and clipped white, 86@89c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

In sympathy with grain the provision market showed moderate firmness early, but met realizing sales which weakened the market in the afternoon, so that final prices were generally under the previous night. The arrivals at Chicago were 32,000 hogs, with 25,000 expected on Friday. There were 4,000 hogs at Kansas City and 14,000 at Omaha.

COFFEE.

The coffee market recovered part of Wednesday's losses during yesterday's trading. General business remained very quiet, but there was some buying by trade interests late in the afternoon, and, after opening unchanged, the market closed at a net advance of 3@7 points. The local spot market was dull and unchanged on the basis of 8⅝c for Rio 7s and 11c for Santos 4s.

SUGAR.

While it is true that only a moderate amount of refined sugar has been available from brokers the last day or two, at the same time the demand has been less urgent and the retail trade is able to supply the wants of their customers. Prices were unchanged at 7.45c for fine granulated. In raw sugar no new developments occurred and prices remained at the fixed level of 4.985c for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 6.005c for centrifugal.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 5,589 packages. Supplies of high grades of fresh creamery were a little short, and the market had a slightly firmer tone, without much change in values. Secondary grades are still ruling quiet. Ladles rather easy, and packing stock in light demand. Creamery, higher than extras, a lb., 46½@47c; extras, (92 score,) 46c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 43@45½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 38@42c; thirds, 35@37c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 48½@49c; extras, 47½@48c; firsts, 44@47; seconds, 40@43c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 45½@46c; good to prime, 43@45c; common to fair, 36@42c; renovated, extras, 39½@40c; firsts, 38@39c; lower grades, 34@37c; imitation creamery, firsts, 35@36c; ladles, current make, firsts, 34@34½c; seconds, 32@32½c; lower grades, 30@31½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 32@32½c; No. 2, 31@31½c; lower grades, 28@30c.

EGGS.—28,097 cases. Arrivals are still running lighter and have shown a considerable decrease so far this week. Trade is rather quiet and selective, being best for the higher qualities obtainable under the top prices asked for storage packings. There is little demand for the latter for storage purposes, but some lots are being taken for current use in the range quoted. Most of the current packed Western eggs, ungraded, are selling at 35½@36c, with ordinary and lower qualities, including stock from southerly sections, ranging downward. Some of the best Northern eggs are reaching 36½c, and the outside quotation for firsts is raised to cover these sales. Good dirties and checks are in fair demand and steady to firm, some prime checks selling a little higher than recently quoted. Nearby white eggs rather plentiful, but the supply shows a small proportion of strictly fancy goods; only such reach top quotation; a good deal of the supply has no outlet above 39@40. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 38@38½c; storage packed firsts, 37@37½c; regular packed extra firsts, 37c; regular packed firsts, 35½@36½c; seconds and poorer, 33½@35c; fresh gathered No. 1, dirties, storage packed, 34c; No. 1, regular packed, 33@33½c; No. 2 and poorer, 31@32½c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 30@31½c; under grades, 23@29c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites fine to fancy, 41@42c; ordinary to prime, 38@40c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 38@40c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 37@39c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 38@39c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 36@37c; duck eggs, 29@45c; goose eggs, 50@60c.

Gross Receipts of $12,584,367 Show Decline of $2,386,748—Weather and Labor Blamed.

The American Beet Sugar Company was notably successful in solving its labor problem at the Colorado plants last year by erecting housing facilities for its employes. The report for 1917, issued yesterday, said that the work begun two years ago brought such favorable results that $100,000 has been appropriated to build houses in the sugar beet growing fields of California. The Colorado houses so far constructed, of "adobe" number 138.

"The factory management, as a rule," the annual statement said, "supplies labor for the beet farmers in all districts. Beet culture requires more labor than other agriculture, and an assured supply of labor is an important inducement to farmers to plant beets."

The company's gross receipts from sugar last year amounted to $12,584,367, a decline of $2,386,748 from the total of the year before. The fiscal period ends March 31. Manufacturing and selling costs and taxes absorbed $10,117,076, an increase of $848,964. Outside income amounted to $667,896, leaving a balance of $3,135,187 for dividends, compared with $5,126,676 in the 1917 year. After paying the preferred stock dividend, the total available for the junior shares was equal to $18.90 a share, against $38.84 in the preceding year.

"Notwithstanding the material increase in the domestic beet acreage in 1917-18, warranting a sugar estimate of 20,000,000 bags," H. Rieman Duval, President, said, "unfavorable weather and labor conditions reduced the actual outturn to 15,276,000 bags—the smallest since 1914—against 16,400,000 bags in 1916-17. There are now unsold 3,400,000 bags, compared with 2,000,000 a year ago. The 1917-18 production of this company was 1,696,544 bags, against 2,155,963 bags in 1916-17. There are now on hand 334,346 bags, compared with 277,100 bags of sugar a year ago."

The report said that a plant was in process of construction at Oxnard, Cal., at an estimated cost of $123,939, to extract potash, ammonia, &c., from waste water from the beet factory. "This plant, it is expected," the report added, "will be ready for operation when the factory begins work the coming Summer, and it is estimated that the profit on its production this campaign will exceed its cost, and that thereafter, even with peace prevailing, the value of its products will insure continued profitable operation."

The average selling price of the sugar produced was $7.72 per bag, an increase of 87 cents over the preceding year's average. The cost of production was $6.21 per bag, against $4.24 the year before, and the net earnings per bag decreased $1.10.

OVERMAN BILL UP MONDAY.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Agreement to take up next Monday the Overman bill giving the President authority to reorganize Government departments was reached today in the House.

There will be opposition, and probably extended debate, but the House leaders expect no such fight as that which held the measure in the Senate for many weeks.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Stocks closed strong in a very active market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday. Steel shares, especially Steel common, supported by heavy buying orders, started a sharp advance after midday and closed at 107, a gain of 4 points. The action in this issue gave the general list assistance in the upward movement, with the result that, at the close, prices of a majority of the issues were at new high levels. Losses in the earlier profit taking movement were more than regained. The gains in the leading securities at the close were from 1 to 4 points.

EXPORTS TO NORWAY NOW PERMITTED

Schedules Enumerating Commodities and Quantities of Each Made Public.

RULES AS TO GUARANTEES

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The War Trade Board announced tonight that, in consequence of the conclusion of a general commercial agreement with Norway, exports to that country of commodities embraced in the schedules attached to that agreement were about to be resumed.

The schedules enumerating the commodities, and the quantities of each, which Norway is entitled to import from this country or from other sources were also made public. Exports from the United States will be licensed subject to the general policy of conservation and to the general rules and regulations of the War Trade Board.

The board further announced that no purchases for export nor arrangements for the manufacture for export of any article should be made before an export license had been secured.

Various commodities included in the schedules of exports have hitherto been consigned to one or another of the Norwegian import associations, which are now in process of reorganization. The War Trade Board will not consider applications for licenses to export any of these commodities until the appropriate import association shall have issued a new certificate of guarantee covering the consignment specified in the application.

Guarantees issued by such associations prior to May 10, 1918, will not be accepted. Prospective importers of such articles must obtain the appropriate certificate of guarantee, dated subsequent to May 10, 1918, from the proper association and forward the serial number thereof and the name of the association issuing the same to the prospective exporter in the United States.

Export licenses will be valid only for shipments to be made on vessels flying the Norwegian flag.

The schedules of commodities with the quantities of each which Norway will be entitled to import, as laid down in the agreement, are as follows, the amounts being for a year's consumption and calculated in metric tons unless otherwise specified:

SCHEDULE A—FOODSTUFFS.

TELLS JEWELERS TO BE FAIR

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 9.—Declaring that certain existing practices menaced the jewelry industry of the future, Joseph E. Reagan of Indianapolis made a plea for a square deal to the public before the National Wholesale Jewelers' Association, of which he is President, at the eleventh annual convention here today.

"Jewelry men must clean house," Mr. Reagan said. "Manufacturers and dealers must see the handwriting on the wall. It is a mark of intelligence, as well as patriotism, for us to start in now to put into practice those things that will be forced upon us later as a matter of self-preservation. There is no place for grafters in the jewelry business.

"We must establish good-will and confidence, and both assets must be built up through earnest co-operation. Honesty is not only the best policy, it is the only policy. Dishonesty is an economic waste. It bears down. There are a lot of white lie slaves in the jewelry business who must be routed out. This association must both practice and preach the doctrine of the square deal."

H. L. Brown of the Waltham Watch Company, Waltham, Mass., predicted that there would be a scarcity of watches for new stock, and that prices would rise. Manufacturers are seriously effected by the labor problem, he stated.

Men's Socks in Demand.

Trade in men's socks for Summer wear is said to be as active as the limited supplies available will permit. Demand has been very good in all sections, and higher prices have apparently had no deterring effect. Two-color combinations in ribbed half hose are said to be particularly popular this season. Such combinations as black with white, red or green; tan with white, green with blue and green with white seem to be getting the major part of the business. But it is said that few retailers have been able to get more than enough to carry them through the immediate future.

New "Helmet" for Sports Wear.

The French army helmet is the basis for the design of one of the latest novelties in sports hats for women to make its appearance in the local market. One such model seen has the sky blue cloth of the French uniform for the narrow turned down brim of the helmet while its crown is covered with tinfoil colored to give the appearance of old used steel. Others are made with olive-drab brims and crowns of dull greenish copper-colored tinfoil. It is thought that they are among the most striking novelties of a military nature that have been produced this year.

Vogue for Colored Handkerchiefs.

The vogue for colored handkerchiefs for women is said to be growing rapidly and to be spreading to all parts of the country. According to reports from the local trade, the pure white handkerchief in some sections has become almost a thing of the past. Though stripes and checks are still in demand, it seems that just now most attention is being paid to those handkerchiefs made in solid colors with white borders in geometrical designs. Pink, brown, green, lavender and blue are the colors most frequently seen in these lines. It is said that the better qualities of linen are the most popular.

More About Special Orders.

The growth of the "special order" evil, which was mentioned in Tuesday's TIMES, is said to be especially marked in the shoe trade, and particularly so in relation to the better grades of merchandise. In certain quarters it has grown to such an extent that attempts have been made to check it by charging a premium on all single pairs. This plan, which has hardly been in effect long enough to have a very marked effect one way or the other, calls for the payment of anywhere from $1 to $3 a pair over the regular wholesale price on all "specials." It is said however, that this amount does not begin to cover the direct and indirect cost of making single pairs.

To Standardize Business Forms.

In order to standardize the various forms that enter into the conduct of the retail millinery business, with an eye to making things quicker and more accurate for the powers that be, the Retail Millinery Association of America is asking its members all over the country to send in samples of the forms used by them. These forms, which will include sales slips, cost finding sheets, workroom slips, style questionnaires, &c., will be gone over here as they are turned in. The best ones will be taken as models in the conduct of the campaign for standardizing. Considerable advantage to the retail end of the millinery business is expected to be derived in this way.

Season of Many Styles.

Reports as to the success of the Eton jacket and the bolero coat suits do not all agree. Whereas one manufacturer will say that Eton jacket suits have not been good this Spring, another will claim that he has sold all he could make of this type of garment. And the same disparity exists as to bolero suits. "As a matter of fact," said one large manufacturer, "it has not been a season of one or two, or even three styles. Taking the country as a whole, everything within reason has been good. What did not go in one section went in another, and general business has therefore been very good."

Japanese Silks Are Very High.

Late reports from the Yokohama raw silk market indicate that prices there are very firm on the high record basis of 1,600 yen, ($800,) a picul of about 133 pounds for Kansai No. 1, and 1,570 yen, ($785,) a picul for Sinshiu No. 1. Unsold stocks there now total about 9,000 bales, which is somewhat larger than the supply that existed at this time a year ago. The first crop of new silk at Canton is reported to total 8,000 bales, with the quality good. American buying in that market lately has lessened sharply the supply of sixth crop silks. While there is an awakening interest in steam filatures and tsatlees reported from Shanghai, it appears that nothing of importance has developed there as yet. Milan reports firm prices in spite of the quieter business resulting from the enforced curtailment of shipments to Switzerland. The local market has moved up sharply in the last week as a result of the conditions in the primary centres. The advance is said to average 30 cents a pound.

Gray Goods Sales Increase.

A larger business was done in the local gray goods market yesterday than for some time. One of the big Southern factors, first hand, came into the market with offerings of spot 38½-inch 64-60s at 17½ cents, and sales of these goods at that price had a disturbing effect all through the market. The result was a quite general drawing-in of horns on the part of the mills. This, in turn, brought about sales of July-August 39-inch 72-76s at 22 cents from first hands, while 39-inch 68-72s and 56-44s were sold from the same sources at 19 and 14¾ cents, respectively, for delivery during the remainder of this month. First hands also did business on 27-inch 64-60s at 12¾ cents for July-September shipment. From second hands 38½-inch 64-60s were again sold at 17 cents for delivery in the last quarter of this year, while late contracts of 60-48s in that width sold from the same sources at 15 cents. These were the mills' closing prices on printcloths:

AUTO OUTPUT NOT TO BE CUT

No Demand from Government for Further Curtailment.

As a result of the three-days' meeting in Washington between representatives of the automobile industry and the War Industries Board and other authorities, the Directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, who met yesterday at 7 East Forty-second Street to discuss the situation, gave out a statement which indicated that no demand has yet been made for a radical curtailment of the production of passenger cars.

The committee which discussed motor car manufacture with the War Industries Board, the War Department, the Railroad Administration, and other departments, made this statement:

"After a thorough investigation the committee was convinced that the Government demands were very great, and volunteered all possible assistance and pledged the entire resources of the industry to speeding up the war program, keeping in mind at the same time its accomplishment, with as little disturbance to general business as possible.

"Until the Government needs are more definitely known the industry, in addition to the manufacture of airplanes, tanks, tractors, shells, mine anchors, helmets, and other munitions, will apply itself to help solve the great problem of transportation which is directly in its lines."

Some time ago the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce authorized a voluntary curtailment of passenger cars of 30 per cent. The Government has shown no tendency to reduce the output of motor trucks which are being made in quantities for the army. The demand for trucks has increased largely because of railroad congestion and the utility of trucks for urgent transportation.

NEW FREIGHT EMBARGO.

Move to Reduce Congestion in Baltimore and Philadelphia.

An important measure to reduce freight congestion at the export centres of Philadelphia and Baltimore was announced yesterday in a new embargo order to go into effect on May 15. The Philadelphia-Baltimore-Pittsburgh Conference Committee, a branch of the National Railroad Administration, ordered that after that date domestic freight in carload lots will not be permitted to be shipped from outside points to freight stations, team tracks, or private sidings in the two cities without special permits covering each individual shipment.

The embargo, according to announcement made by Samuel Rea, Chairman of the Conference Committee, will probably be effective at least for the duration of the war. In order that the permit privilege may not be abused, the consignee instead of the shipper must get a permit before freight will be allowed to go forward. The reason for this step is to insure prompt removal from cars of freight received at these cities.

"The new regulations will bring about practically the complete pooling and interchangeable use for incoming carload domestic traffic of the terminal facilities of all railroads serving Philadelphia and Baltimore," said the announcement. "If the station of one road is congested, the shipments may be diverted to the station of another road. A somewhat similar plan, adapted to the especial requirements of the Port of New York, has already been placed in operation there, and has brought marked improvement in reducing congestion and increasing the volume of freight handled."

They Write Too Poorly.

A certain dry goods store was having so much trouble as a result of badly written and misspelled names on sales slips that the idea was hit upon of having the customers write their own names when the goods purchased were to be delivered. A short trial of this scheme, however, brought no relief, for most women customers wrote so poorly that the sales slips were often more puzzling than under the old system. Several reasons were given for this, including the fact that many wrote their names without taking off their gloves, that they wrote them hastily and carelessly or that they actually misspelled them. Similar trouble is told of in the case of stores which have a signature system of protection in the event of a "charge-carry" purchase. Not only are many signatures written so hurriedly or poorly that they do not correspond with those on the credit office's cards, but Mrs. John Brown will as likely as not sign as Mrs. Mary Jane Brown, Mrs. M. J. Brown, or plain Mrs. J. Brown. All of which makes life hard for the credit manager.

Speculation in Piece Goods.

It is said that speculation of a disturbing kind is going on in certain materials, particularly serges, wool velours and broadcloth. "The speculators," explained one authority in the local trade, "will go to a small cloak and suit manufacturer who is not fully aware of the fabric situation and will offer him a substantial profit for his materials. Sometimes the profit is greater than it would be if he were to cut the materials into garments, and he accepts the offer, thinking that he can replace the goods from some source not known to the purchasers of his stock. He later finds that he cannot do this, and, frequently, in order to maintain his establishment, has to buy back his own goods, paying the speculators a handsome profit."

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Private House Buying on East Seventy-sixth and East Eightieth Streets.

Two Lenox Hill residences passed into new ownership yesterday, further reflecting the steady interest which is being manifested in high-class private houses in the blocks near Fifth Avenue.

The five-story modern dwelling, with elevator, at 21 East Eightieth Street, formerly the home of the late Mrs. Anson W. Hard, has been sold by the executors of the estate, W. R. K. Taylor and Augustine J. Smith, to a client of Pease & Elliman for occupancy. The house, which adjoins the home of Henry W. Robbins, is in the same block with the dwellings owned by Frank W. Woolworth, and acquired recently for the occupancy of members of his family. The house just sold is assessed at $85,000, but has been held at $110,000. The reported consideration, however, was somewhat below the holding figure.

Negotiations were also completed for the sale of the four-story residence at 21 East Seventy-sixth Street, on a lot 19.6 by 102.2, between Fifth and Madison Avenues. The property was owned by the Farmers Loan and Trust Company, as trustee of the estate of Samuel Callaway, and has been held at $75,000. Other owners in the block include Herbert Parsons, Franklin B. Lord, Elizabeth B. Fahnestock, Harry Content, and Lois M. Lyman. Pease & Elliman also negotiated this transaction.

Important Midtown Lease.

An interesting transaction from both the real estate and banking standpoints was reported yesterday, which will bring a new tenancy to the midtown section.

The National City Company of Wall Street leased for a long term of years at a rental aggregating nearly $1,000,000, through Douglas L. Elliman & Co., from the Park Avenue Operating Company, J. Curry Watson, President, the corner store in the Ziegler Building, at the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street.

Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Company, when asked about the uptown move, said: "We are attempting in our distributing scheme to handle distribution of investment securities in much the way merchandise is handled, and throughout our twenty-five correspondent offices in the United States, we are seeking ground-floor locations to the end that a person having surplus moneys may be able to walk from the street into one of our investment stores to buy a bond or short-term note, with as little trouble as he would walk into a store to buy a pair of gloves.

"Our opening of an uptown office on one of the most prominent and busy corners of the City of New York is but a logical step in our plan of merchandising. There is no reason why on Fifth Avenue, crowded as it is with people of means, there should not be a store in which money may be invested as well as stores in which money may be spent."

$150,000 Sale on Amsterdam Avenue.

The Winter Realties, Benjamin Winter, President, purchased from the Palher Realty Company the six-story Clorinda Apartment, at the southeast corner of 106th Street and Amsterdam Avenue. The structure occupies a plot 47.10 by 100, and was held at $150,000.

All Cash Deal on University Place.

William Cruikshank's Sons sold to a client of the Charles F. Noyes Company, for all cash, 82 University Place, a four-story dwelling just north of Eleventh Street.

The property was valued and assessed at $25,000. The present leases in the building will be canceled, and the new owners will immediately alter the property from plans of John H. Knubel, architect, for business, studio, and living purposes.

The former power station at 17 Front Street, on a plot 65 by 105 by irregular, near Broad Street, has been leased by the New York Railways Company to the Battery Warehouse Corporation for a term of twenty-one years at a total rental involving about $200,000.

After extensive alterations the property will be used for warehouse purposes. Julius Haas was the broker in the transaction.

The Leonard Morgan Company leased the three-story loft building 538 West Fifty-third Street for the estate of John Wilson to the Royal Chemical Works for one year.

Stupendous Offer

$5.00 First Payment $5.00 per Month

These beautiful quarter acre plots, on the south side of Staten Island, close to the beaches, and within the city limits, are ready for cultivation—an ideal spot for this summer's garden, where enough vegetables may be grown to pay a large part of the cost of your plot.

In order to hasten the settlement of Chas. E. Wood's estate and give city dwellers a chance to lessen the cost of living, we are offering 140 plots at about half their pre-war prices. But quick action will be necessary to secure one. These plots are high, dry and in a most attractive section. The improvements alone cost us a substantial portion of the price we are asking.

BREAK IN HARMONY OF CITY OFFICIALS

HULBERT MAKES COMPLAINT

Two disputes, indicating a serious future division among members of the city administration, occurred at yesterday's meeting of the Sinking Fund Commission. In both cases Controller Craig took a decided stand against other Tammany members of the commission and Mayor Hylan played the rôle of peacemaker. The first controversy occurred over the appointment of subcommittees to handle special business that comes before the commission. At last week's meeting President Alfred E. Smith of the Board of Aldermen offered a resolution for the appointment of three committees to take up the leasing of docks, waterfront privileges, and the leasing of property other than on the waterfront. The commission voted to appoint such committees.

The Controller yesterday moved that the vote be rescinded and that all such matters be referred to a committee of the whole. The motion was lost, as only the Controller voted for it. The Controller, not satisfied with the vote, insisted that the matter be discussed. President Smith said he was willing to fight it out, but the other members of the commission showed no disposition to prolong the argument. The Aldermanic President insisted that the business of the commission should be referred to separate committees. When the Controller showed no disposition to agree Mr. Smith, in the interest of harmony, changed his attitude.

"This is a small board," he said, "and if we cannot co-operate, what's the use of trying to do business? I am willing to give in for the sake of cooperation, but I serve notice now that in the future I will strenuously object to the referring of matters to individual members of the board. All matters must be referred to this committee."

The commission thereupon rescinded its action of a week ago, and hereafter all matters will be referred to the committee of the whole.

The next item on the calendar was the matter of leasing a pier to the United States Government. After asking a few questions, the Controller requested to be excused from voting, on the ground that he had no right to vote on a matter with which he was not familiar.

"I have got to a point where all the enthusiasm and heart with which I entered my present position are being taken out of me," said Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert. The matter was finally disposed of, and the matter of the insurance of municipal ferryboats was reached.

"Are you feeling better now, Commissioner?" asked Mayor Hylan. There was no reply, and it developed that the Controller was not ready to vote on this matter either.

"I want to tell the Commissioner that the Controller can work faster than the Sinking Fund Commission," declared Mr. Craig.

Commissioner Hulbert disputed this and the Controller retorted by saying that he was still waiting for answers concerning questions arising last January.

"I'm doing everything I possibly can and I'd like to have a little bit of cooperation and not so many obstacles," said the Controller. The Dock Commissioner then complained about the lack of a report from the Port and Terminal Committee regarding the disposition of High Bridge, Mr. Craig being Chairman of the committee.

Fears Federal Action.

"The first thing we know we'll have the United States Government taking possession of High Bridge from the Sinking Fund Commission," prophesied Mr. Hulbert. Following this arose the question of leasing 200 feet of the pier at Fifth Street and the East River to the Pawtucket Company for five years at a rental of $8,400 a year with the privilege of renewal for a like term. The Controller objected to the lease, saying that he had been trying to find out something about the capitalization of the concern.

"Well, the Controller's office doesn't seem to know anything," said Commissioner Hulbert. "I'm told to refer matters to the Controller's office, and I send you reports, and when they come up here nothing is known about them. I'm getting tired and disgusted."

"We know that you are working very hard," put in the Mayor in a mollifying way.

"Yes," retorted the Dock Commissioner. "I get down at my office at 8 o'clock in the morning and work until 10 o'clock at night trying to get these matters straightened out."

"Yes, you'll put it over for a week," complained Mr. Hulbert, "that's what you do with everything. If you put this over, we are likely to lose the lease."

"I'm ready to vote on this right now," put in Mr. Smith. The matter was put to a vote and carried, Controller Craig refusing to vote.

WAR AND CITY BILLS SIGNED BY WHITMAN

FAVORS WIDENING OF CREEK

ALBANY, May 9.—Senator Lockwood's bill authorizing the Public Service Commission of the First District, with the consent of the New York City Board of Estimate, because of war conditions, to suspend operations under any rapid transit railroad contract, was signed by Governor Whitman today. The bill empowers the commission when an emergency exists to cancel the contract without default and proceed under new arrangements to complete the work. The bill permits these new arrangements to be made with the same contractor. The bill gives the city officials the right to issue bonds to carry out the work if necessary.

Another war measure along the same lines of the Lockwood bill also was signed by the Governor today. It is the Walters bill, which authorizes State, county, or municipal departments to cancel contracts for public improvements which were made prior to the declaration of war against Germany. Under another provision of this measure it is provided that where the cost of the work done since the beginning of the war exceeds the contract price, the actual cost may be paid to the contractor. This bill was found necessary to bring relief to a number of contractors who were struggling with contracts made before the war and losing money because of the increased cost of labor and materials.

Governor Whitman has signed the bill of Senator George A. Slater abolishing the Mohansic State Hospital and the New York State Training School for Boys in the town of Yorktown, Westchester County, and making a State reservation of the property to be known as the Mohansic Lake Reservation. The Governor is to name a commission to have charge of the property, and the members are to serve for five years without compensation. The Commissioners may permit establishment on the reservation of places for food and refreshment, golf courses, baseball grounds, and children's playgrounds. The commission also is empowered to permit the New York Society for Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents to use part of the land for agricultural purposes.

The Governor also signed the Twomey bill, which gives New York City the right to assess property acquired by the State for the Barge Canal at the junction of the East River and Newtown Creek, Brooklyn. The Leininger bill, providing that Barge Canal terminal property owned by the State on the eastern shore of the East River, adjoining lands acquired by New York City for the Queensboro Bridge approach, may be assessed by the city, also became law today.

Approval or disapproval of devices for transparently illuminating license plates on motor vehicles, so that the numerals are visible at least fifty feet, is put up to the Secretary of State by the terms of the McWhinney bill, which was signed today. Upon application, these approved plates may be issued in exchange for current number plates of ordinary type upon payment of the charge for the device.

The Governor also signed the Dowling bill limiting the amount of the appropriation to be asked by the Trustees of the City College of New York in any year for salaries and maintenance.

The Governor gave his approval to the Sutherland bill making it incumbent upon the New York City Dock Commissioner to adopt plans for improving Coney Island Creek so as to provide a ship canal, 200 feet wide, connecting Sheepshead Bay with Gravesend Bay. No work is to be done, however, until the Federal Government has agreed to pay its share of the cost of the improvement. One million in 6 per cent. certificates may be issued to raise the State's share of the expense.

Increases for civilian employes of the State receiving less than $2,000 annually are provided in the Fearon bill signed today. A 20 per cent. increase is provided for employes receiving $1,000 a year or less, while a 15 per cent. advance is made to employes receiving not more than $2,000 annually. Between 18,000 and 20,000 persons are affected.

The Mohansic bill signed by the Governor provides for the abandonment of the project to establish the Mohansic State Hospital for the Insane on a 600-acre tract in the heart of the Croton watershed. It also limits the number of persons that may be placed on the adjacent 500-acre site of the New York Reform School for Boys at Yorktown Heights to fifty. This includes boys, guards, and teachers. Originally the Mohansic institution was planned for the accommodation of 6,000 patients and the Yorktown Heights school for 800 delinquents.

The approval of the bill by Governor Whitman has crowned with victory a fight that has been carried on for the last five years by the Merchants' Association through its Committee on Pollution and Sewerage, of which Edward Hatch, Jr., is Chairman. Mr. Hatch soon after the land for the two institutions had been acquired, took the stand that the location of a hospital and a reform school in the Croton watershed was a distinct menace to the purity of New York City's water supply.

Mr. Hatch petitioned Governor Sulzer to have the law providing for the location of the two institutions in the watershed repealed on the ground that sewage from the institutions would imperil the health of New York City. The matter was referred to Dr. Eugene H. Porter, then State Health Commissioner, who disapproved of the plan. A bill was then introduced, repealing the law. It passed both branches of the Legislature, but was vetoed by Governor Glynn in deference to a request from Dr. Goldwater, then Health Commissioner of New York City.

Dr. Goldwater had acted under instructions from Mayor Mitchel who, like his predecessors in the Mayor's office, was in favor of having the hospital located conveniently to New York City. When the dangers were pointed out to Mayor Mitchel he promptly reversed himself. Governor Whitman by that time had taken office. He at first opposed any check to the development of the two sites, but he also changed his mind and ordered all construction work stopped. He has remained steadfast ever since, in opposition to the polution scheme despite the fact that political pressure was brought to bear at Albany from the influential Republican organization in Westchester County.

It is understood that the Middletown State Hospital is to be enlarged to accommodate in part the number of patients that would have been provided for in the carrying out of the Mohansic project.

2,000 UPTON MEN FIGHT TEN-MILE FOREST FIRE

CAMP UPTON, N. Y., May 9.—More than 2,000 soldiers have been fighting a forest fire which started east of the rifle range early last evening, and by tonight had progressed along a half-mile front ten miles toward Riverhead. The men were equipped with picks and shovels and gunny sacks and were transported to the blazing area in fifty-six motor trucks. Members of the cantonment fire department were detailed to direct the soldiers who dug trenches and built back fires in an effort to check the flames. It is believed here that a heavy rain is the only thing that will stop the fire before it works its way to Long Island Sound.

One hundred thousand ducks in four duck farms imperiled by the fire were saved by the Riverhead Fire Department. Three buildings on the farm of John B. Warner were destroyed. It is estimated that 6,000 acres were burned over by the fire yesterday afternoon.

Governor Frank S. Lowden of Illinois came to camp today to visit his son, Pullman Lowden, who is a Sergeant in one of the units here. General Bell arranged to have Governor Lowden address 5,000 men, who gathered on the plaza in front of the Liberty Theatre. In his speech he said: "We are living in the most crucial moments of all history. Sometimes we get impatient when we hear that equipment is not forthcoming fast enough and that movements in some places are slow, but we need have no doubt of three things: The loyalty, constancy, and courage of you boys. You go forth to fight the battles of righteousness for a God of righteousness against the old German god that has been resurrected from savage forests to threaten the world."

ILLINOIS AND IOWA SWEPT BY A TORNADO

CHICAGO, May 9.—Belated reports coming in tonight over wires crippled by the storm told of the death of at least three and probably several more persons and damage to property mounting into thousands of dollars as the result of a tornado which swept over Central Illinois and Iowa this afternoon.

At Franklin, Ill., two women were killed when the chimney of their home fell, and throughout Christian, Shelby, Mason, and Morgan Counties in Central Illinois, the property damage appeared to have been great. A farmer residing near Nashua, Iowa, was killed during the storm.

DAVENPORT, Iowa, May 9.—More than a score of persons were injured, one probably fatally, when a tornado wrecked the northern part of the town of Eldridge, north of here, and swept over the surrounding country late today.

Many farm buildings were demolished. Emma Damann was carried 300 feet through the air and escaped with no injuries more serious than a broken collarbone.

Getting Back to Our Story

Now that we have seen the Third Liberty Loan safely "over the top," it is time to talk of other ways to win the war. One very effective way to help is by economizing on clothes, thus saving wool and labor that are needed to "carry on" to a victorious peace.

Maybe somebody, some time, will find a better way to practice clothes economy than to buy good clothes and let them do the economizing for you. But, to date, nobody has done it.
